The arrangement of the exhibition will show a difference when compared with the lay-out of previous shows, but it will be to the advantage of the general display. The rose garden feature promises to be on a larger scale than ever and the big cut rose display is this year to be doubled. The American Rose Society is taking much interest in the store displays, which will include the society's annual exhibition, and its officers have secured several special prizes for rose exhibits. Rock gardens and border plantings will be featured lavishly and the bulb garden display is expected to excel any attempt heretofore made in this direction.

More Trade Exhibits.

The trade exhibits bid fair to exceed, in number, space occupied and general interest, all previous showings at any similar exhibition. An especial feature in the assemblage of exhibits will be some devoted to the display of garden tractors. In these days of labor shortage, tractors adapted to garden use will undoubtedly be objects of interest to all whose garden operations are conducted on a liberal scale. Many will miss the handsome display of garden pottery, statuary and furniture which has characterized other exhibitions, but the committee has been unable to secure the feature at this show. Also probably will be missed the usual extensive exhibit of rustic furniture for gardens and parks, an exhibit which has always appealed to the public, whose ideas generally connect summer houses and benches with the gardens of their dreams. Seventy-four trade exhibits have had space reserved for them and this number will likely be increased, but only to the extent of space available. It will seem rather strange that the list of exhibitors does not include any house able to stage an exhibit of garden tools; that is, spades, forks, garden baskets, shears, flower cutters, trowels, markers and the hundred and one things adapted to the use of gardeners of both sexes.

Among the exhibitors in the trade section not already mentioned in the trade papers are: Stumpp & Walter Co., New York; L. J. Reuter Co., Boston, Mass.; Niagara Sprayer Co., Middleport, N. Y.; W. F. Kasting Co., Bufbetter now, the scarcity is not changed, because the demand has increased in greater proportion than has the supply. This is caused by the increased death rate in the city; for instance, the records of the health department show an average daily death rate of ninety to 100. While those deaths that are charged to flu are few, the majority are reported as due to pneumonia in one of its forms and flu is the primary cause. The officials of the health department, however, feel that the height of the epidemic has been reached and that with ordinary good weather a decrease may be expected.

As to the stock on the market there is not much to say; in fact, when I get to the wholesale houses there is none to be seen. One day last week I saw about a dozen cyclamens; they were well grown plants and of good color and they did not last long at $2 each. This would have been considered a big retail price for them a short time ago.

A grower a few days ago said that, while it was necessary to get high prices at this time, yet it was up to everyone to do all in his power to keep them as low as possible. His argument was that it was a dangerous thing to have people getting along without flowers because of the high prices, for if they found that they could get along without flowers when they were high,

Club Meeting.

The regular meeting of the Baltimore Florists' Club was held February 9. As the president, William F. Ekas, was going to make his report on the directors' meeting of the S. A. F. in Cleveland, Robert L. Graham, Jr., presided. The weather was bad and many of our suburban members were not able to get in on account of the snow-banked roads. Mr. Ekas was at his best in telling of the work accomplished by these directors, laying special emphasis upon the fact that they devoted five hours to advertising problems. Mr. Ekas' remarks were followed by a report of the local publicity committee and then by the address of one of the best professional advertising men in the city. Mr. Ekas was full of advertising before he went to Cleveland, but he has come back running over and there is no doubt that some of this overflow will affect others. Indeed, it would be impossible for anyone connected with the florists' business to be in such an environment of advertising and not become infected.

James S. Merritt, chairman of the local committee, said that it was the aim of the committee to raise $5,000 for advertising during the coming year and told how they now had virtually 100 per cent of the growers pledged to give one-half of one per cent on all their sales. William Feast is about to call a meeting of the retailers to get at their share of the fund. All that is needed is for someone like Mr. Feast to start it; there is not a man in the retail end of the business who is not ready to do his part. Every one of them is beginning to realize that there is a great deal more in "Say It with Flowers" than just four words of the English language. For instance, Mr. Detel, the advertising expert, in his speech compared it with two well known local slogans; here the three are: "Say It with Flowers," "Eat More Bread," "Send It to the Laundry." Is there any comparison? The Baltimore florists think not.

Dr. D. H. Griffith lectured on "Growing Lily Bulbs in America." I have listened to many a lecture in my time on trade subjects, but I have never heard one that created greater interest. It was not a case of just telling you how it was done, but Dr. Griffith demonstrated everything he said with lantern slides. I suppose he realized that most florists were from Missouri, for he was ready to show plants from the seed bed to those about to open and they were

Is your city represented there?

If it IS—by someone else—you will know the reason why YOUR telegraph delivery business is not so large as you think it should be.

If it is NOT represented, you will see a "grand and glorious" chance to add to YOUR business. Practically every Florist who makes any effort to send and receive telegraph delivery orders finds the profit soon equals what he made on the best three or four customers he ever had.

The opportunity is specially good for the leading Florist in cities not already represented in the Pink Part of the Review. First consult the Index on pages 66 and 67, then use this order blank:

as fine bulbs and healthy plants as one could wish to see.

Various Notes.

For the last two weeks the staff of the S. S. Pennock Co. has been badly crippled. J. J. Perry, the manager, has been laid up with pneumonia, as has also his assistant, Ferd Gerth. They are both, however, well on the way to recovery and it is hoped they will soon be on their feet again.

Another firm that was hit by the flu is that of Sieck & Glick. Both of the proprietors were ill at the same time. Mr. Sieck, however, was able to get down for a while each morning and, as there was not much to do in the afternoon, the firm managed to get along. Harry Glick is still confined to his bed, although much improved.

At the club meeting I had a long chat with my old friend, Adam Rapp. We were talking over old times, when both of us had stalls in the Lexington Market. In those days Mr. Rapp grew the best geraniums in 4-inch pots that came into the city. He could always get 15 cents for his without any trouble. The rest of us were glad to get $1 per dozen and we could not get this until he had sold out; such plants should bring 40 cents today. He says he is growing them just as good. But he has carnations for a winter crop now and he is just as good on carnations as on geraniums. Tate.

PITTSBURGH, PA.

The St. Valentine's day demand for both cut flowers and plants last Friday and Saturday was exceedingly great, notwithstanding the top-notch prices.

The Wilkinsburg trade find that their business of the first part of 1920 is heavier than that of a year ago, although William M. Turner conservatively modifies his statement by adding that, of course, the more acute condition of labor shortage at present may tend to exaggerate the strenuous side. William Turner has especial reason to take the labor situation into consideration, inasmuch as he has been by far the hardest hit of any of the florists hereabout by the epidemic of Spanish influenza and other illnesses. During three days only one of his seven greenhouse men was able to be on the job and both the foreman, Dudley James, and Mrs. James were incapacitated at the same time with a form of the prevalent disease. While they are now able to be out, William Pugh and William R. Shackleford have come down with the same trouble. Thomas Lee, who has been a valuable member of Mr. Turner's staff for the last three years, has been confined in the Homeopathic hospital since shortly before Christmas as the result of an operation for appendicitis. He is improving rapidly now and expects to be able to return home in a few days. Notwithstanding his unusual drawbacks from illness, Mr. Turner is displaying a fine lot of bulbous plants of his own production, the Paper White narcissi being especially noticeable.

Miss Eleanor Craig, the bookkeeper for Miss Emma B. Maxwell's establishment, is confined to her home with an attack of grip.

Just as soon as the weather conditions will permit, Harry J. Hamm will erect a greenhouse on his recently purchased property on Frankstown road, Penn township. The building will be approximately seventy-five feet in length and will be surrounded by almost an acre of ground, which will be devoted to the propagation of bulbous products. Mr. Hamm's mother, Mrs. Jacob M. Hamm, who has acted in the capacity of inside manager since the beginning of the illness of the late Allen Hamm, has been off duty for a week or more on account of illness. Meanwhile Mrs. Harry Hamm has been requisitioned into temporary service.

Felix Donatelli has returned to the store of Miss Nellie G. King, of Homewood and Hamilton avenues, following a two months' siege in the Municipal hospital with a severe attack of scarlet fever.

Orders for Western New York handled with promptness

The Scobie & Parker Co., which celebrates its forty-fourth anniversary this year, has issued an interesting flower and vegetable catalogue designed by George B. Telfair. The secretary and treasurer, Harry F. Low, is again on duty following an attack of influenza. Frank Roll, of the sales department, who was confined to his home for three weeks with the same illness, returned to the store February 9. James Geschwend, another member of the same department, is now laid up with grip and George Simpkins, a traveling salesman for the company, is in the hospital at Punxsutawney, his home town, for an operation for appendicitis.

Edward Shelton James expects to begin the erection of a greenhouse on his farm on the Frankstown road, Penn township, just as soon as the weather conditions will permit. The building will be 40x50 feet, will be used for the accommodation of bedding stock for the wholesale trade and, under the direction of Mr. James, will be looked after by his son, Herbert B. James, who lives there. E. S. James has ordered from California another carload of palms, which are to arrive about May 1, for the use of the William Penn and Fort Pitt hotels. His brother, Arthur James, has arranged to send a large consignment of stock to Pittsburgh early in the spring from his plantation at Oneco, Fla. He is already sending thousands of ferns to the Woolworth 5 and 10-cent stores in New York.

Samuel M. Rosenfeld called on the trade last week in the interest of Wertheimer Bros., New York, N. Y.

Thomas Silverblatt, of the William Penn hotel flower store, has just engaged as a new assistant George Williams, who previously was a salesman in a local clothing store.

John McClements has been seriously ill for a week or more with an attack of Spanish influenza.

Spiro Kapps, who for some time past has been looking after the interests of the downtown Pennsylvania railroad station flower store, has returned to his original Pittsburgh location at the East Liberty station. Fetis Pappas is now assisting John Kronis at the downtown store.

Both Ernest C. Ludwig and his elder son, DeForest W. Ludwig, have been somewhat indisposed during the last fortnight. Meanwhile Mrs. Edward Ernest Ludwig, a bride of last autumn, has been helping temporarily.

Joseph J. Goudy, representing Henry A. Dreer, Inc., Philadelphia, called on the trade February 10. About the same time Gerard K. Klijn was in the city in the interest of Anthony C. Van Der Schoot, of Hillegom, Holland, and New York city.

Frank E. Smoller, who has been in the employ of Walter A. Faulk, of the north side, for several years past, barring the periods he served on the Mexican border and in France and Germany, has resigned his position.

The saying, "Imitation is the sincerest form of flattery," was illustrated a few days ago in a beauty parlor in the Union arcade, where a large red heart was suspended in the display

TORONTO, ONT.

The Market.

Despite the soaring prices of flowers, the Toronto retail florists are enjoying one of the busiest seasons on record. As a result of the great amount of sickness and the large number of deaths, the majority of the florists are forced to work long hours overtime to fill their orders.

There is a great scarcity of flowers, as the demand for cut flowers exceeds the supply. In order to fill the orders for the day, some of the florists will not accept orders for immediate delivery after 2 o'clock. The remainder of the day is taken up with filling the orders received the early part of the day. Even with this precaution, florists are finding great difficulty in supplying the demands of their customers.

Another feature of the demand is that money appears to be no object when a young man comes in to purchase flowers for his best girl. He pays the price as long as he can get what he wants.

The call for flowers for hospitals and for the sick in the homes is being helped by the number of plants now available. These plants are selling well and have been the means of mitigating a serious shortage.

Various Notes.

The third annual ball of the Toronto Retail Florists' Club was held in the Metropolitan Club rooms, Monday, February 9, with an attendance of slightly over 150. The small number this year is accounted for by the sickness of so many of the members. A most enjoyable evening was held. The rooms were decorated with Richmond roses, carnations, pussy willow and palms. The buffet was decorated with Russell roses.

The Hamilton Club held its dance the same evening as the Toronto Club, at the I. O. O. F. hall, Hamilton, Ont.

William Hoath, 272 College street, is seriously ill.

The florists had some attractive windows for St. Valentine's day. The red heart appeared in many forms and the predominant message, either printed or implied, was "Let your valentine be flowers." Special posters were used to advantage. One of these was a lady with a bunch of violets, which was effective. J. J. H.

The Market.

The fierce storm of February 5 caused considerable damage in this section. The fall of snow was excessive.

Sickness is increasing at an alarming rate. There is considerable demand for flowers, chiefly for funerals, and stock is cut and used when only half open. Consequently, prices appear higher than they would if the blooms were developed.

Various Notes.

W. G. Haynes is having a large trade in funeral flowers and states that cut flowers for table use have been in increased demand. Mr. Haynes regards the latter as one benefit of prohibition. He also said that he has difficulty in procuring young geraniums.

Now that St. Valentine's day has been here, everyone is making comparisons with the business of former years. The wholesalers did a bigger business than last year, and while the increase in prices has a great deal to do with this result, still the volume of sales is greater. There was hardly an item that did not sell higher than last year.

Growers report roses in great shape and good crops are predicted for the immediate future. The demand is still ahead of the supply in roses and a stiff market is the result.

The advent of bulbous stock of endless variety has proved a help to the retailer, but the wholesale prices asked are not far short of those asked by the retailer last year. Single daffodils are bringing from $8 to $10 per hundred, while tulips average about $2 per hundred cheaper. Good Purity freesias can be had at $6 per hundred, while a little extra fine stock is quoted at a higher price. Sweet peas are arriving in large quantities and the quality is fully up to standard. As with a great many items, they are all placed on orders as soon as they arrive and the price is anywhere from $2 to $4 per hundred, according to grade.

The demand for red carnations for St. Valentine's day was in excess of the supply, but no change in price was noticeable, all colors bringing from $12 to $15 per hundred for the better grades.

Violets came in just right for the holiday and about equaled the demand. Prices varied on account of the different grades of stock. California singles were quoted at $1 per hundred and Princess of Wales brought as high as $3 per hundred for the best long-stemmed flowers. The New York state double violets are not shipped to this market in sufficient quantities to be quoted.

Home-grown lilies of the valley of exceptional quality brought $12 per hundred. The demand for valley as a rule has not been heavy.

Calla lilies have made their appearance. The stock is of good quality and sells for $3 per dozen. There is little change over last week in other miscellaneous items. New shipments of ferns show an improvement in quality.

The retailers report business greater than last year. The day previous to St. Valentine's day proved a record-breaker, while the day itself turned out about the same as last year. The day opened up with blizzard weather and by early afternoon business began to let up. The "shop early" spirit seems to be well impressed upon the flower-buying public and a realization of the fact that deliveries cannot be made at any old time at the whim of the buyer is manifest in the willingness shown by late purchasers to carry their own packages. While prices remain the same as at Christmas for roses and carnations, the bulbous stock gives many opportunities to prospective buy-

Various Notes.

Frank A. Volz, of Cheviot, has some fine stock of moderate-priced cyclamens. Mr. Volz is a specialist in growing cinerarias and his latest novelty will soon be ready for the market.

G. Brunner's Sons, Price Hill, are cutting some fine carnation stock, for which they have a big demand locally.

C. E. Critchell reports St. Valentine's day business far ahead of last year and only the shortage of stock kept the receipts from reaching record-breaking proportions. H. E. K.

ITHACA, N. Y.

Farmers' Week at Cornell.

Farmers' week opened with a rush at the New York State College of Agriculture, at Cornell University, Monday, February 9, and all the week there was a constant attendance of interested people at the greenhouses inspecting the displays and listening to lectures on floricultural subjects. The greenhouses were filled with many attractive foliage and flowering plants; the cinerarias, the primulas of all kinds and the Dutch bulbous stock were especially fine. The sweet pea house, in spite of the cloudy weather, offered a wonderful display of bloom and the many new varieties under test made an instructive exhibit.

A fine exhibit of floral decorations was prepared by the floricultural students the first two days of the week. The short-course students displayed their work Monday and the regular students Tuesday. E. A. Slattery, of W. J. Palmer & Son, Buffalo, N. Y., and Professor E. A. White supervised the work. The bouquets made up were of many kinds. Brides' and bridesmaids' bouquets of roses, sweet peas and maidenhair fern were to be seen, also corsage and tiny colonial bouquets arranged along one side of the laboratory, which was tastefully decorated with southern smilax, hemlock and genistas. On the center tables were a large number of plant baskets filled with dracænas, primulas, tulips, hyacinths, narcissi, ericas, ferns and many other foliage and flowering plants. Especially noticeable was the fine effect made by Erica President Carnot in a plant basket. One attractive basket decoration consisted of a calla lily, Primula malacoides and peperomia.

Upstairs there was an interesting and instructive display of table decorations. One effective table had a centerpiece of Golden Spur narcissi. Possibly the most original was a valentine table, in the center of which was a heart-shaped basket of myosotis, with scarlet carnations thrust in at one side to represent the dart which is supposed to penetrate all hearts on St. Valentine's day. Leading out from the centerpiece were red streamers bearing small hearts. Primula malacoides and graceful marguerites made two attractive tables. Other tables were artistically decorated with sweet peas, carnations and roses.

Wednesday Dr. L. M. Massey, of the department of plant pathology, gave an instructive lecture on plant diseases to the delegates of the New York Federation of Horticultural Societies and Floral Clubs. Professor E. A. White gave an account of the college work of the past and the present and, after outlining what he hoped might be done in the future, told the florists to feel that this is their college and that they should bring their problems here and take an active part in bringing the florists and the department of floriculture into closer relations. Dr. A. C. Beal told of his trip to California and of the beauty of its flowers, both wild and cultivated. After seeing some fine colored slides depicting California's floral beauty, the meeting adjourned to the Forest Home inn, where a fine luncheon was served. The following organizations were represented at the business meeting, which followed the luncheon: Buffalo Florists' Club, Rochester Florists' Club, Syracuse Rose Society, Albany Florists' Club, Tarrytown Horticultural Society, New York Florists' Club, New York Horticultural Society and the New York and New Jersey Plant Growers' Association.

You need Bailey's books

Get the knowledge you need, hints and practical suggestions that will help in your work, by buying Bailey's new "Standard Cyclopedia of Horticulture"—the florists' 6-volume library. 4,000 engravings, 96 full-page cuts, fine color work.

Take advantage of the present easy payment plan of $3.00 per month, or send $36.00 for the complete set of six volumes. This is the best book buy any florist could make—an investment that will pay a life-time of dividends.

Confidence is a firm's best asset and it certainly applies to our business in a very large degree.

We can say, however, without fear of contradiction, that no one has ever felt that their confidence was misplaced when they consigned their flowers to us. Consign that next shipment to us and acquaint yourself with our service.

ASHBORNE GOLDFISH & SUPPLY COMPANY

Hatcheries: Burlington, Iowa; Indianapolis, Ind.; Frederick, Md. 1313 Agency St., BURLINGTON, IOWA

LOUISVILLE, KY.

The Market.

The weather has been, in general, favorable during the last week, but a cold spell developed February 14, with a strong wind and snow storm, which drove the thermometer down around zero.

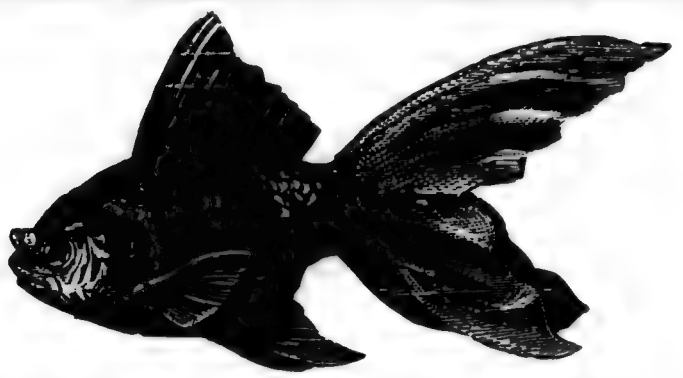
Flowers were more plentiful, with both quality and price above normal. Business, however, was also above normal, as there were many funerals and St. Valentine's day proved to be better than ever before.

The sale of pot plants is stimulated through the high prices of cut flowers. Primroses, cyclamens, begonias and bulbous stock are bringing splendid prices.

Kentucky Society Meets.

The Kentucky Florists' Society met February 11, at the store of the C. B. Thompson Floral Co., for its monthly meeting.

The committee on by-laws read its report and a change in the by-laws was taken under consideration and carried over till the next meeting.



Mrs. H. Reimers, who had been in the local florists' business for many years and who recently sold her store, on Fourth avenue, to Edith Walker & Bro., was, on the nomination of A. Rasmussen, unanimously elected an honorary member of the society.

David C. Weller, manager of the William Walker Co. store, on Fourth avenue, and Clarence Hinchel, of Nanz & Hinchel, New Albany, Ind., were elected to membership. A. Rasmussen gave an interesting talk about the meeting of the American Carnation Society, in Chicago, which he attended, and also about the meeting of directors of the S. A. F., in Cleveland. A discussion of the merits of different carnations and the difference between the exhibiting of American and English florists followed and proved instructive.

President R. Baumer, who has moved into his new residence, on Eastern parkway, invited the members to hold their next meeting with him, but made it a point that everyone should bring his wife or sweetheart along, as he wanted a thorough examination of his new home.

Seed Trade News

AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION.
President, R. C. Dungan, Philadelphia, Pa.; Secretary-treasurer, C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O.

PETER M. MILLER, of the well-known Boston seed concern, T. J. Grey Co., has been seriously ill with pneumonia.

THE official roster of the Williams Seed Co., growers and merchants, Norfolk, Va., is: President, Lyons H. Williams; vice-president, G. D. Williams; secretary and treasurer, Charles H. Williams.

CARL BARTS, of the seed department of the Storrs & Harrison Co., Painesville, O., has resumed his duties after illness. The company's stock of seeds is excellent this year, reporting scarcity only of clover and peas.

STOKES SEED FARMS CO., originally organized for seed growing and wholesaling, is entering the retail mail order end of the trade and has issued a catalogue which lists a large line of agricultural supplies other than seeds.

BECKERT'S SEED STORE, Pittsburgh, Pa., reports that the mail order business is opening up well. The demand for flower seeds has so far been exceptionally heavy and many of the rarer varieties are already sold out. This firm has doubled its capacity for filling orders in the flower seed department through the installation of a new set of Walker bins, which includes an individual box for each important class, and in some cases two or three, as needed, with a total of 750 boxes.

DROP RETAIL BUSINESS.

Northrup, King & Co., Minneapolis, will no longer handle retail business, devoting their efforts solely to wholesaling in future. Orders from former retail customers for their Sterling brand seeds will be received henceforth only through dealers, according to an announcement sent out last week. In stating this decision, they said:

"The demand for Sterling seeds and feeds has been growing so fast that changes in our system of operation have become imperative, making it uneconomical to attempt to handle retail business.

"Moreover, our distribution through dealers has increased to the point where we are represented in practically every community west of the Great Lakes and the Mississippi river, and we feel that in this way our customers can be better and more quickly served at prices just as satisfactory as if they ordered direct from us."

PRICE OF RED CLOVER.

Considerable concern was felt last spring lest the high price of red clover would curtail the acreage sown, states the Market Reporter issued this week by the Department of Agriculture, but apparently the reduction in acreage from this cause was not so great as was supposed. Doubtless the greatly increased acreage of winter wheat, on which nearly five-sixths of the red clover seed annually is sown, the need for red clover to build up some of the farms, and the fact that prices were high for many other kinds of seed and for other important agricultural products, all were important factors in tending to maintain the red clover acreage in spite, as it were, of the high price for this seed. Will some or all of these same factors and others operate this year when the price of red clover seed is about forty per cent more than that of last year? The prevailing high prices of several other kinds of field seeds, some of which have advanced in price more than has red clover, may help to answer this question.

SPEEDING SEED PRODUCTION.

When an improved variety of seed is badly needed to make up a national shortage of a commodity, the natural increase is not always rapid enough. One way in which an unnatural speeding up may be secured is shown by the work of the United States Department of Agriculture with flaxseed. Foreign supplies of flax coming into the United States were severely reduced during the war and an increase of flax acreage became imperative. A large number of pedigree selections and increased plats of the best varieties were grown during the summer of 1918 at the experiment station at East Lansing, Mich. In the fall of that year selections of seed of the various strains were taken to Porto Rico, and an increased crop was grown during the winter. The increased supply of seed thus produced was brought back to the United States in time for planting in the spring of 1919 in the fiber flax regions of Michigan and Oregon. These strains, developed by several generations of selection, produce flax, reports the chief of the Bureau of Plant Industry, that is decidedly superior to fiber flax grown from commercial seed of either recent or remote importation. The cultivation of fiber flax has become an established industry in eastern Michigan and the Willamette valley in Oregon. In addition, the crop was cultivated last season in western Washington, southeastern Minnesota, southern Wisconsin and western New York.

SESBANIA SEED PRODUCTION.

During the last year it is estimated that sixty tons of sesbania seed were produced in the Coachella valley in southern California. In 1904 this plant was growing by the roadside as a weed, but an investigation by the United States Department of Agriculture revealed its big possibilities because of its leguminous character. Since that year it has been widely cultivated, a principal use being for planting by onion growers immediately after the harvesting of onions in the late spring, thus enriching the soil preparatory to planting in the fall.

SUPPLY OF SORGO SEED.

A considerably larger production of amber, orange and sumac sorgo or "cane" seed than that of last year is indicated in the extensive reports that have been received by the Bureau of Markets of the Department of Agriculture. The increase in production is attributed to a somewhat larger acreage than was harvested last year for seed, together with a much better yield per acre than last year. It seems to be the general impression that a large crop of sorgo seed is available in the Panhandle of Texas, western Oklahoma and southwestern Kansas, which are normally among the heaviest sorgo-seed producing sections in the United States. Average yields per acre of 1,000 to 1,325 pounds of the principal kinds of sorgo seed were reported in these sections, which quantities are somewhat greater than normal.

Harvesting and thrashing were delayed considerably because of inclement weather during November and the first half of December, and also because the growers handled a large crop of wheat before giving attention to the relatively less important sorgo-seed crop. It has been difficult for growers and shippers of sorgo seed to estimate with any great degree of accuracy the quantity of this seed that would be available for planting next season, because thrashing has been so retarded. During the last week of December, however, considerable progress was made in thrashing the crop, because most of the snow had disappeared and mild weather prevailed. The car shortage, further aggravated by the fuel situation of several weeks ago, has made it impossible to move the wheat from the elevators, which have been filled to their maximum capacity, and to take care of the storage and movement of sorgo seed that has been thrashed.

Most of the prices received have been more or less nominal and have shown considerable variation, depending upon local and other conditions. In some counties having poor transportation facilities growers are being offered as little as $1.50 per hundred pounds and in other counties where the production has been smaller than usual growers are being offered $3 or more for their seed. In general the prices being paid have been 25 to 75 cents per hundred pounds lower than those paid last year at a corresponding time. During the last of December and the first few days of January about $1.80 to $2 was being offered to growers for country-run amber, orange and sumac sorgo seed in some of the largest seed-producing sections.

CATALOGUES RECEIVED.

Jerome B. Rice Seed Co., Cambridge, N. Y.—An accurately edited, well printed wholesale catalogue, in a neat gray cover. Nearly all the seventy-two pages are occupied by vegetable seeds. In flowers, only sweet peas and a few other favorites are listed. Herb and grass seeds also are offered.

Alessandro Squadrilli, Naples, Italy.—"Special offer of Vegetable and Flower Seeds," sixteen large pages, closely printed. This is a cosmopolitan sort of catalogue, issued in Italy and printed in three languages, English, German and French, with the prices quoted in francs.

Archias' Seed Store, Sedalia, Mo.—"Archias' Seed Annual," a 66-page, illustrated catalogue of seeds, bulbs, plants, shrubs, fruit-bearing stock, gardeners' and florists' supplies. The list of supplies, in the last sixteen pages, is especially comprehensive.

E. G. Hill Co., Richmond, Ind.—Wholesale list of roses and chrysanthemums; twenty pages, well illustrated. In this catalogue the Hill leadership in roses is not indicated by naming an extensive assortment of varieties, but rather by drawing attention to a few of the choice sorts, which, as Mr. Hill says, "hold the wide center of the stage." In chrysanthemums, on the other hand, about 100 varieties are offered, including Totty's novelties, standard varieties, pompons, anemones and singles.

John Connon Co., Ltd., Hamilton, Ont.—A 28-page wholesale list of greenhouse and outdoor plants, bulbs, hardy roses, culinary roots and a general line of ornamental nursery stock, both evergreen and deciduous.

Aurora Nurseries, Aurora, Ill.—Spring wholesale list of general nursery stock, including perennials; also shrub seeds and a small lot of a special variety of seed corn.

T. Sakata & Co., Kanagawa, Yokohama, Japan.—Two wholesale lists of flower seeds; one of them is a list of surplus stock for immediate shipment, the other a "contract growing" list, for shipment after crop of 1920.

Williams Seed Co., Norfolk, Va.—Illustrated catalogue; forty-eight pages and cover. An enclosed leaflet announces an enlargement of the flower seed department.

Henry Field Seed Co., Shenandoah, Ia.—Illustrated catalogue, compiled in the unfailingly original and interesting Field fashion; 112 pages, besides three inserts bearing colored pictures of flowers, fruits and vegetables; also an 8-page insert containing condensed price lists. Enclosed with the catalogue is a copy of the February issue of Field's Seed Sense, "printed and published in the private printshop of the Henry Field Seed Co."

Burton Seed Co., Denver, Colo.—"Burton's 1920 Seed Book," 128 pages and colored cover. Besides seeds, the lists comprise plants, roots, bulbs, nursery stock, implements and sundries. On pages 65 to 73 is a condensed price list of vegetable and flower seeds, "for the convenience of customers in ordering."

Turner Bros., Bladen, Neb.—A 16-page, illustrated catalogue, the first half of which is devoted chiefly to "glass cloth" and protective or forcing devices made from that material, while the remaining pages are occupied by vegetable seeds and a few garden equipments.

J. W. Jung Seed Co., Randolph, Wis.—"Jung's Seed Annual," forty-eight pages, besides sixteen pages of inserts. An 8-page insert in the center is devoted to "Vegetables of Special Merit," and in this section the illustrations are tinted green. The field and forage seeds are listed in another 8-page insert, at the end of the catalogue.

W. W. Barnard Co., Chicago, Ill.—Two catalogues, one for general distribution and the other for florists only; both are well illustrated and clearly printed on a good grade of paper. The general catalogue, offering full lines of both seed and nursery stock, contains 112 pages and is bound in an embossed cover of the same style as previous editions, except that this time the colors are green and white. The other catalogue, true to its name, devotes its twenty-four pages entirely to florists, omitting farm and vegetable seeds, except a few varieties that are "of special interest to florists."

Howard M. Gillet, Lebanon Springs, N. Y.—"The Gladiolus Beautiful," a tasteful, well printed, 16-page booklet, offering fifty or more distinct varieties of gladioli, as well as several mixtures and collections.

John A. Salzer Seed Co., La Crosse, Wis.—A catalogue which seems to have been compiled without seriously begrudging any expenditure that would add to its comprehensiveness or its

THE SECRET IS OUT

For years a certain grower near New York had the entire monopoly of the New York market on a dainty blue flower which he gave the name of

"Blue Lace Flower"

In form it resembles the "QUEEN ANN'S LACE," or commonly known "Wild Carrot." Of course it is much more refined and of a most delightful pale blue color. It is found in all the better Fifth Avenue shops and is sold at fabulously high prices.

No one—and I asked every good professional man I know of—could give me the botanical name of the flower, until I happened to see it growing, when I recognized it as one of the oldest annuals I know of.

I do not believe that anyone should have a monopoly on what I call "Nature's noblest gift to mankind" and so I secured a big quantity of the seed absolutely fresh and guaranteed to be the genuine article, and offer it herewith to the trade.

Sown in February, flowers can be cut by May and a single crop lasts for two months, as only side shoots are cut. Will succeed best in 50-55 degrees temperature at night.

Per trade pkt. $1.00, ⅛ oz. $1.50, ¼ oz. $5.50, oz. $10.00.

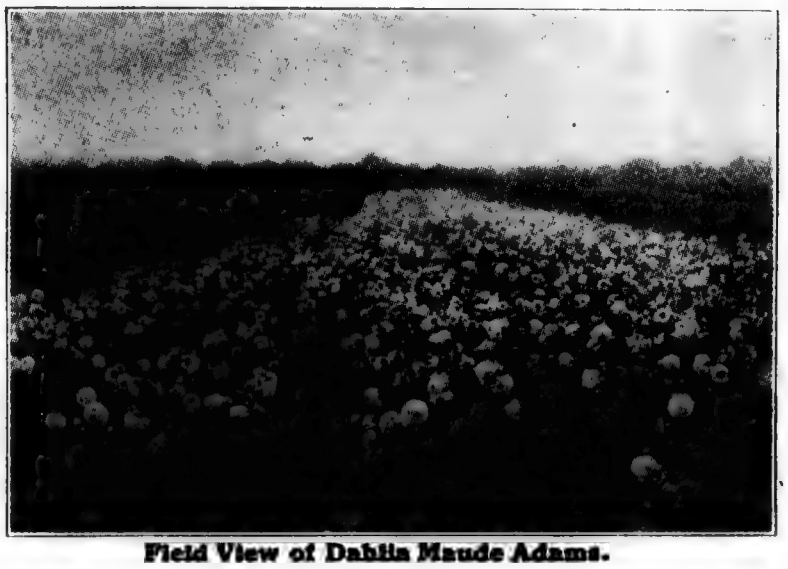
ALEXANDER'S DAHLIAS

For Florists and Seedsmen

If you are looking for something good for your florists' business, try my new cut-flower varieties offered below. I highly recommend them.



Maude Adams (New Show Dahlia). A pure snowy white, very daintily overlaid and suffused the sweetest shade of rose-pink imaginable. It is the best of my introductions for florists' use. "Maude Adams" is the most prolific Dahlia of its color, being more than twice as free-flowering as either "Nymphea" or "Sylvia." It has good stems and is an early Dahlia to blossom, continuing thruout the entire season. It has the necessary features that make it stand shipping well, and makes up good in all kinds of work. It has already been tested out in all parts of the country, Raymond Champe of Michigan finding it his best commercial variety. I can furnish strong divisions at $3.50 per dozen, $20.00 per 100; and clumps at $5.00 per doz., $35.00 per 100.

Hortulanus Fiet (Giant Decorative Dahlia). Beautiful salmon-pink with a slight blending of yellow. Good divisions $15.00 per 100, $2.00 per dozen.

Madonna (New Peony-flowered Dahlia). A very beautiful white, very slightly tinted with a most delicate shade of lavender-pink. The touch of color adds greatly, rather than detracts from its value, especially when made-up in floral work. The form of the flower is perfectly original, each petal curling and twisting in a very pleasing manner. An excellent cut-flower variety. Strong divisions $1.50 per dozen, $10.00 per 100; clumps $3.00 per dozen, $25.00 per 100.

Frank A. Walker (New Decorative Dahlia). A charming shade of lavender-pink, with long stiff stems. Produces its flowers in abundance; an exceptionally early bloomer. Good divisions $3.50 per dozen, $25.00 per 100; clumps $5.00 per dozen.

Mina Burgle (Decorative Dahlia). The finest scarlet Dahlia to my knowledge. Flowers of large size, produced in quantity, on long, wiry stems, well above the foliage. Good divisions $1.50 per dozen, $10.00 per 100; clumps $2.00 per dozen, $15.00 per 100.

Field View of Dahlia Maude Adams.

Mrs. Warnaar (Peony-Cactus Dahlia). Gigantic flowers of creamy white, suffused a delicate shade of pink. The early flowers are full to the center, and giants of hybrid Cactus type; but as the season advances, they show the beautiful golden yellow center which lends an individual charm to the flower, a characteristic of the Peony-flowered type. An early continuous bloomer, stems anywhere from eighteen to thirty-six inches long. Divisions $5.00 per dozen, $35.00 per 100.

If you are interested in cut-flower varieties, I will be pleased to recommend you the best varieties in the colors you want, and will give your communication the benefit of my twenty-five years as a Dahlia Specialist.

MY TRADE LIST gives complete descriptions and prices of over 300 of the most up-to-date Dahlias in the world, and is mailed free. Write for it now.

embellishment. It is clearly printed and lavishly illustrated, with an unusually generous use of colored work. It is of the same size as last year's edition—164 large pages—and of the same general arrangement, except that in the present book a much larger proportion of the illustrations are colored. All departments of the seed and nursery business are represented.

F. C. Burns, San Rafael, Cal.—An 8-page dahlia catalogue, in an artistic, marbled cover with a green and gold design. Twenty-two varieties are listed, more than half of them of Mr. Burns' own introduction. Dahlia seeds also are offered.

L. E. Williams, Exeter, N. H.—A 16-page catalogue of collected native trees, shrubs, bulbs and plants. Among the plants are included a few varieties of orchids. The trees and shrubs vary in size from large specimens to small stock for lining up in the nursery.

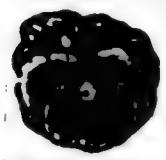
May Seed & Nursery Co., Shenandoah, Ia.—"May's Annual Seed Book and Planter's Guide," an illustrated, 96-page catalogue of the "Shenandoah brand" of stock. The seed and nursery departments occupy almost equal amounts of space in the book; the tools and supplies are also prominent. An enclosed pink sheet quotes revised prices.

Henry F. Michell Co., Philadelphia, Pa.—Wholesale catalogue of seeds, bulbs, plants and miscellaneous supplies; a handsome, well illustrated book, containing eighty-four good-sized pages, besides four pages of inserts, showing dahlias, gladioli, buddleias, etc., in their natural colors. On the cover, also, are colored pictures of many distinct varieties of stock. Hydrangeas for forcing are among the specialties.

DULUTH, MINN.

The Market.

The weather turned cold again last week, going below zero, and spoiled the window displays for St. Valentine's day. The windows were all frozen over and no one could see in from the outside, but for all that, business was good. Pot plants sold well and there were hyacinths in all colors, cinerarias, cyclamens, tulips, daffodils, primulas and genistas, which made ideal valentines when attractively pot-covered. Cut flowers are still scarce and prices high. Short roses seem to be a thing of the past, but some good stock was seen with medium and long stems. Ophelia, Premier, Killarney, Columbia, Hoosier Beauty and Ward were the best selling varieties. American Beauties were good in the long-stemmed stock, but the shorts were of poor quality. Carnations sold well, though the stock is on the short side. Corsage work was a big factor for St. Valentine's day and the flowers used chiefly were valley, violets, cattleyas, Ward roses and sweet peas. Funeral work was brisk all the week.



Various Notes.

William Japp, of Lester Park, is sending in some fine genistas and daffodils.

J. J. Le Borious has a fine batch of hyacinths and cinerarias.

O. J. Eischen, of the Duluth Floral Co., who had an attack of the flu, is improving steadily. J. E. S.

NEWS OF THE NURSERY TRADE

E. Smith, for several years with the Littleford Nurseries, Downers Grove, Ill., is starting in business for himself in the same town.

The East Coast Finance Corporation is establishing a nursery to grow tropical plants at a new location to be known as Kelsey City, about six miles from Palm Beach, Fla. The officers of this corporation are as follows: President, Harry S. Kelsey, of Boston, Mass., and Palm Beach, Fla.; treasurer, Prof. Frank W. Rane, of Boston, and secretary, Arthur F. Ray.

The Huntsville Wholesale Nursery Co., Huntsville, Ala., has been incorporated with a capital of $120,000 for the purpose of operating the properties which were recently acquired from the old company of the same name. The officers are as follows: President, William H. Bell; vice-president, John H. Baird; secretary, John Fraser, Jr., and treasurer, R. F. Neil. The original Huntsville nursery was established by Maj. W. F. Heikes and Mrs. Jessie Moss more than forty years ago and for many years was reputed to be the largest fruit nursery in the world.

PACIFIC COAST ASSOCIATION.

Prestige Publicity.

The Pacific Coast Association of Nurserymen is about to launch a publicity campaign which, it is hoped, will not only educate the public regarding the proper selection and care of nursery stock, but will also increase the efficiency and raise the standards of the nurserymen themselves. We shall adopt an emblem to represent the highest ideals attainable in our profession, to stand for healthy, vigorous stock of the best quality, size and shape that it is possible to grow. It will be used as a trade-mark by our members and in advertising in various local papers and northwestern horticultural and farm journals. The aim will be to have as members of our association only those who are willing and prepared to live up to the hallmark of quality which we shall set as our standard.

We want membership in our organization to denote prestige in itself and to have the public learn that dealing with firms who are identified with the movement is eminently satisfactory.

Coöperation is the keynote of our whole plan, coöperation with each other first and then hearty coöperation with the buying public by supplying their needs with stock which cannot be excelled and by not losing our interest in the stock and in the people who buy it, after it is paid for.

Growing for the Florist.

Many nurserymen are preparing to take up the suggestion made by one of our trade journals recently, to the effect that it was plausible and practical for florists and nurserymen to get together on many different points which have been neglected before. Since Quarantine No. 37 has been put into force, it has occurred to many growers that the ornamental stock which has been largely imported for decorative trade might be grown here equally well and without the risk of shipping.

In the old countries there is not so much distinction between the terms "nurseryman" and "florist," a florist really being considered a nurseryman who grows flowering and decorative plants as his specialty.

Among evergreens there are many sorts of junipers, retinisporas, boxwoods and other trees which lend themselves readily to pot culture and which were shipped to American florists in large quantities before the war and Quarantine No. 37 put a stop to importing. There are also flowering plants, shrubs and roses which can be prepared for florists' use by the average nurseryman, if he will make it a point to look into the requirements and take pains to meet them. To be valuable from a florist's standpoint, the stock must be symmetrical, well established and capable of forcing to its maximum perfection in a short time. This requires different methods of handling from those needed to produce nursery stock of the best quality, but, even so, it will pay to work into this department.

Ruth Day, Pres.

ILLINOIS ASSOCIATION MEETS.

Officers Elected.

The third annual convention of the Illinois State Nurserymen's Association, which was held at the Hotel La Salle, Chicago, February 11 and 12, was well attended, but the value of both addresses and discussion would have justified a much larger attendance. The program appeared in The Review of February 12 and was, in the main, carried out as planned. The following officers were elected: President, A. M.

Avoid Extremes

In This Season's Shrub Buying

Unquestionably, there is unheard of demand for shrubs this year. Result is some buyers have paid record prices without question. And others, holding back on price, have bought shrubs of questionable quality at lower figures.

But when you order your shrubs this year, think of your customers' orders for shrubs next year. You can't afford to send out stock that won't give satisfaction. Don't let stock that looks cheap now keep on costing you money next year and the year after in lost orders.

On the other hand, you need not throw away money on over-priced stock when you can get C. & J. quality stock at a reasonable price.

There's no question about the quality of any of our stock. Conard & Jones shrubs, grown by ourselves right here in West Grove, are the same superior grade as Conard & Jones Roses and Cannas. And our prices while these small surpluses of stock last, will save you money, quality considered. Order what you want now for shipment when you want it.

THE CONARD & JONES CO. ★ WEST GROVE PENNSYLVANIA

ROBERT PYLE, President R. T. SATTERTHWAIT, Secretary ANTOINE WINTZER, Vice-President

Augustine, Normal, formerly secretary; vice-president, George Klehm, Arlington Heights; treasurer, Clyde Leesley, Chicago; member of executive committee to succeed William Saddler, Alvin E. Nelson, Chicago. A. H. Hill, Dundee, and F. W. Von Oven, Naperville, are the other members of the executive committee. After the final session Thursday, the new executive committee met and selected J. A. Young, Aurora, to act as secretary.

President Counsels Care.

After the roll had been called Wednesday morning, the president, Guy A. Bryant, Princeton, delivered his address, which summed up the present situation in the following paragraphs:

The present marvelous prosperity of our country and the unprecedented demand for nursery products at higher prices than ever before, together with the application of the federal quarantine, following the curtailed production of the war period, have produced a condition in the trade that merits careful study.

We know that for this season there will not be enough fruit trees to supply the demand and that many sorts of ornamentals are now nearly off the market, so that the limit of the business done this spring will depend altogether on our ability to find stock to take care of orders. It now looks as if this state of affairs would continue through 1920, and perhaps through 1921.

The present shortage of stock and the resulting high prices have tended to cause nearly all nurserymen to arrange for greatly increased plantings this spring and to stimulate production in every way possible. I should not be deemed a pessimist if, in this time of extreme shortage, I should sound a note of warning as to the probable overproduction that will result if we do not use rare judgment as to the extent of our plantings during the next two years. If we make conservative plantings to fit individual needs, with, perhaps, a moderate surplus, we shall do our part in warding off that overproduction that is bound to follow indiscriminate planting.

President Bryant then called attention to the need of coöperation with the A. A. N., of increasing the state association's membership and, possibly, of raising the dues, and to the desirability of having the state vice-presidents for the national association appointed at the meetings of the various state associations.

Coöperation and Service.

Owing to the absence of P. A. Glenn, chief inspector of the state department of agriculture, A. H. Hill, of the D. Hill Nursery Co., Dundee, obligingly moved his address ahead from Thursday morning to Wednesday afternoon, speaking of the ways in which the state association could coöperate with the A. A. N. In the same session, J. A. Young, of the Aurora Nurseries, Aurora, presented a vigorous paper on "What Does the Nurseryman Sell?" showing the need of strict honesty in the business and of the realization by everyone in it that he is selling, not plants simply, but service. In line with this subject, the association adopted the following code of ethics, recommended by the committee on ethical standards:

First—To consider my vocation worthy and affording me distinct opportunity to serve society.

Second—To improve myself, increase my efficiency and enlarge my service, and by so doing attest my faith in the nursery business.

Third—To realize that I am a nurseryman and a business man and ambitious to succeed, but that I am first a moral man and wish no success that is not founded on the highest justice and morality.

Fourth—To hold that the exchange of my goods, my service and my ideas for profits is legitimate and morally right and that it shall be my aim that all parties to the exchange shall be benefited thereby.

Fifth.—To use my best endeavors to elevate the standards of the vocation in which I am engaged.

Call for Accounting.

Thursday morning contained, in addition to the election of officers, two addresses which were provocative, not only of discussion, but of definite action by the association. J. L. Jacobs, of the firm of J. L. Jacobs & Co., consulting engineers, Chicago, spoke effectively on the business value of cooperation, of mutual exchange of information about methods and results, and on the need of keeping systematic accounts in each nursery and of standardizing the industry as a whole. The ensuing discussion indicated that a sufficient number of the members would be individually willing to share in the expenses of installing a uniform system of accounting and, as the result of a vote by the association, President Bryant appointed A. H. Hill, Alvin E. Nelson and T. J. Littleford, of the Littleford Nurseries, Downers Grove, as a committee to consider the problem in detail. Their report will be made later to the executive committee.

sity Education for Nurserymen," in which he both outlined such a course in detail and described the program of action necessary to bring such a course into actual operation. The interest of the association in this subject crystallized in a resolution which was prepared by a committee consisting of A. M. Augustine, J. A. Young and F. W. Von Oven, and which the association voted to send to the trustees of the University of Illinois. The resolution follows:

Whereas, There is an increasing national demand for plant material to be used in the orchards, for the beautification of our home grounds and parks and for forestry purposes and there is a need for trained men in this particular field of endeavor; and whereas there is not, at the present time, a school for the education of nurserymen;

Therefore, Be It Resolved, That the nurserymen of the Illinois State Nurserymen's Association, in convention assembled, recommend to the trustees of the University of Illinois that they at once arrange for and institute such a course or courses in nursery management and practice as will properly qualify men for that industry.

Preserving Faith and Forests.

In the final session of the convention, Thursday afternoon, Alvin E. Nelson read a paper discussing the question, "Should the Illinois State Nurserymen's Association Certify to the Sales Made by Members?" emphasizing that the seller should be made financially responsible and that the members of the association need not fear supervision. He suggested that certifying should be done by the national, rather than by a state, association. F. W. Von Oven, of the Naperville Nurseries, Naperville, presented a large amount of information on "The Forestry Problem in Illinois," describing the position of Illinois in the lumber industry, the growth of the movement to create forest preserves and the significance of this movement for the nurserymen. He believed that forest preserves would stimulate the public's love of trees and would thus ultimately benefit nurserymen, but that the trade should be sufficiently represented to insure that the state production of trees is only for state use.

Summer Meeting at Urbana.

In the freedom of the open forum discussion ranged wide, expressing dissatisfaction with the non-central location of the executive headquarters of the national association, advocating more frequent visits by the state inspectors, holding that present nursery prices were justified by the prices of other commodities, opposing the giving of wholesale prices to large consumers and presenting various opinions as to the percentage which retailers needed to add to wholesale prices in order to secure an adequate profit. Mr. Nelson urged all nurserymen to write to their congressmen in support of the Gould bill, H. R. 5939.

While it was agreed that the best usual meeting-place for the association was Chicago, the association was glad to accept the suggestion of Professor Blair that it should hold its next meeting at Urbana in either July or September and thus be able to examine at first hand the work of the university's department of horticulture.

RHODE ISLAND ASSOCIATION.

Requests State Aid.

The second annual convention of the Rhode Island Nurserymen's Association, which was postponed from February 5 because of the heavy storm, was held at Providence, February 12.

Charles W. Mowrey, of the Woonsocket Hill Nurseries, Woonsocket, was elected president for the ensuing year and it was unanimously voted to ask the Rhode Island general assembly to appropriate $2,500 for the proper inspection and supervision of cleaning-up work in the nurseries of Rhode Island.

In opening the convention, President Greaton gave a brief address, in which he urged legislative action and increased membership in order to increase funds, influence and interest in the nursery business throughout Rhode Island. He asserted that not one cent has been appropriated by Rhode Island for the benefit of the nurserymen, while other states have expended large sums.

"There is no appropriation for properly inspecting nursery stock," declared Treasurer V. A. Vanicek. "We want such an appropriation, as in other states. Massachusetts spends $28,000 and Connecticut $15,000."

Appropriations Needed.

Secretary Daniel A. Clarke suggested that the request for legislation be presented in conjunction with that of the state board of agriculture. Mr. Pillsbury, of the state board, added that the department had only $15,000 for controlling gypsy and brown-tail moths and needed $30,000 this year. He said that the state board's $15,000 fund must provide for salaries, expenses for cattle killing and similar expenditures and was too small for the special inspection of nursery stock, including pines and spruces, and the supervision of cleaning out insects and other pests.

"I don't know any reason why nurserymen should always take a back seat when it comes to appropriations," added President Greaton. "We work hard and try to serve the state. All we ask is expert supervision under which the nurserymen may do the actual work."

was authorized to confer with the state board of agriculture and draw up a petition for the passage of a bill asking for $2,500 for nursery inspection and supervision, the petition to be signed by all the nurserymen in the state.

The association voted to participate in the exhibition to be held at the state armory, Cranston street, Providence, by the agricultural and horticultural interests of the state next fall. Individual members promised to make a display "worthy of the nursery interests of Rhode Island."

Treasurer Vanicek reported the association's financial resources to be in substantial shape and Secretary Clarke read his report of the activities of the association last year.

New Officers and Members.

The following were elected to honorary membership in the association: Joseph Pillsbury, of the Rhode Island state board of agriculture; Prof. A. E. Stene, of the Rhode Island College, at Kingston; Frederick C. Green, superintendent of public parks, of Providence; Paul V. Fortmiller, secretary of Jackson & Perkins Co., Newark, N. Y.; John E. Hill, president of the Rhode Island Horticultural Society; Professor John Barlow and Professor S. Rimoldi, of the Rhode Island State College.

The following new members were elected upon the recommendation of the executive committee: L. F. Kinney, of Kingston; William A. Hollinsworth, of Providence; H. H. DeWildt, of Providence; Lawrence Hay, of East Providence; Thomas Shaw, of Forestdale; E. Leemery, of Woonsocket; August Ourade, of Narragansett Pier; Percy Sherman, of Portsmouth; Herman Dolbeck, of Woonsocket; J. K. Murphy, of East Providence, and Frederick Smythe, of Newport.

After an adjournment for luncheon, the meeting was called to order and the following officers were elected for the ensuing year: President, Charles W. Corey, of Woonsocket; vice-president, Walter Barth, of Newport; secretary, Daniel A. Clarke, of Fiskeville; treasurer, V. A. Vanicek, of Newport; executive committee, H. H. DeWildt, of Providence; C. M. Holland, of Woonsocket, and William A. Hollinsworth, of Providence.

Following the business session, President Greaton read a paper on "The Standardization of Prices" and Paul Fortmiller, of Newark, N. Y., and John M. Hardyzer, of C. R. Burr & Co., Manchester, Conn., spoke on "The Present and Future Demand for Nursery Stock."

PROVIDENCE, R. I.

The Market.

Rhode Island has not yet recovered from the worst storm that has visited the state since the big blizzard of November, 1898. Traffic of all kinds has been interfered with and a general tie-up of business of every description has resulted during the last fortnight and it will be at least another week before conditions become normal.

The long spell of cold, dark and cloudy weather put a decided crimp in the cut on all kinds of flowers, with the result that there has been a shortage that sent prices up. Though weather conditions materially reduced the demand, the supply was far from adequate to satisfy the call.

Various Notes.

At the range of Burke & Burns, on Dyer avenue, the snow drifted against one side of a greenhouse so that it covered the roof and crusted. Boys sliding down the avenue mistook the drift for a hill and, coasting over, broke nearly fifty dollars' worth of glass.

The weight of snow and ice broke in one end of one of the houses of William Crompton, at East Deerwich, causing damage of about $100.

Charles E. Moody, for more than twenty years employed with J. A. Budlong Co., at Auburn, has resigned to go into the real esate business for himself.

Daniel S. Kelly, of Anthony, is confined to the house with a broken bone in his ankle.

Johnston Bros. had a large decoration at the Churchill house Friday, February 13.

Timothy O'Connor, who has been confined to the house by an attack of the grip, is able to be about again.

Word has been received here that John Ovsenick, for several years wireworker for Joseph E. Koppelman, of this city, died recently in New York while on a visit from his home in Detroit.

Henry Phillips, of Academy avenue, has just purchased a new automobile.

This photograph was taken November 23, 1919, and will give a good idea of what HAMBURG LATE PINK looks like when grown to single stems and planted six inches each way.

HAMBURG LATE PINK CHRYSANTHEMUM

is an improved late pink Maud Dean, having more petals and, if grown for late, will hardly ever show an open center.

The average grower of Chrysanthemums must have varieties which are easy to handle and from which he can cut as near 100% of perfect blooms as possible. Hamburg Late Pink has been grown for the last four years, and produces a very high proportion of good flowers. It is not an exhibition variety, but for late pink is one of the best for commercial purposes. It can be had in bloom the latter part of November by taking an early bud, but some of the flowers will show open centers. By selecting late buds, after October 1, most of the flowers are cut during December, and would advise to select late buds, as the later buds will hardly ever show an open center, and some flowers can be had even in January.

Keeping qualities are excellent and where a graceful pink flower is wanted, Hamburg Late Pink cannot be surpassed.

Plants will be ready March 1, 1920, and all orders will be filled in rotation.

Do you have use for funeral work flowers? You can not afford to be without these midwinter Chrysanthemums. They have no regard for the weather at all; they bloom just as well during dark, cloudy weather as in the sunshine. They produce 20 cuttings to the plant. They have small, wiry stems, small dark green foliage, which reaches to the very bloom, and are full to the very center. Never, under any conditions, do they show a daisy center. Greenhouse Heating

SIZE OF BOILER.

We have just erected a greenhouse, 16x100 feet and seven feet high at the ridge, for which we need a hot water boiler. There are three feet of concrete in the side walls. The length of the sashbars is nine feet. We have 200 feet of 3-inch pipe, which we wish to use for flow pipes under the ridge, and four lines of 3-inch cast-iron pipe to go under the side benches, two on each side. How large a boiler would be needed to heat the house to 60 degrees in zero weather? The house was formerly part of a range of twelve houses and gave good service with the pipes arranged as we have them.

L. S.—N. Y.

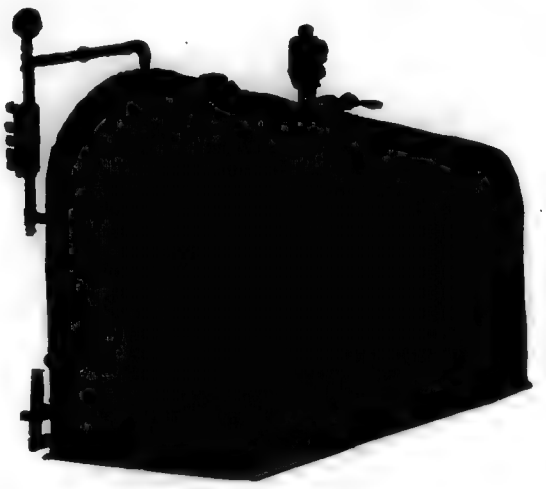
To heat the house described, it would be desirable to use a boiler rated for about 800 square feet of hot water radiation, or about 900 square feet if soft coal is to be used. This will require a grate of twenty-four or twenty-five inches in diameter. The radiation would perhaps be a little more effectually distributed if the flow pipes were carried at the purlins rather than under the ridge.

USING OLD EQUIPMENT.

I have purchased two greenhouses, sketches of which I am sending, and intend to rebuild them. The heating arrangements were not good, the boiler being too small. I should like to use the same material that was in the old arrangement. Could you tell me the best system of heating and how large a boiler for the hot water system is needed to keep a temperature of 60 degrees in zero weather? I shall erect the boiler house at the north end of the houses. The sides will be boarded double, with air space between, up to the eaves. The houses are 15x90 and ten feet high. There are three solid benches, with two paths eighteen inches wide.

A. G.—Can.

The houses will each require about 600 square feet of radiation and it would be advisable to use a boiler rated for about 1,500 square feet. This will require a grate about thirty inches in diameter or 28x32 inches.



The greater part of the pipe on hand is either 1-inch or 1¼-inch in diameter. This is too small for use with hot water heat in a house ninety feet in length, although the 246 feet of 1¼-inch pipe may be used. The fifty feet of 4-inch pipe and the fifty feet of 3-inch pipe may be used for the flow and return pipes leading to the houses. It is always well to have the returns of the same size as the flow pipes.

It would be best to run a 2½-inch pipe as a flow upon each purlin. This will require about ninety feet for each house, making it necessary to purchase about 250 feet of this size. For returns it would be best to use three 2-inch pipes on each side wall and one 2-inch return in each walk. The 246 linear feet of 1¼-inch pipe may be used on one of the walls, forming three runs, which may be substituted for two runs of 2-inch pipe. By getting twenty feet more of 1½-inch pipe, there will be enough for one run, which may be used in place of one of the 2-inch returns,

Dear Sirs: Received your boiler O. K. As for the boiler, it is all you claim for it and more. Would not trade it for six like the cast iron one I had before it. When it comes to keeping heat over night, it's right on the job. During our coldest weather here this winter (7 below) it kept the house at 55 degrees, and did it easy on slack and nut mixed.

Thanking you again for past favors, I remain,

Yours truly,

"Please send us another of these thermometer clocks, just like the one you sent us about two weeks ago. We would never be without one again."
Trost & Steinfurth.

The actuating element of the Standard Recording Thermometer is of lamina metal, which, besides being extremely sensitive to temperature changes, is practically indestructible. Record charts are furnished either daily or weekly, and the whole mechanism is contained in an attractive metal case fitted with lock and key, which insures the record from being tampered with.

The clock movement is of extremely high grade; everything about the instrument is up to the highest possible standard of manufacture.

placing it on the least exposed side of the house.

This does not provide for using the 1,000 linear feet of 1-inch pipe now on hand. If possible, it should be disposed of and 2-inch pipe for the returns should be bought. In case this cannot be done, it may be used for eleven returns in the place of five 2-inch returns, provided it is placed on the side walls as near the plates as possible and the boiler can be placed so that it will be entirely below the level of the floor. this cannot be done and it is necessary to use this pipe, a generator should be installed. In any case, run all the pipes downhill and make sure that all the pipes are free from air pockets.

REDUCING VALVE.

I have a return tubular boiler twelve feet long and four feet wide, with thirty-nine 3½-inch flues. Please tell me the right size of fire box for it. I seem to be burning too much coal for that size of boiler. I am heating two houses 25x125 and five other houses, 25x117, 24x110, 20x75, 8x125 and 6x50, respectively. Steam heat is used, with a Morehead trap. I average about fifteen pounds of steam pressure, although the state inspector allows me twenty-five pounds. Would there be any advantage in using a reducing valve? If I have twenty-five pounds of pressure without a reducing valve, would I have any change in temperature in the greenhouses if I installed a reducing valve and set it at ten pounds?

A. F. C.—O.

The temperature desired in the houses is not stated, nor is the amount of glass, if any, in the side walls. For an average temperature of 60 degrees in zero weather, 2,800 square feet of steam radiation, with ten pounds' pressure, should be sufficient for the houses mentioned, provided there is no glass in the side walls. A proportional increase in the amount of radiation should be made for any glass except in the roofs and one end of the houses.

Judging from the dimensions given, the boiler would be rated for about forty-five horsepower. Although somewhat larger than is really needed, it is not excessively large for the economical operation of the heating system. A grate three and one-half feet square, or with twelve and a quarter square feet, would answer for the amount of radiation with steam lump coal, but for run-of-mine fourteen to sixteen square feet of grate surface would be preferable.

It would not be well to carry more than ten pounds' pressure at the boiler for a range of the size mentioned. The use of a reducing valve is only to be recommended for a large range of long houses. It makes it possible to use smaller mains. In a given range a higher temperature can be maintained with a pressure of twenty-five pounds without a reducing valve than when there is a reducing valve set at ten pounds, but more coal will be required.

MILWAUKEE, WIS.

The Market.

The scarcity of flowers is still the leading factor in this market. This week was expected to show more abundant supply, but the blizzard and the subsequent sub-zero weather were a serious check to maturing crops.

Last week was one of the best, from the growers' point of view, that have been recorded since Christmas. All flowers sold quickly at good prices. The quantity of stock was large and the quality good.

More roses would help considerably, but with the bad weather and with propagating in full swing the demand cannot be met. Bulbous stock is in good supply, with prices on a par with more expensive stock. Heavy cuts of calendulas and sweet peas have been marketed each morning. Wallflowers, pansies, myosotis, stocks, mignonette, lilies of the valley, Rainbow freesias and eupatoriums added variety. Violets were in fair quantity, but not enough to go around.

St. Valentine's Day.

Until the middle of last week, there was an uncertainty about the supply of stock for St. Valentine's day. Preparations had been well under way to give the day plenty of publicity and, as the supply of flowers seemed to increase heavily each day, the advertising committee cut loose with about 450 inches of space in eight local papers. The well framed cards in every flower store, the valentine posters in prominent places and the attractive advertisements in the street cars gave no one a chance to forget February 14.

Without a doubt the day's sales were the largest yet experienced by any retailer for St. Valentine's day. Reports from several downtown stores were that the day was "a regular little Easter" and "far ahead of expectations." February 14 was, however, a bad day for deliveries. All day there was snow driven by a gale and, before deliveries were made, the thermometer registered below zero. Bad weather did not keep Advertising Club Meets.

The annual meeting of the Florists' Advertising Club was held at the Republican House, February 16. A delightful dinner was served and an interesting evening spent by those present.

Owing to the extreme weather conditions, it was impossible for many to attend and a quorum was not obtained, preventing the election of officers. The meeting voted a resolution to continue with the present officers and board of directors.

President Hunkel called the meeting to order. The treasurer's report showed that through the perfected Fox system, the collections reached $12,000 for the fiscal year, ended January 31.

The secretary's report was interesting, bringing out the point that the overhead expenses of the entire advertising activities for the year were but eight per cent of the money spent. This eight per cent included cuts, drawings, stamps, office supplies, etc.

The meeting was addressed by A. M. Candee, advertising manager of the National Enameling & Stamping Co. His talk was plain, bringing out the modus operandi of advertising in a manner that showed that he understands his subject well.

A movement was started toward forming a retail florists' association, to further the particular needs of the retailers.

Suggestions were offered on changing the name of the club and were carried over to the next meeting. It was also the voice of those assembled that two meetings should be held each year, with fixed dates so arranged that it would eliminate, so far as possible, the lack of attendance which adverse circumstances are liable to cause.

Various Notes.

Mrs. M. O. Seeman, of Anderton & Seeman, who has been quite ill since early in December, has not yet regained health. Mrs. Anderton is also ill, suffering from a nervous breakdown.

Carl C. Gruhl, night watchman at the range of the Holton & Hunkel Co., was found dead on the runway leading from the boiler room by another employee early Thursday morning, February 12. Death was due to a hemorrhage, according to the coroner. When he was discovered, his hands were still grasping the handles of a wheelbarrow. He was married and was 65 years of age.

J. P. McCarthy, representing the M. Rice Co., Philadelphia, called on the trade Friday and Saturday of last week.

BRIDGEPORT, CONN.

The Market.

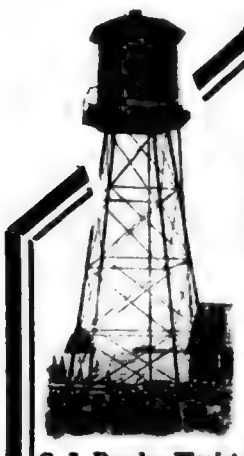
There were some bright days last week and consequently the supply is better than at the last writing. The carnation supply is noticeably improved. There is an increase in the cut of daffodils, tulips, freesias and sweet peas. Callas and Easter lilies are in moderate supply. Roses are still far from plentiful.

Influenza is at its height in Bridgeport and a number of deaths have resulted. Funeral flowers have been in big demand, and there have been a number of calls for large pieces.

Various Notes.

The Arcade Flower Shop reports that there is a good demand for funeral work.

James E. Beach says that on account of the recent cloudy weather he had difficulty in obtaining enough flowers to fill funeral orders. However, conditions have improved in the last few days, and more flowers are being cut.



The Park Garden & Flower Shop reports a larger carnation crop and an increased supply of tulips, daffodils and sweet peas.

John Reck & Son were busy filling orders for St. Valentine's day. Spring stock is coming along nicely at the greenhouses.

James Horan & Son have been busy with funeral orders.

Julius Reck, who has been confined to the house for some time with a severe cold, is again able to attend to business. His son, John Reck, who was stationed just outside of Paris for a number of months, has received his discharge from the service and is again connected with the firm.

Robert Hawkins had the decorations for the Charity ball. They consisted of palms, southern smilax, forsythia and ferns. I. L. B.

the freesia supply, but he is filling in nicely with an excellent cut of Paper White narcissi.

A. O. Stein's shop was busy last week with funeral work and decorations. Among the interesting ideas recently developed here was a scheme for a Spanish luncheon: The house was decorated with a profusion of spring blossoms, while the basket for the luncheon table was of scarlet carnations and daffodils.

The current issue of a motion picture weekly which is being shown at the California theater contains excellent views of the Ferrari orchid houses. The cattleyas are in perfect condition now and the blooms are profuse enough to make a splendid picture.

A new shop is being opened at 710 Bush street by W. D. McMullen and will be known as the Little Bouquet. The location is in the heart of the downtown apartment house section and should receive a good amount of cut flower trade at the beginning.

A striking orchid display was made by the Art Floral Co., of Powell street, recently. The cattleyas were effectively arranged in the manner of their natural growth on the branches of moss-grown oak shrubs. The delicate lavender of the orchids combined most attractively with the soft gray-green of the oak limbs and moss. An interesting addition to the Art Floral Co. menage is a 3-months-old leopard, spots and all, who is being rapidly spoiled by the amount of attention he is receiving from passers-by as he contentedly plays about the store, confined only by a chain. As yet he has not developed any of the fierce traits of his parentage and is to all intents and purposes a playful, harmless kitten. M. M.

PERMANITE was on the market long before any other Glazing Cement was ever advertised.

Everybody knows that PERMANITE is not alone the ORIGINAL, but after all the most dependable glazing cement on the market.

Obviously, PERMANITE gives better and longer service, will never harden and is guaranteed to outlast putty three to four times.

When you buy Glazing Cement—just use your own judgment, buy the original and the best—and you will have no occasion to be sorry about it in the long run.

Asbestfalt

An Elastic Cement That Expands and Contracts With the Weather

Make your greenhouse weather-tight with Asbestfalt, the elastic cement that never gets hard, cracks or peels in cold weather or runs in hot weather.

You can't get anything better no matter how much more you pay. The ingredients are of the purest; weighs but 10 pounds to the gallon.

With the scarcity of coal and its high prices, the careful application of Asbestfalt will more than pay for itself by keeping your greenhouse air-tight.

To insure best results, apply Asbestfalt with our Liquid Putty Machine, price $2.00. With every barrel purchase of Asbestfalt, one machine free.

ATTENTION, MR. GROWER!

KOST SOIL PULVERIZER

WHY do you throw away your coal ashes, when by using them in your soil you grow better crops?

There are plant food elements in coal ashes; ashes also help to keep the soil sweet; there are elements in ashes that dissolve plant food elements in the soil otherwise dormant.

Ashes act as a solvent to the soil, keep the soil porous and fresh from stagnation.

Don't waste your clinkers and ashes, spread them on your land to grow better carnations in your fields; your asters also need good light soil.

The leading growers use their coal ashes. Max Grohman of North Tonawanda, N. Y., Begonia Lorraine, Cincinnati and Cyclamen specialist, once one of the leading growers for Thomas Rowland, Boston, Mass., uses all his ashes; Mr. Carl Grohman, grower to S. A. Anderson, Buffalo, N. Y., another famous grower, uses all his ashes; J. F. Anderson, Short Hills, N. J., prominent fern specialist, uses all his ashes in his fern soil; The Lansdale Mushroom Co., Lansdale, Pa., who supply all the leading hotels with cucumbers, melons, tomatoes and mushrooms, grind all their clinkers and ashes for their soil.

Now, Mr. Grower, get our pulverizer for clinkers and ashes. We have a grinder that we are proud of—it is "fool proof," it grinds up sods, clam-shells and soft limestone. It keeps two to three men busy shoveling in as fast as they can. Don't fail to spread all your ashes on your soil, for it helps the crops and acts as a solvent on other plant food elements in the soil.

Mr. Grower, why throw your money away, by not using your clinkers and coal ashes?

This pulverizer was designed and made to grind up the soil and sods, also fertilizers that come in bulk from the sheep ranches direct to the grower in carload lots. It can be used for many other purposes, and the grower will surely be benefited in many ways. The pulverizer has not only many uses, is a big labor saver and a money maker, but is also a better crop producer and a saver in fertilizers. By using up all your coal ashes and clinkers, this alone will save you a lot of money.

As production and conservation are the great roads to success, we would ask you, Mr. Grower, to write us by return mail about this very reasonably priced pulverizer. Price $150.00.

BUFFALO, N. Y.

The Market.

Never in the history of this market has such a long period of flower famine occurred. Production has dropped off severely in the principal stocks. In former years this market was supplied with calla and Easter lilies nearly every week in the year; now these two flowers are seen only in limited quantities. Pot plants are in abundance, however. The small growers who in former years forced lilies, narcissi and such stock find it costs so much more than in former years that they resort to pot plants.

Various Notes.

Undoubtedly St. Valentine's day trade was the best yet. Prices had been firm for some time and did not advance for this day. This made easy selling. Plants sold well. The demand for corsages was much better than in former years. Violets were a ready seller. Jonquils and tulips were not popular at $3 per dozen, and at the end of the day they were left unsold.

There will be no more Sunday funerals in the churches of this city. This was the decision reached a week ago by the Buffalo Federation of Churches. Letters instructing them to discontinue holding funerals on the Sabbath have been sent out to 200 Protestant clergymen in Buffalo. This marks the culmination of several years' agitation on the subject, and the decision bears the approval of the board of directors, 175 Protestant pastors and all of the undertakers and cemetery associations of the city. EVERTITE
GLAZING CEMENT

You know what putty does—EVERTITE GLAZING CEMENT is infinitely better. There is no greenhouse man who does not remember the trouble he has had with putty hardening and breaking out when the wind is on the glass. Many a man has lost hundreds of dollars in a wind storm because the putty on his roof was old and weak—the glass blew out. Even the best of putty has to be renewed every two or three years. It is a big job—a lot of work and heavy expense.

The life of EVERTITE GLAZING CEMENT scarcely is known. It has been on the market for several years and the houses first glazed with it are as tight today as when EVERTITE was put on. A house glazed with EVERTITE requires no further attention for many years. It saves in money and labor. In fact, if putty cost nothing—EVERTITE still would save the growers money—because of lessened labor and decreased breakage of glass. EVERTITE will always remain in a plastic, rubber-like condition.

Applied with the

HERE'S A GOOD ONE

Everyone who grows single Pompons knows Mrs. E. D. Godfrey. It has been the best late pink variety. Now comes a sport of Godfrey, its name is:

ANNABEL

It is a sturdier grower with exceptionally good foliage. Has long stiff stems, well branched. Have cut stems with seventeen flowers and buds running up to 8½ in. across. Unusually good keeper in bench or when cut. Color, a beautiful cerise, tending toward lavender. Flowers of anemone type with several rows of petals, and yellow center. Season of blooming, Thanksgiving to Christmas. It is better than parent or any other Pompon and will bring more money. It is later than any variety we know of. 2¼-in. plants for delivery April and later. Orders filled in rotation. Order early. Sold under agreement that you dispose of no stock to any person until 1922. Prices, $3.00 per doz., $20.00 per 100, $180.00 per 1000. Strong plants and careful packing guaranteed.

DAHLIAS

Mr. Florist, grow Dahlias for profit. Be sure you have the right varieties, then you will be sure to get the profit. We can offer you a hundred varieties of our own growing, but offer you here 7 varieties that will assure you profit. Each variety produces freely, high quality, perfect, long stem, good keeping cut flowers, absolutely true. Last year we grew 2½ acres of these 7 varieties alone for our local trade and did not have enough. This year we will grow 5 acres of these 7 varieties.

DAHLIAS.
99 varieties, true to name, of these there are 1,526 clumps, and 28 varieties, names lost, of which there are 298 clumps. The true to name go for $150.00 if sold to one address. The name lost varieties, to one address, for $15.00. They are all of the cut flower varieties, not a homely one among them. I wish to get rid of the whole lot at once. Those who are interested write for list of names and prices for divisions and broken lots.
Mrs. Rosa Reed, Fayette Co., Elgin, Ill.

MAUDE ADAMS, the florists' coming money maker is this grand new Dahlia, the freest bloomer I have ever seen. Strong clumps, 50c each, $5.00 per doz., $35.00 per 100. Strong divisions, $3.50 per doz., $20.00 per 100. All postpaid.

Get my spring bulb list of this and other wonderful new Dahlias and Gladioli for florists' use.

NONE BETTER.

We offer a selected quality. All produced from young bulbs that were never allowed to flower. We guarantee our stock to be up to size, free from disease, and will refund any money advanced if dissatisfied upon return of bulbs. It is important to know from whom you buy. We own our own stock which was especially grown for us. Our growers and ourselves stand back of you.

BRAE CREST FARMS, MONTROSE, N. Y.

Mrs. Watt; almost the exact shade of Hadley Rose, brilliant wine, one color, excellent keeper, no crooked spikes. We have sold one hundred thousand bulbs of this variety so far this season, and above that number were sold by us last season. The winner for best vase of bloom, Mrs. Watt, at National Gladioli Show last summer, states: "The vase of Mrs. Watt bloom attracted fully as much attention as any vase of bloom in the hall." All size bulbs sold except the following: ½-in. and under, $10.00 per 1000, $75.00 for 10,000, f.o.b. Wilton. 5% discount for cash with order. No orders accepted for less than 1000.

The BEST WAY to get rid of your surplus stock is to use the REVIEW'S Classified adv.

USINGER'S UTTERANCES.

S. W. Coggan, of Battle Creek, Mich., has installed an ice-making machine to supply his refrigerators. This will end the inconvenience of filling the boxes and the price of ice in torrid weather will be forgotten.

Kimball Kleckner, of Battle Creek, Mich., reports the scarcity of stock a handicap in his efforts to increase business. However, relief is looked for at an early date.

B. W. Kribs, of Battle Creek, Mich., is practically sold out of all large flowering plants. Unusual demand has almost cleaned up all of his holiday stock.

E. G. Mulick, of the Greenfield Floral Co., Greenfield, Mich., had to buy stump acreage for fuel. Mr. Mulick played the good Samaritan by lending the city a car of coal. Later, because there were no deliveries, it was impossible for him to get coal. No one offered to help him and he had to cut wood, which is hard on the nervous system in zero weather.

D. L. Vincent, of Ionia, Mich., is having trouble with one of his eyes, which is confining him to his home.

PAT. PEN'D

Mr. Grower:

PAT. PEN'D

"Wire Tie" is a labor-saving device and is made specially for the grower.

Why continue tying up plants with cord when you can buy "Wire Tie" at $2.00 per 1000—5000 for $9.00?

They are indispensable for tying up Hyacinths and all other plants you now tie to a stake with cord, and so simple a child can apply them.

Simply grasp "tie" between the fingers, slip it around the stake, draw the plants into position and press the "tie" together; the leaves hold it in position.

By using "Wire Tie" you eliminate that most tedious of all florists' work, tying up plants with cord.

We are selling to 80 per cent of those asking for samples and want to add you to our list.

The cut should convince you; send for samples.

AGMCO

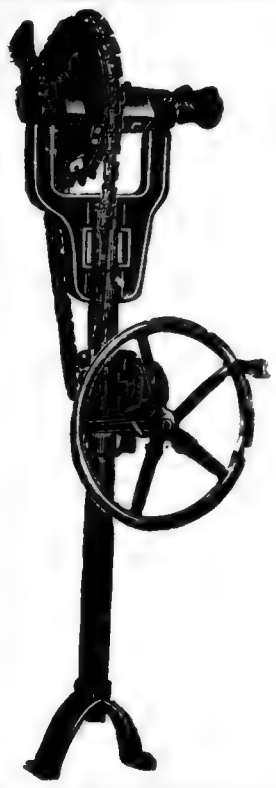
To All Those Who Expect to Build Greenhouses in 1920

The greenhousemen throughout the country have never been so prosperous, consequently they are all anxious to add to their glass area.

This means the greenhouse manufacturers are going to be flooded with work.

We have more business booked this January than any other January in our history and the other months are sure to follow in the same manner.



Raw materials are going up in price and are hard to get, so unless you act at once you are in for some disappointment.

How Are These For Gable Doors?

Speaking of the right and wrong way to have your gable doors, do you know Ernest Mueller of St. Joseph, Missouri? Well then, you know what a careful, painstaking man he is about everything he does.

When we tell you that these door photos were taken at his new house, along in November, you are promptly satisfied that those doors are right.

You'll notice that the center door is hinged to one of the others, and that it is equipped with knob and lock as an entrance door.

Now just note those two strong channel iron posts. One is bolted directly to the right-hand door, and has slip bolts top and bottom when you want to throw the door open.

The other channel iron post is fastened to the left-hand door and swings back with it; or is held in place the same as the other.

Observe that the doors ALL swing in.

Also that the two hinged ones fold back as they open in, so that no additional space is necessary on the end walk.

Folding back that way has another advantage.

It takes the leverage off the main hinges.

Mind you, we are not saying this is the only way to arrange gable doors, but we do say that the up-to-date Westerners seem to want them that way.

So it must be because of some particularly sound reason.

Big Drop in Flower Prices

The decline in prices which we advertised in last week's issue of this paper set in last Saturday and is continuing. We call the attention of our customers to the reduced prices charged on their orders and assure them that all flowers will be billed at market prices on the day of shipment. Today prices are lower than yesterday and this decline will probably continue.

One great advantage in buying direct of the growers is that we must please our trade both in price and quality, as the value of our greenhouse investment lies in our ability to retain our customers. All our flowers are grown by specialists and the quality of our stock is famous all over the country. Give our flowers a trial and then compare our service with what you have been getting.

Tulips, Jonquils and other bulb stock as well as all miscellaneous flowers are in large supply at much lower prices. Any flowers which we do not grow ourselves we will buy for our customers and give them the advantage of the lowest market prices and best quality. Greens of all kinds, especially fancy asparagus, in large stock on hand always.

Coming Back To Roses

When You Buy Them Be Sure To Get The Kind With the Right Kind of Comeback

Last few weeks, we've been talking Cannas.

But while we've talked Cannas, our Roses have been selling right along. Result is, our stocks, though we had a remarkably good supply considering the Rose situation—are getting short. Short in quantity, but not in quality. They are up to the C. & J. standard.

When you buy Roses, the thing to think about twice isn't the price; the thing to give a long second thought to, is the comeback. Will they make you happy customers? Boosters for your business?

Stock that won't do that is dear at any price! It keeps on costing you cold cash (in lost orders) long after the first invoice is paid.

Stock you get from Conard & Jones will please your customers. You can send it out, knowing it's true to name, vigorous and full-sized. And what's true of our Roses, holds true of the other things below.

Order early—It Always Pains Us to Return Your Money.

THE PLAN THAT MADE MILWAUKEE FAMOUS

First of the local movements for coöperative publicity by florists, the "Milwaukee plan" has become a name known to the trade throughout the country and a pattern for other communities to follow. How it came into being and how it operates is told here by the man who does the work.

By H. J. SEEL.

NOT YET two and one-half years old, the coöperative advertising campaign of the florists of Milwaukee is a lusty child, making remarkable growth. It was born September 6, 1917, at the Republican House, in Milwaukee, where fifty-five representative florists met to form what was later called the Florists' Advertising Club. The prospectus of the proposed organization was read, the by-laws prepared beforehand were accepted with some changes and a canvass was undertaken to secure the signatures of members. The club was later incorporated under state laws, without capital and not for profit.

The first officers of the club were: President, H. V. Hunkel; vice-president, Gust. Rusch; treasurer, A. Leidiger; secretary, H. J. Seel.

A board of directors was established to control the activities of the club. This was composed of three growers, three wholesalers and three retailers. The board made all the appropriations and approved all expenditures for advertising.

To raise the money for the advertising, a plan of assessment was worked out, then quite novel, but since well known throughout the country by the success of this campaign. Every grower who was a member of the club instructed the commission house to which he consigned his flowers to deduct one-half of one per cent from his returns. Every retailer had added to his bill one per cent of the invoice amount. The sum deducted from the growers' returns and that added to the retailers' bill was turned over to the club by the wholesalers.

Equitable Contributions.

This plan was formed with the intention of equalizing contributions. The grower contributed only one-half as much on a percentage basis as the retailer, because it was estimated that approximately one-half of his flowers were sold to retailers outside Milwaukee. The percentage on sales in Milwaukee was therefore in equal proportion between the grower and retailer.

By this method each member of the trade contributed in accordance with the size of his business. The returns from the advertising, it was felt, were in proportion to a florist's established trade, and therefore this was the most equitable mode of assessment. The large firms and the small ones contribute according to their ability and the assessment is not a burden on anyone.

Every Dollar Must Count.

The first year the amount collected was $4,863. This was not an extravagant sum of money to do a year's advertising for the trade in a city the size of Milwaukee. It was only by conserving it, by hoarding it, that the committee was able to make so much of it. Every penny had to count. No large sums could be paid for running expenses. Every dollar was needed for actual advertising, and by careful conservation the committee was able to make the fund accomplish a great deal.

So satisfied was everyone in Milwaukee with the results of the first year's campaign that when the annual meeting was held February 10, 1919, it was voted to double the assessments for the following year, so that the growers would pay one per cent and the retailers two per cent. The motion to do this was made from the floor, without any recommendation from the officers of the club. It represented the spontaneous appreciation of the florists of Milwaukee of the good the campaign had done for their business. Seventy-four votes were cast in the ballot on the question and only two were negative.

For the second year of the campaign in Milwaukee, recently closed, approximately $12,000 was raised. If you divide this by two and calculate only on half the amount, or what would have been received had the rates of assessment continued the same as in the first year, you find an increase of twenty-three per cent over the year before. Here is actual proof that the publicity really increased the business of the florists of Milwaukee. We have no doubt of it. The reports from the wholesale houses show this gain of twenty-three per cent was not merely the normal growth of the flower business, for during the same time the out-of-town business did not increase at anywhere near the rate that the city business did.

The weekly records bear this out also. If the week's business at one of the wholesale houses indicates a gain of $1,000, approximately $800 of it will be gain in the city and about $200 in out-of-town business. If there appears a loss of $1,000, the city loss will be $200, the country loss $800. If there is a $500 loss, probably the figures show a city gain of $200 but a country loss of $700.

Proof of Returns.

The fact that the records run like this week after week convinces the most skeptical that the advertising in Milwaukee has paid and paid well.

Out of the larger appropriation during the second year, we estimate that we have obtained, not just twice the amount of advertising we got the first year, but nearer two and one-

PUSHING PUBLICITY

Local campaigns for co-operative advertising occupy the limelight in the florists' trade today. Several cities are seeking to establish them and others are talking of the project. To forward this movement, one of the greatest in the trade's history, The Review presents the stories of the three plans now in operation, from which other communities can form their own.

half times as much. You may ask why we can do this. In the first place, you know the expenses of running a large business are not proportionately larger than running a smaller business. Then, too, we are able to get lower rates when we purchase in larger quantities. We are able to get better discounts when we can contract for larger amounts of space in the newspapers. And all along the line the cost of the larger campaign is proportionately less.

Nobody Pays for Advertising.

If any florist thinks such advertising is an expense to him, let him ask himself who pays for it.

The grower doesn't pay. As a result of his contribution of one-half of one per cent the grower sells more stock; he makes more money. So the cost of the advertising does not come out of his pocket. No, the grower doesn't pay.

The wholesaler sells more stock and, though he doesn't raise his prices, his commissions are larger. The wholesaler doesn't pay.

The retailer does not have to pay any more for his stock. He makes more sales at the same prices as before and pockets a larger profit from increased business. The retailer doesn't pay.

And since the retailer does not raise his price to the public, but continues to sell at figures he charged before he began to advertise, the public doesn't pay for the advertising.

Who does? Nobody. The increased sales pay for the advertising. The cost comes not from any person, grower, wholesaler or retailer, but is more than made up by the greater business each one does.

Say It With Flowers

THE PRICE OF A FLOWER

BY A. L. B.

Can you remember Mr. Husband, how your best girl used to beam with smiles when thanking you for the pretty posies you had sent?

Do you remember how pleased you were with the "note of acknowledgment" from the convalescent to whom you had sent a few flowers wishing a speedy recovery?

Wasn't the wife happy the other day when you sent a box of roses to her on your wedding anniversary?

And the evening little daughter made her debut as a dancer—what was the crowning glory of her evening? Why! the flowers which had a card attached reading "from mother and father"

And don't forget how your heart was touched when the old lady who does your washing thanked you for the flowers and kind thoughts which you sent when her boy died—Yes they were the only flowers he had and she put them on his casket

And when Senator —— lay in state, were not your sympathies there with his family, sent with some flowers?

What was the price of those flowers?

Well, the carriage value was very nominal—the true price was the will to convey a thought. Your unspoken thought direct to the recipient. And your note sent with flowers goes direct.—Mrs. Smith is always "at home." Mr. Business Man will "hear when you have to say NOW." The sick invalid sets up in bed for a few moments to read your note of cheer and to gaze on the beautiful flowers you have sent, and falls back on the pillow with such a different line of things

As we look about the modern flower shops and the rise of color catches the eye, little thought is given to the origin of all the myriad blush we see. Someone has worked diligently for months that the fronts of their labor may be the means of making a sad heart happy or a lonesome soul gay.

The flowers in your home this Thanksgiving day were in the embryo one months ago—so were your present good thoughts.

Flowers are the most beautiful things God made. He colored them so deftly, gave them so much character and has given them to us so abundantly. Like a human life, we adore their transient beauty. Yet in passing they leave fond memories and cherished thought.

To give flowers is an unselfish pleasure we should cultivate. To receive them is a blessing.

Every person can afford flowers for the price is the will to have them.

Everybody loves flowers.

"Like a human life, we adore their transient beauty, yet in passing they leave fond memories and cherished thought."

The love of a lad for a lass makes Flowers the medium for carrying sweet, silent expression.

Flowers in the sickroom are like sunshine—If you have a smile, send it with Flowers.

If this is not your pleasure—try it from a dip omatic point of view—Birthdays too.

Gives the graduate a thrill similar to that of a soldier receiving the Croix de Guerre.

Flowers carry a message of condolence to those who mourn the loss of a dear one. A soothing message that there IS still warmth in the world.

The price is "the will to convey a thought."

For expediency say it with Flowers—thoughts of love, hope, joy, gladness or sympathy are more potent when accompanied with Flowers.

Flowers are grown in months, not days. Patience and skill are necessary to growers, who watch day and night over maturing crops, growing in glass houses, subject to sudden destruction by wind, heavy snows, hail, etc.

A subtle part of God's universe are Flowers—perishable, yet immortal.

The reciprocity of Life is evident between those who give Flowers and those who receive them.

Making Collections.

Our collections are made through the wholesale houses and the operation is quite simple. When a retailer buys $10 worth of goods the wholesaler adds 10 cents for the advertising fund. When the wholesaler remits to the grower, he deducts 5 cents as the advertising assessment on the $10 worth of his stock sold. The bill, with the extra one per cent attached, is as easy to collect as without it; the 1 cent added to each $1 makes no difference. There is, of course, some extra bookkeeping necessitated by this plan and for that reason the wholesaler contributes no money to the fund, but gives his services instead. From trial we have found the added expense to the wholesaler about offsets what he would be asked to pay in money.

The wholesalers remit their collections to the treasurer of the advertising fund at stated intervals. Thus the job of collecting the money is automatically cared for.

In addition to these collections made in regular customers' transactions through wholesale houses, we found ways to collect on purchases made in all other ways. The plantsmen who sold direct to the retailer were won into our plan. The street peddlers had to pay on their purchases, too. Ultimately we think we got everybody paying.

Directors Have Work.

Of course, difficulties of various sorts come up from time to time. They came up more frequently at first than later. Therein lies much work for the directors.

The board of directors consists of nine members—three wholesalers, three retailers and three growers. Each individual has one vote. These nine men not only pass upon all advertising propositions and appropriations, but they also straighten out the kinks brought to their attention by members of the trade. The troubles of his constituents may be taken before the board by a director and there they will be thoroughly threshed out with the representatives of the other branches of the trade.

The board of directors is also a shield against solicitors for programs and such things, which are so difficult for a florist to turn down. Now a florist merely says: "All our advertising is done by the Florists' Advertising Club. If the directors will pass favorably on your proposal, they will give you an appropriation." But the solicitor cannot find the board of directors and the florists are rid of a nuisance.

Confine Efforts.

The directors have found that to conserve their funds and give the trade the best value for their contributions they must confine the advertising to mediums of wide and certain circulation, such as newspapers, street-car cards and billboards. If one begins to spend money on the thousand and one other things presented—concert programs, benefit programs, charity affairs, etc.—he will have frittered away hundreds of dollars and received nothing in return. Our fund is not big enough so that we can feel otherwise than that we must get 100 per cent—if not 110 per cent—in returns.

We make it a rule also to advertise just flowers, making our appeal big and broad and sweeping. We use space for special days, naturally, but we do not stress one thing more than another. Our whole object is to get the people of Milwaukee to buy more flowers.

In a campaign such as this, results are not readily traceable. This is what is termed general advertising, as against specific advertising. If you sell an article ordinarily at $1 and advertise it for a sale at 99 cents, you can tell just what your return from that advertising is by the amount of the merchandise you sell at 99 cents. But when you advertise a commodity in general you cannot look for definite or immediate return. It takes time. But a campaign such as that in Milwaukee will yield returns if you give it a little time. There is no question of it. Not in a week, or a month, or even a year, will you get the results you will have ultimately. But there is no reason why, after several seasons' advertising, when we have learned to handle our mediums most effectively and have been able to study conditions thoroughly—there is no reason why we should not at least achieve that perfect heaven of the florists' business, a season without a glut.

Slight Expense.

If one is going to consider the expense at the outset—though it should not be called an expense, but an investment—there is no argument as to the slight cost of the Milwaukee way of advertising for florists. The amount you pay for it in a year is insignificant.

There is no doubt that a florist should advertise. Advertising is as much a part of your help as your store man or your delivery boy. It ought, accordingly, to have just as definite a place on the florist's pay roll. And in the live retail establishments it has just such a place.

A retailer who advertises regularly makes an appropriation of four to five per cent of his net business. This is a small percentage, the least one can set for the purpose and say he advertises. Now, then, under the Milwaukee plan the most anyone paid when we started was not even one per cent of his net proceeds, but one per cent of his purchases. One could scarcely start with less. In Milwaukee the percentage was doubled after one year's trial. There are some who already are willing to double it again for next year.

Little Rock, Ark.—Fire of unknown origin destroyed the largest packing house of Joseph W. Vestal & Son Co. Friday, February 13. Because of the weak water power, it was some time before the fire was under control and several thousand dollars' damage resulted.

BUFFALO'S BEGINNING

By WALLACE H. EISS.

GREAT credit must be given the members of the national publicity committee for their untiring efforts in inaugurating and putting into effect the national publicity fund. The florists of this country owe to the original members of the national publicity committee a debt which cannot be measured by monetary value. It was the forethought and perseverance of the members of this committee which made the national publicity fund possible. They worked against obstacles which seemed almost impossible to overcome. They started this fund at a time when it was hard to make even the most liberal-minded florist believe that it was an opportune time to start such a fund, especially at a time when the demand for flowers was greater than the supply. The writer was one of those who did not believe at that time that it was a wise move, although our company fell in line and subscribed to the original fund for four years and last December paid the subscription in full. Opposition to the movement was strong at first and the committee, I believe, was up against it, but hung on, and at last has been partially rewarded for its efforts by the formation of several local publicity funds, which have sprung up in the last two years in some of the larger cities. It is due entirely to their great work and foresight that publicity has come to be to the florists of this country their one greatest asset.

At this time I wish to publicly acknowledge that I was mistaken in my theory that the opportune time had not arrived to start such a fund. I take off my hat to these gentlemen. Every florist in this country should stand back of this committee in their great work and subscribe liberally to this fund, in order that they can carry on this great work of publicity.

Beginning.

In the last year the writer gave local publicity a great deal of thought and study. I had read about Milwaukee's plan and later about that of St. Louis, but to me these plans did not seem practical for the city of Buffalo.

A little less than a year ago the Buffalo Florists' Club invited Henry Penn, of Boston, to speak before the club on national publicity. His remarks sank deep into the hearts of some of the Buffalo florists, especially those who did some individual advertising. The ice was cracked, but not broken.

Some time before this, John Young visited Buffalo in the interests of the national publicity fund, but the results he obtained must have been discouraging.

A short time after Mr. Penn was in Buffalo I wrote to Mr. Young, asking for information regarding the Milwaukee and St. Louis plans. In this letter I stated that I thought it possible to start a fund for local publicity in Buffalo. After studying the other plans I did not think they would work out successfully in Buffalo, not that I had any serious objections to those plans, but because conditions were so much different here.

Local Conditions.

There are in Buffalo a great many growers of plants who sell their stock direct to the retailers, and the wholesale house would have a difficult time to check up on this stock. Therefore, the assessment plan, in my mind, was not an equitable proposition, as some would be paying their full share, while others would be paying less than their share. Several of the retail florists were interested, but nothing materialized.

In October the F. T. D.—that bunch of live wires—held the annual meeting in Buffalo, and through a little publicity on the part of the local committee, a number of the retail florists in Buffalo and a few growers attended these meetings. It was at this time that the idea of publicity was revived in the minds of a few of the local retail florists.

As stated previously, the writer had studied this problem to a considerable extent and finally hit upon the plan of voluntary subscriptions. But the one great difficulty was to present it in a forceful way to the growers and retailers. I had no doubt as to the support of the retailers, but was somewhat doubtful as to how the growers would take to the proposition.

At the F. T. D. meeting I had the pleasure of meeting J. F. Ammann, then president of the S. A. F., and after hearing him speak to the members of the F. T. D. I came to the conclusion that here was the man who could, with telling effect, bring home to the growers and retailers the message of local and national publicity. At the meeting of the growers and retailers of Buffalo held October 23, 1919, Mr. Ammann splendidly presented to them the value of coöperative local and national advertising. This was the beginning of the Buffalo campaign. Too much credit cannot be given to Mr. Penn, who really started the idea of publicity in Buffalo, to the F. T. D. meeting, which revived interest, and to Mr. Ammann, who really finished the work and made possible the Western New York Florists' Publicity Fund, which has grown until it now exceeds $10,000.

Wallace H. Eiss.
(Chairman Western New York Publicity Committee.)

Organization.

Interest now had been created, and October 30 another meeting was held, when $6,500 was subscribed by thirty-two growers and retailers. At this meeting a permanent committee was elected by the subscribers to this fund, comprising, besides the writer as chairman, Harold Brookins as secretary, Mark Palmer as treasurer, C. F. Treichler, Ed. Lehde, Robert Scott and Arthur Kowalski. Since that time subscribers have been added until ninety per cent of the retailers in the city and of the growers who market their products in the city have subscribed to this fund. This fund now amounts to over $10,000—the goal set by the chairman, which no one, outside of myself, thought it possible to raise.

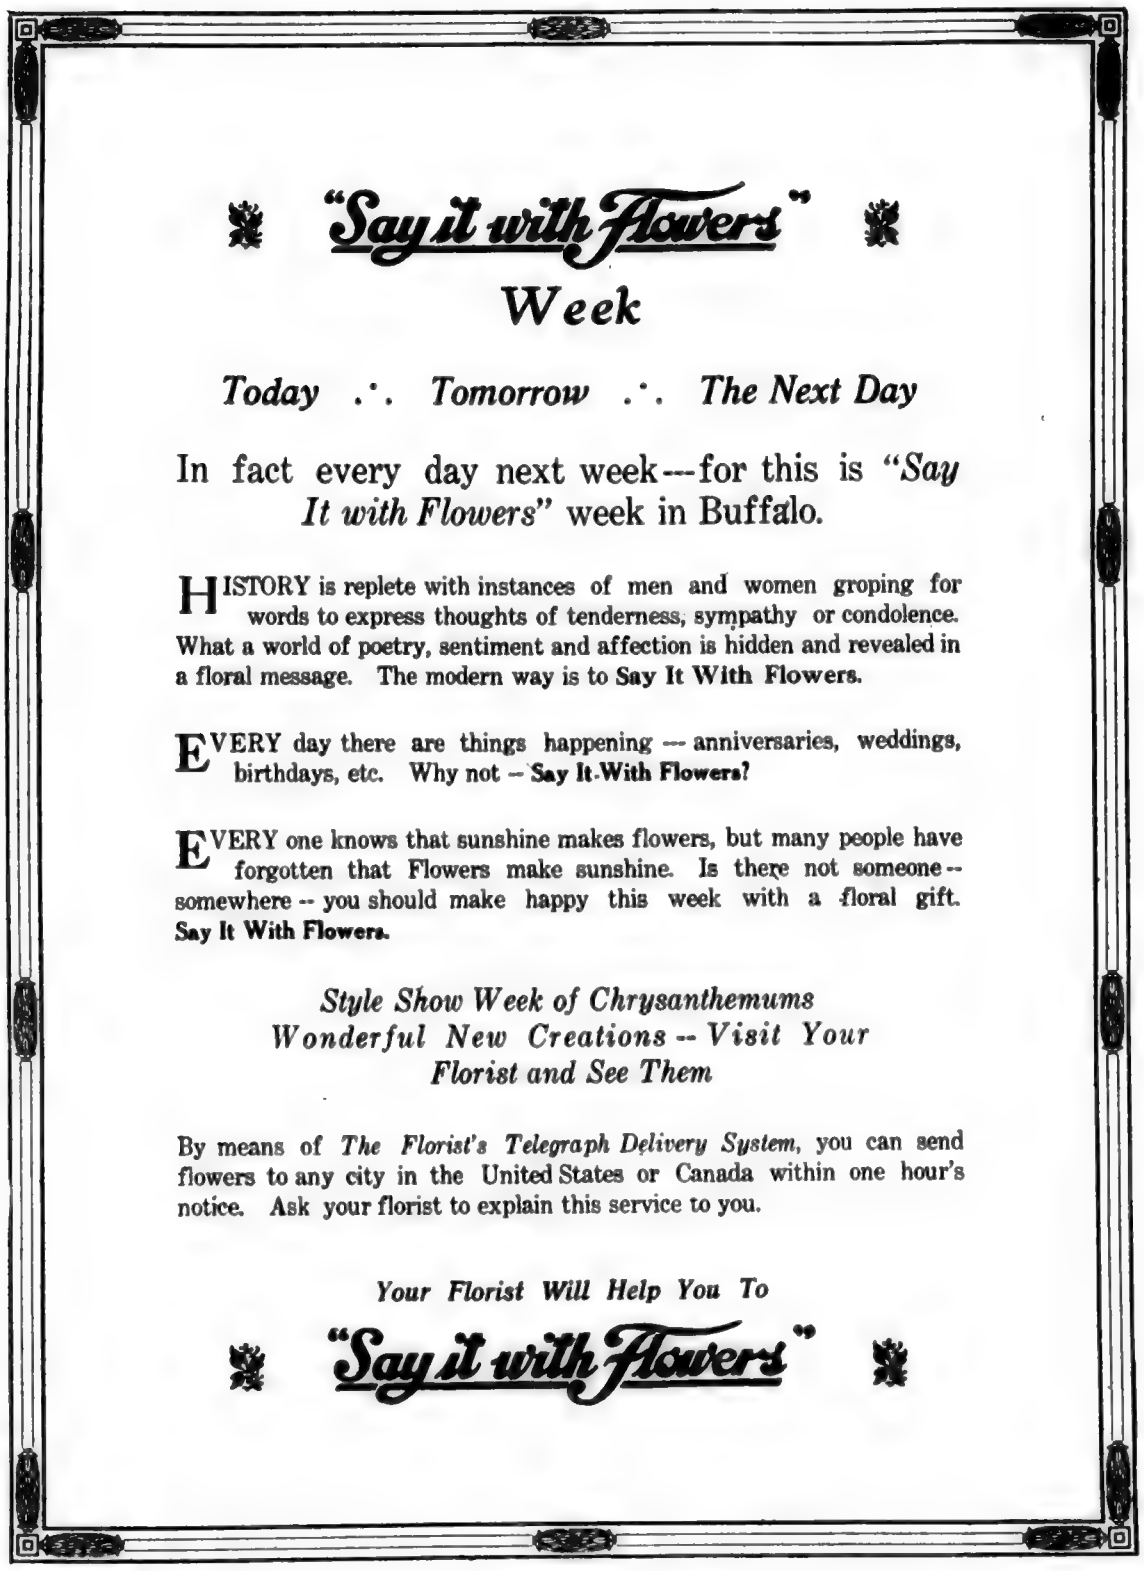
From the beginning the idea was that the subscriptions to this fund were not to be considered as donations, but it was impressed upon the subscribers that they were making an investment. This method of presenting the plan to the subscribers has made the fund possible.

The object of the committee is to use the fund in a way that will give flowers the most publicity for the least expenditure. This, of course, is a hard problem, but so far the committee has done some good work. Part of the fund is set aside for newspaper advertising—in all advertisements the slogan "Say It with Flowers" is used—part to purchase the national publicity committee's billboards, which are to be placed in conspicuous places in the city of Buffalo and on the public highways leading to Buffalo; part for propaganda work, such as articles on floriculture, which appear weekly in two of the local papers, and part of the fund is set aside to be given to the national publicity committee for their great work. The last, in my estimation, is most important, as I believe that the national fund will get more money out of this territory than ever before.

The results of such a local advertising scheme are far-reaching. I am always impressing upon the subscribers that they should not expect too much for the first year, but, just as in the national campaign, the results will be far beyond expectations in the second and following years.



In conclusion, I believe that these several campaign funds will result in a great era of prosperity for the florists of this country. Every city should start one, following either our plan or that of one of the other cities, whichever will work out best for the particular locality. The directors should plan to corral every florist within a certain radius of the city. In this way, in time, when the larger cities have started funds, every florist will have a part in this great work. Above all, make it a point to set aside a certain sum for national publicity and thereby lighten the work of the national committee. It is much easier for local committees to solicit subscribers than for the national committee. The time is coming when the national committee and local committees will raise and expend more than $500,000 yearly for publicity of flowers, and this amount will not include money expended by individuals in their own advertising.

Let every one of us get behind this great movement, put our shoulders to the wheel and prove to the public that "Say It with Flowers" is something besides a mere slogan.

Buffalo By-Laws.

For the guidance of those who favor the provisions of the Buffalo plan, the resolutions unanimously adopted by the subscribers of the Western New York Florists' Publicity Fund at the meeting held October 30 are reprinted, as follows:

1. That a voluntary guarantee fund be raised by the retail florists of Buffalo and the growers of cut flowers and plants who grow and sell their products within the city and the growers of cut flowers or plants who ship to or bring their products to Buffalo and the seedsmen and nurserymen of the city of Buffalo.
2. That the name of the fund be "Western New York Florists' Publicity Fund."
3. That this guarantee fund is to be used solely for the purpose of promoting the sale of flowers in western New York, and a certain part of the fund is to be set aside by the committee for national publicity.
4. That the moneys so guaranteed be turned over to an advertising committee, who will have in charge the matter of properly using the fund collected for advertising purposes in promoting the sale of flowers and plants.
5. That the advertising committee consist of three growers who ship to or sell their products in the city of Buffalo, three retail florists who have their business in the city of Buffalo and one wholesaler of the city of Buffalo.
6. That the subscribers of this fund elect this committee by ballot on the last Thursday of October of each year.
7. That the term of the committee be one year, starting November 1, 1919, or until their successors are duly elected.
8. That the committee so elected call together the subscribers to the fund at least once in every three months and make a detailed report of moneys collected and expended.
9. That the subscriptions to this fund are not to be binding unless at least seventy-five per cent of the retail florists of the city of Buffalo and seventy-five per cent of the growers within the city of Buffalo and seventy-five per cent of the growers who ship to or sell their products in the city subscribe to the fund.
10. That the subscriptions to this fund be for one year.
11. That the subscriptions be paid to the committee in four equal payments.
12. That the payments be made every three months in advance.
13. That the subscriptions made to the fund by the several individuals be binding.
14. That the subscribers to the fund reserve the right to call a meeting of the subscribers at any time upon presenting a written petition to the elected committee, if signed by at least twenty-five per cent of the subscribers to the fund.
15. That these resolutions can be amended at any regular meeting of the subscribers by two-thirds vote of the subscribers present at that meeting.

Wichita, Kan.—There have been so few flowers here that the local newspaper has published squibs regarding the scarcity. Chas. P. Mueller says the shortage was as bad before St. Valentine's day as after.

Montvale, N. J.—H. B. Marinelli, the originator of what a New York newspaper claims is the largest carnation ever produced, Merveille Francaise, which is a Malmaison crossed with remontant varieties, became a grower after many years on the vaudeville stage as an imitator of serpents, twisting his body about as though it were spineless and boneless. His health failed and he took up gardening. He managed an international theatrical agency until the war came. Mr. Marinelli began growing here and became interested in carnations; the Merveille Francaise is the result of his endeavors.

HOW ST. LOUIS SUCCEEDED

By L. JULES BOURDET.

SOME eight years ago the florists of the city of St. Louis and of St. Louis county first discussed co-operative advertising, but somehow they could not get together to plan ways of raising the necessary funds and of putting them to the most effective use. I doubt whether we should ever have done anything more than think about publicity if it had not been for the S. A. F. and its inauguration of the national publicity campaign at its convention in New York in August, 1917.

Two years ago, at a meeting of the local committee for the national flower show, some of the plans for national publicity were discussed and we saw the opportunity to get real benefit from the national campaign by tying up local publicity with it. About $200 was raised at that meeting and a committee was selected, with the writer as chairman. This started the ball rolling. About $400 was spent for St. Valentine's day and the results were so convincing that it was decided to make that committee permanent, giving power to the chairman to appoint whoever he thought would be wise additions to the committee. As a result, its membership was enlarged to include the presidents of all the organizations in the trade in St. Louis and St. Louis county.

We started with a voluntary subscription, each florist subscribing for a year and paying in monthly installments. The secretary had charge of the amounts collected and received a compensation for his work of ten per cent of the collections.

Launched.

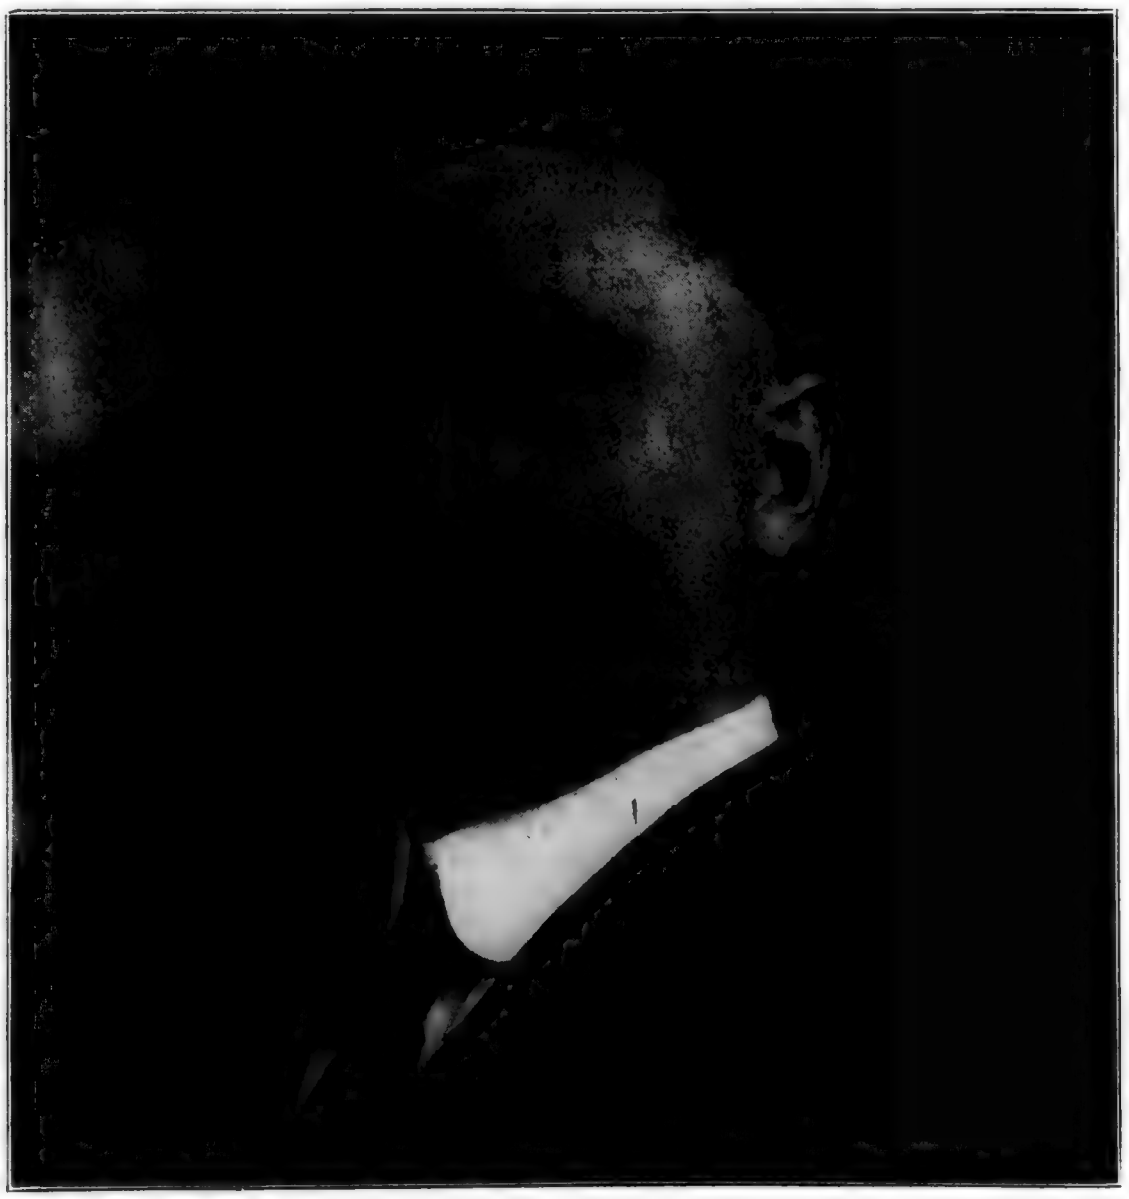
The amounts that we raised were not especially large, but the response that we received was decidedly encouraging. In following the steps of the national publicity committee, we were using ideas that were not costing us anything and were getting our cuts at an unusually low price, enabling us to get large results for the money spent during that year. We advertised chiefly through newspapers and street cars and by the use on every occasion of the slogan, "Say It with Flowers."

By the end of the year, the committee realized that the voluntary method of raising funds was not fair, as some were paying too much in comparison with the size of their business, while others were not paying enough and still others were not paying anything.

Proportional Payments.

In the trade papers we read of the plan of proportional payments being started in Milwaukee, by which the retailers paid one per cent of the value of their purchases and the growers one-half of one per cent of their returns. This plan was thoroughly discussed by the committee and was unanimously accepted as the best and fairest way to assess the trade for co-operative publicity.

The committee recommended this plan to each of the four principal trade organizations of the city, the St. Louis Florists' Club, the St. Louis County Growers' Association, the St. Louis Wholesale Florists' Association and the St. Louis Retail Florists' Association, and they all endorsed it. The committee also suggested that each of these organizations appoint three of its members to act on the publicity committee; this provided a committee of twelve, with three representatives each from the growers, the wholesalers, the retailers and the allied trades, as follows: L. Jules Bourdet, chairman; J. J. Beneke, secretary and treasurer; A. H. Hummert, W. A. Rowe, W. J. Pilcher, A. S. Cerny, W. C. Smith, H. G. Berning, Frank A. Windler, Fred C. Weber, J. J. Windler and Charles C. Young.



Last year the assessment on the growers alone of one-half of one per cent on the stock sold through the wholesale houses yielded $1,043.84 from April 1 to October 1. These figures are sufficiently typical to indicate how productive so slight a percentage can be when there are enough participants in the assessment. Last fall it was decided to spend $3,000 in advertising, with a generous use of the slogan, "Say It with Flowers."

For St. Valentine's day, the committee distributed among the florists free of charge 50,000 stamps and 100 posters and ran a reproduction of the poster as a double-column advertisement in the daily papers for a week.

The plan is now working with distinct success, since an adequate income is practically assured, derived from small assessments, equitably assigned. Ninety-five per cent of the growers are paying their one-half of one per cent and are willing to double it if they are asked to do so. Somehow we have not been quite so fortunate with the retailers, who seem to be a little slow to realize the benefits of publicity; about fifty per cent of them are paying their one per cent. We are, however, winning them slowly but surely; the slowest to come in will be strongest in favor of it later.

Double Receipts.

The total amount that we expect to raise this year with the plan of percentage assessment is about double the amount which was raised last year with voluntary subscriptions. We have been able, also, to secure the free services of an advertising man to handle our publicity in the newspapers; this man receives his compensation from the newspapers in commissions. So far we have been using newspapers as the principal advertising medium, as we found that such advertising gave the most for the money. The committee has been meeting twice each month and welcomes suggestions at such times from members of the local trade.

Improvement.

When the florists were asked for contributions to the local fund, some difficulty was met in the fact that local members of the trade who had made pledges to the national publicity committee would then be making two publicity contributions, which might lead to confusion or dissatisfaction. So the local committee proposed to the national publicity committee that those who contributed to the local campaign should be freed from their pledges to the national fund if twenty-five per cent of the local committee's receipts were turned over to the national campaign. At a meeting of the local publicity committee January 13, 1920, the twenty-five per cent of collections made since April 1, 1919, was ordered paid to the national committee. The amount was $575. J. Fred Ammann, ex-president of the S. A. F., who was present, complimented the local committee on being the first to make this allotment to the national campaign.

Personally I think that this so-called Milwaukee plan is the best method of assessing florists in order to raise funds for publicity. Experience, both local and national, has shown that the raising of funds by assessment is a much more just and more productive method of supporting trade publicity than the plan of depending upon voluntary subscriptions. The trade in any city which has not yet organized a definite campaign for local publicity will do well to inaugurate one, keeping in mind the desirability of allotting to the national campaign a share of the amount raised. Any local publicity committee, also, should recognize the advantages of the assessment plan as compared with that of voluntary contributions and should make full use of the experience of the trade in such cities as Milwaukee and St. Louis, where the raising of publicity funds by assessments based on sales or purchases has already been started. I hope that soon the national publicity committee will adopt this plan.

CORN BORER HEARING

NEW ENGLANDERS PROTEST.

Oppose Corn Borer Quarantine.

Florists and nurserymen of the New England states are making strong opposition to the proposed wholesale extension of the quarantine against the corn borer, which will vitally affect their interests if issued by the Federal Horticultural Board. In preparation for the hearing at Washington, a gathering was held at the State House at Boston, February 18, to form a substantial protest against the projected action of the Federal Horticultural Board. The forbidding of the shipment of cut flowers outside of the state of Massachusetts would, it is anticipated, put many growers out of business.

At the Boston hearing, J. K. M. L. Farquhar, J. Edward Moon, president of the American Association of Nurserymen, W. H. Elliott, W. G. Wyman and others spoke. It was finally decided to send a delegation to the hearing at Washington, consisting of J. K. M. L. Farquhar, Thomas Roland, M. E. Moore, W. H. Elliott, W. N. Craig, N. F. McCarthy, W. G. Wyman and Commissioner of Agriculture Gilbert.

Hearing at Washington.

The Federal Horticultural Board gave a hearing February 24 on the proposed extension of the federal quarantine on account of the corn borer, sixty or more persons being present and about a score making statements, all protesting against any general extension. The majority of those present were market gardeners and greenhouse men from Massachusetts, Connecticut and New York. The general sentiment expressed was that the quarantine, if extended, should take the form of quarantining the individual farm or greenhouse or nursery where the pest existed or where it was suspected and not subject the entire state or community to a drastic quarantine because of infected spots. It was recommended that the quarantine as it now exists should be modified along these lines.

Gude Presents Argument.

William F. Gude, representing the Society of American Florists, made one of the opening statements and the line of argument presented by him was largely followed by the other speakers throughout the hearing, which lasted for several hours. He declared that while growers did not want the board to take any steps that would be detrimental to anyone, they did not want to be unnecessarily restricted by a quarantine for something that does not exist. On behalf of the S. A. F. he recommended, in place of the state quarantine, that each suspected individual nursery, greenhouse or farm should be quarantined. In this way, he said, a man who kept his stock free from pests would not be penalized for the carelessness of one who lets his stock be overrun with pest-breeding weeds.

Mr. Gude directed the attention of the board to the fact that the Massachusetts quarantine extended over the whole state, though it had been shown that the infested area was confined within a small space near Boston. Mr. Gude strongly urged the board not to act in such a way as to place under suspicion large areas, but to adopt a procedure that would aim to control the pest by quarantining and inspection of the individual place of growing.

Not in Connecticut.

Wallace R. Pierson, of Cromwell, Conn., made a strong argument against quarantining the state of Connecticut, dwelling on the fact that it would not be fair to quarantine the whole state when none of the pest has been found there. He said that if the borer was found there he was willing to have a quarantine which would be confined to the individual, but not one of the blanket type.

Mr. Pierson said that in his opinion the board, instead of trying to eradicate the disease as it is now doing, should police the several counties where the borer exists and compel the people there to burn all infested growing stock and also compel them to clean up their places, prohibiting them from sending anything into other territory until the cleaning was made complete.

Others who made statements were J. K. M. L. Farquhar, of Boston; Isaac Hendrickson, of Flowerfield, N. Y., and F. W. Bolgiano, of Washington, D. C.

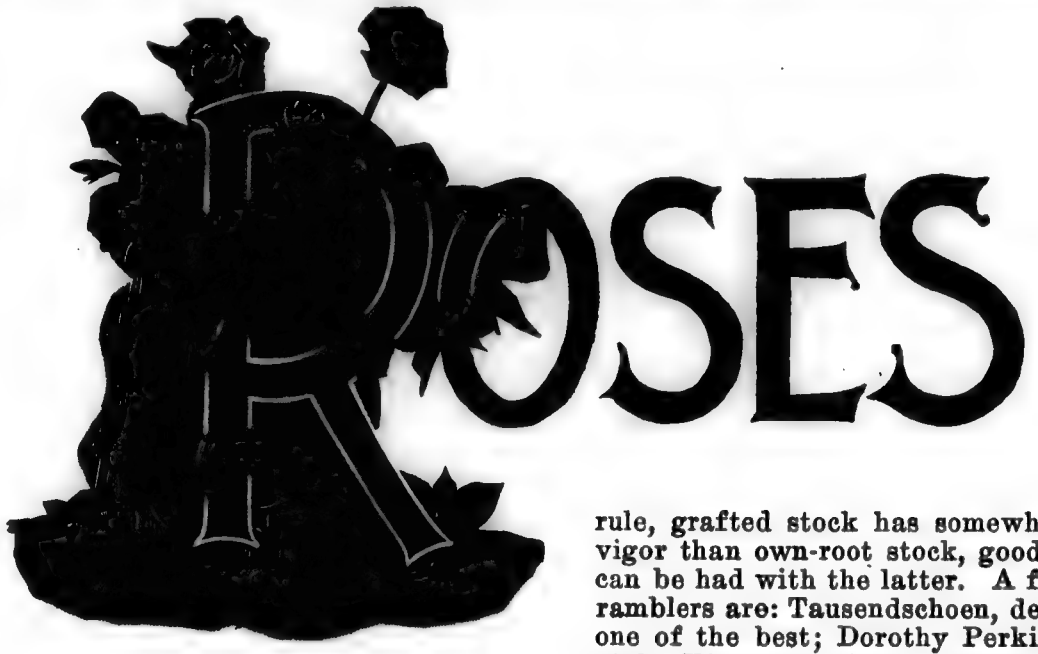
EARLY FROST IS LATE, TOO.

For the last two years L. H. Haney, at Greenfield, Ind., has been making extremely good profits from his bed of Early Frost chrysanthemums, he says. "As well as being Early Frost, it has proved to be a good late frost also," are his words, meaning that it has not been a frost at all, in the slang sense of the word. He has grown this variety late for the last two seasons, with good success each time, obtaining two blooms to each plant. Each plant, Mr. Haney states, will produce two blooms just as well as one, both blooms of the same size and quality. For last Christmas he had a number of good blooms of this variety, despite the fore part of its name.



PROSPERITY UNPARALLELED.

Striking figures revealing how general and widespread was the commercial prosperity of the last year as a result of the buying propensities of the American public appear in the summary of commercial failures for 1919.

"With fewer commercial reverses in the United States than in any year back to 1881, when the total number of firms in business was less than half what it is at present, the 1919 insolvency statement has contributed largely to an annual statistical exhibit that has had no parallel," says Dun's Review. "The industrial and mercantile repression of the early part of last year, which was a time of readjustment and of uncertainty and hesitation, was not sufficiently severe or protracted to make itself manifest in the failure comparisons, and only 6,451 defaults were reported in the twelve months recently ended."

One is the more impressed by the table of figures comparing the annual statistics for the last quarter of a century, covering the number of failures and the assets and liabilities involved:

Year	No.	Assets	Liabilities

AMERICAN ROSE SOCIETY.

Registration of New Variety.

The following rose has been offered for registration and accepted by the rose registration committee of the American Rose Society. Unless objections are received by the secretary within three weeks of this publication, the registration will become permanent.

Name, Silver Star; class, hybrid Wichuraiana; parentage, Silver Moon x Marie Van Houtte. Description—Habit of growth, bushy, but with a climbing tendency; foliage, similar to Silver Moon; vigorous, hardy and disease resistant; flower, large, semi-double, cream white with a mass of golden yellow stamens, quite fragrant; bud, pointed, yellow; twenty-two petals; an everblooming rose with excellent lasting qualities; flowers until October.

Introducer: Frederick R. M. Undritz.
E. A. White, Sec'y.

SEED OF ROSA MULTIFLORA.

Would it be better to sow seed of Rosa multiflora japonica in the fall, without a mulch, so the frost would help germination? E. M.—N. J.

The seeds do better if washed out and sown at once. They are then pretty sure to germinate the first season. If carried over winter dry, they may not start until the second year. Freezing is believed to advance germination. Mulching is only necessary to prevent heaving of the soil. Field mice love rose seeds; therefore be sure your seeds are secure from their attacks. For this reason it is safer to sow in flats in a coldframe or cold greenhouse than outdoors. C. W.

ROSES FOR MEMORIAL DAY.

I should like to know the name of several roses, monthly and ramblers, that are suitable for pot culture to sell Memorial day, with the color of each. Should I get 1-year-old or 2-year-old plants, and grafted or own-root? When should these plants be potted so as to have them in bloom for Memorial day? Is it too late to obtain plants for the coming Memorial day? Also, please give me some cultural directions as to the temperature and method of taking care of them. G. S. F.—Pa.

There is still ample time in which to purchase and pot up dormant field-grown roses for Memorial day trade. Nurserymen specializing in these invariably dig up and pack their stock in storage sheds over winter. Plants 2 years old will be best and while, as a rule, grafted stock has somewhat more vigor than own-root stock, good success can be had with the latter. A few good ramblers are: Tausendschoen, deep pink, one of the best; Dorothy Perkins, shell pink; Hiawatha, single crimson; American Pillar, rosy pink, single. A few good dwarf or polyantha varieties, or baby ramblers, are: Orleans, red; Mme. Norbert Levavasseur, the crimson baby rambler; Mrs. Cutbush, pink; Erna Teschendorff, bright red; Yvonne Rabier, double white.

Pot these as soon as received. Cut out the dead and weak wood, also the ends of the longer canes to make them break more evenly. Place three short stakes in each pot and bend the shoots around them. Place in a cold greenhouse and keep as near dormant as you can until the end of March; then give the plants 50 degrees at night, increasing to 60 degrees as the growth advances. As your Easter stock goes out of the way early this year, you can then give the roses the needed space. Avoid cold drafts, which will cause mildew to start. Careful ventilation will prevent this. When the pots are well filled with roots, you can supply liquid manure twice a week until the flowers show color. If the plants are somewhat advanced for the date needed, place them in a cooler, but not drafty, house to retard them. C. W.

RAMBLER ROSES FOR EASTER.

I have some ramblers, Dorothy Perkins and Excelsa, which I wish to force for Easter. They were received November 17, 1918, and put into 8-inch pots, pruned to eighteen inches and put in a cold pit, and January 1, 1920, they were showing buds nicely. January 4 I put them in a greenhouse with a night temperature of 55 degrees. They are growing well. Should they be staked? Shall I pull off all ground suckers and how much growth should be left? B. C. F.—Va.

A temperature of 55 to 60 degrees at night should bring your roses in for Easter. If you cut them back to eighteen inches, it would be best to use two or three stakes and wind the canes around them. This will make them break better than if staked upright. It would have been better not to cut the canes back so hard. In regard to the shoots starting from the base, they will do your plants no harm, but the number can be reduced to four or five of the best. In the case of any unsold plants, you will then have something to fall back on which will make a fine plant a year later. C. W.

AMONG THE GROWERS

BARR FOR DIVERSIFIED CROPS.

"When Edward Reid, of Philadelphia, gave a talk recently at a meeting of the Lancaster County Florists' Club," observed B. F. Barr, of B. F. Barr & Co., Lancaster, Pa., "among the many good hits made from the standpoint of a wholesaler was the advantage in growing diversified crops, so that both grower and wholesaler may have a more continuous stock, instead of the irregular supply as at present. We see the wisdom of this, even from the viewpoint of a retailer, most strikingly this winter and intend planning next season to follow along the lines advocated by Mr. Reid. Instead of growing so many chrysanthemums, which usually come in crops, we may put in snapdragons, myosotis, calendulas, wallflowers and the like, which, if planted after the early mums are gone, would be flowering during the months of January and February, when roses and carnations are usually off crop following the Christmas cut."

A fine lot of Buddleia asiatica was noted, grown in temperatures of 40 and 50 degrees. A continuous crop is obtained, highly valuable at this time.

Mr. Barr called attention to the bulb forcing pit and remarked that the chief reason, in his mind, why so small an assortment of flowering stock had been grown was the fact that hitherto Dutch bulbs have been preferred because they were easy to grow and reasonable in price, but he feels assured the annuals mentioned above will cut a large figure in the future.

Carnations showed the effect of the long cloudy period by flopping over the first bright day, but will soon recover. This condition is general throughout the carnation belt in this vicinity and heavy cuts will soon be made. Roses are cut back for Easter. Sweet peas are looking fine.

The nursery department is busy propagating stock and drawing plans in the office, showing where much will be planted next spring. Captain Murphy, recently discharged from the army, has charge of this work.

Mr. Barr observed that he was barred from living on the farm for the present. The rush of business and an opportunity to have the homestead remodeled were given as the reasons. W. M.

PLANTS AT PETERSON'S.

J. A. Peterson, of J. A. Peterson & Sons, Cincinnati, O., was going through a batch of orders received for cyclamen seed and observed that the total amounted to 1,000,000 seeds, equal to thirty pounds' weight. It marks a record for the season of 1920 and speaks volumes touching the increasing popularity of this plant, which may safely be termed the most easily grown and best selling in commerce today. A new house built last summer especially to carry plants for seed purposes is at this time a most interesting sight and, as my pilot pointed out with the eye of an expert, selecting the various desirable colors with the beautiful tints and markings, it is easy to see why this strain excels the famous Wandsbek, which is the original type. Three special self colors are Salmon King, white; Christmas Cheer, white with pink eye, and a lovely lavender tint. There are other shades, every one attractive. The rococo type is developing some lovely forms, Fairy Queen, Victoria and a crimson, all large flowers, heavily fringed. Double-formed flowers of the giganteum type are quite frequent; the stems stand up boldly, in contrast to the Belgian type, which is squatty and bushy.

Begonias vie with cyclamens in order of rank. Prominent are Glory of Cincinnati, Melior (considered the handsomest), Mrs. J. A. Peterson and, last but not least, Peerless. The plants were seen that had made the trip to the carnation exhibition in Chicago and a round of other towns. One would never have known they had ever left the bench upon which they were growing; in fact, the hardy character of the plant is established and each year the retailer who handles any to grow on finds the task easier.

French hydrangeas and crimson rambler roses for Easter are receiving attention. The first batch of cyclamens in 2-inch pots, growing in a temperature of 55 degrees at night, will consequently be sturdy and healthy.

Confidence in the future of blooming plants is seen in the fact that pandanus, Adiantum Farleyense and Asplenium Nidus-avis, for which this place has for several years been noted, will be seen no more here, if present conditions continue. Mr. Peterson said, "We believe a great impetus will be given to the sale of such plants as cinerarias and primulas, to be followed with bedding out stock, owing to the dearth of cut flowers and the increasing demand, such as the trade has never seen. Let it come."

Mr. Peterson, accompanied by Mrs. Peterson, are making a trip south, with a short stay in Florida. W. M.

TATE'S TIPS

QUESTION INCREASED DEMAND.

As Cause of Shortage.

I have been called to account in several quarters for the claim I have been making that increased demand is more responsible for the existing shortage of flowers than any other single item. If I am wrong, there certainly must be a way to find it out My object has been to get the growers all over the country to think of this matter and to investigate their local conditions to see if they do not warrant greater production. If their conclusions are otherwise than mine, then there is basis for question of my assertion.

For myself, I have made a deeper investigation of the subject and am still of the same opinion; that is, that if next winter is not to be a repetition of this one, the growers will have to produce more stock. I have made it a point to consult men who are in a position to know the facts in the case and they thoroughly agree with me that, aside from carnations, there are perhaps as many plants being forced for cut blooms this winter as there ever were before.

Is Weather Responsible?

Take the district in which I live, for example. My attention has been called to the fact that several large growers have not the same amount of stock to draw from as formerly. Upon investigation I find that this is even more than offset by additions in other places. This being the fact, the only possible reason for the existing shortage—aside from that which I advance, namely, increased demand—is the unfavorable weather conditions.

We will admit that the weather has been trying. But if there are as many plants being forced, this could not be responsible for the shortage in itself, for not a wholesale house throughout the entire country is doing anything but taking orders, in a great many cases subject to procuring stock, and simply filling the orders on hand.

Take Philadelphia, for instance, a city in which it used to be possible, on the shortest notice, to go into any of the wholesale houses and secure any amount of stock desired. I mean by this, the commission men had the stock on hand; a telegram or telephone message was all that was necessary. Read Phil's news letter in The Review any week and see what the conditions are now.

Chicago and New York and the other centers are in much the same condition. Is it reasonable to suppose that the weather conditions are entirely responsible for this? Conditions were not nearly so bad during the winter of 1917-1918, when the grower was on short coal rations and it was almost impossible to get help. Was there a great difference in the weather conditions then and now?

Know the True Conditions.

In the Saturday Evening Post of February 7 there was a story by J. R. Sprague, entitled "No Statement, No Credit." In it he told of a merchant in a southern city whose affairs became involved. When his creditors tried to straighten them out, they found that he had no books; the reason was that he was afraid to know the true conditions. My advice to growers is to get a copy of that paper and read the article, and see if the growers are not in about the same position regarding increased production.

There is another angle from which to look at this question. We must all admit that flowers are abnormally high. Only recently a prominent retailer told me that he rarely saw one of his old customers, that his present customers were entire strangers. I asked him what had become of the old patrons. His reply was that they could not afford to purchase flowers at the present high prices, since their incomes had been about cut in half by the advanced cost of living. Now, if a slump should come, as in all probability it will, there is going to be another change in flower buyers, but this need not deter any man from producing more stock.

Any business is in an unhealthy condition when the producer only produces a part of the stock required and then sits back and charges prices for it out of all proportion to cost of production. You owe it to yourselves and you owe it to the public to put a supply of stock on the market commensurate with the demand and in this way bring prices to normal. In my estimation there is only one way in which this can be done and that is by the growers making additions to their ranges and growing more stock.

Investigate in your own locality. Look the situation squarely in the face and see for yourself that it is an actual condition and not a theory you are facing. Tate.

AMERICAN GLADIOLUS SOCIETY.

Gladiolus Registration.

The following varieties of gladioli are offered for registration by John Lewis Childs, Flowerfield, N. Y. If no objections are filed prior to March 15, 1920, registration becomes complete:

Conspicuous (Childsii). Beautiful clear cardinal red, with a large white throat. An attractive combination of color. Originated by John Lewis Childs.

White America. Buds and partially expanding flowers, pale flesh 136(1-2). Flower opens snow white, 2(1), with a faint streak of violet mauve, 195(1), or paler in the throat. Has the same strong habit of growth, form of flower and substance as America, of which it is a seedling.

A. C. Beal, Sec'y.

HYACINTHS FOR EASTER.

About December 1 I received a shipment of hyacinths, which were potted and put outside right away. A week or so ago I looked at a few of the pots to see how the roots were growing and found them to be only about one inch long. When should they be brought inside so as to have them in bloom by Easter? What temperature should they have? Do you think that they will have enough roots? E. W.—Mich.

Your hyacinths were received quite late. After potting they should receive a good watering and should never be allowed to become dry. A great many growers imagine that one watering should carry them until they are taken in for forcing; this is a great mistake and many instances of poor results in forcing tulips, narcissi and hyacinths can be traced to lack of moisture in the soil. It is of no use to take in hyacinths or other Dutch bulbs for forcing until the pots are well filled with roots. Easter comes April 4 and there is no absolute necessity of your disturbing the hyacinths until three weeks before that date. That period in a temperature of 50 degrees at night should bring them along in ample time. Do not place in a warm house, or they will become drawn; better alow a month in a cold house and you are then sure to have nice, stocky plants. C. W.

NEMATODES IN CARNATION SOIL.

Do you know of anything that can be mixed with the soil, either in the compost pile or on the benches, to kill nematodes? The soil in which our carnations are growing is badly infested with them and the trouble is cutting our carnation crop in half.

H. B.—Ala.

The Louisiana state experiment station has done a great deal of work in the control of this pest and can probably advise you better than anyone else. Address it at Baton Rouge, La. This trouble seems more prevalent in the southern states, though I am not sure that it is entirely confined to that section. All the cases that have come to my notice have been below the Mason and Dixon line. A. F. J. B.

SPACE FOR CARNATIONS.

How large a space would 5,000 carnation plants take up and how large a greenhouse would be required for that number? How many blooms would each plant produce and what would the receipts and the clear profit be?

M. B.—Can.

It would recuire three benches 5x200 to hold 5,000 carnation plants, setting seven plants across the bench and spacing the rows ten inches apart. These benches would hold 4,682 plants, to be exact. A fair average of blooms per plant would be fifteen, depending entirely on your success as a grower. Their market value would depend on prevailing prices in your market and your profits would depend on the quality of your product and your economy in producing it. My advice to you would be to look about you and see how others are faring. If other growers are growing carnations and selling them profitably in your market, you can probably do the same. A. F. J. B.

CARNATION TEMPERATURE.

We are sending you two branches from our carnation plants, which seem to be affected with some disease. The shoots, you will notice, cramp and curl. Can the plants have suffered from cold? Our night temperature runs from 42 to 55 degrees, but it might have fallen below 42.

In an adjacent service building we keep an automobile truck. Could the gas from the exhaust cause the trouble?

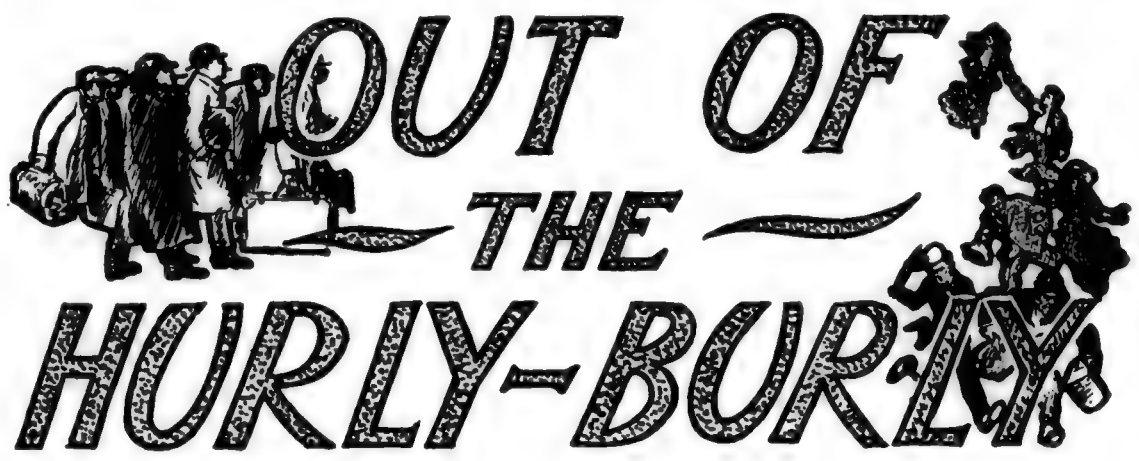
R. G.—Ill.

A range of 42 to 55 degrees is certainly no kind of temperature for carnations. If you cannot control it any better than that, you can expect but little success in your carnation growing. A range of 48 to 52 is enough latitude for anyone.

If those burnt gas fumes enter the greenhouse, they would most certainly affect your crop; the plants would take on a stunted appearance and the blooms would fail to open properly.

A. F. J. B.

ALKALI IN ROSE SOIL.



I am sending you under separate cover some samples of Ophelia rose leaves that are affected with something that has appeared here and there on the plants, which otherwise are growing excellently. There were about two weeks of dark, cloudy weather and since that spell I have noticed the leaves turning this way. I use only rain water to water these plants. Is there anything you can tell me to do to prevent this spreading? I am growing Hoosier Beauty, Ophelia, Columbia and Premier and at this time Ophelia is the only one affected and of it only a few plants, perhaps two dozen in all. B. F. S.—S. D.

Judging from the appearance of the sample leaves, I believe that the soil contains considerable alkali, the effect of which is to a large extent overcome by the use of rain water. However, a strong-growing variety is liable to show the effect of it at this time of year, when during dark weather water is kept off and the plants are allowed to get a little too dry. The strongest plants and those along the south edge of the benches will usually show the effect first. If the plants affected by it are kept a little wetter, they will usually outgrow it. W. J. K.

LETTUCE LEAVES BROWNED.

I am sending you a few lettuce leaves, which have turned brown and withered. This trouble has completely ruined my crop. The crop is nearly ready for market and was looking well until all the plants began to go brown like this; they seem to wither and die. Can you tell me the cause of the trouble? W. J. L.—N. Y.

The scorching on the ends of the foliage is usually due to extremely bright weather following several sunless days and the damage is always the worst where the plants are run at a low temperature, say 40 to 42 degrees at night. It is less marked when a minimum of 45 to 48 degrees is maintained, with a rise to 55 degrees on dark days. Careful ventilation is necessary; if air is neglected a little too long on a bright morning, serious damage will be done.

Decatur, Ill.—Daut Bros. have obtained a permit to build a new greenhouse to cost $19,000.

Wilmington, Del.—The Riverside Greenhouse Co., with a capital of $200,000, was recently incorporated.

East Palestine, O.—J. N. Spanabel & Sons are erecting three short-span houses of the A. Dietsch Co., Chicago. They are to be 14¾x225 feet.

Douglas, Ariz.—M. C. Elliott, who formerly was connected with the La Jolla Floral Gardens, La Jolla, Cal., has started in business at 558 Tenth street.

Handley, Tex.—The Woods Floral Co., of which J. T. Woods is the proprietor, has bought out the business of R. C. Massie and is starting with 10,000 feet of glass and six acres of land. This company has discontinued its business in Dallas, Tex.

Birmingham, Ala.—The McVay Seed & Floral Co., which succeeded the McVay Seed Co., now deals in practically everything usually handled by seedsmen and florists. The officers are: President, R. V. Harris; vice-president, Sudie S. Mobley; secretary and treasurer, L. E. Harris.

Cleburne, Tex.—The Cleburne Floral Co. has given out a contract for the erection of three new greenhouses, which will give this firm about 15,000 feet of glass.

Norfolk, Va.—The Grandy Floral Co. was the victim of robbery, February 9. The thief was caught. He had about $200 worth of florists' equipment at his home.

Miles City, Mont.—The Miles City Greenhouses were incorporated recently by M. H. Wallace, J. L. Wallace and Fillmore Travis, with a capitalization of $10,000.

Evanston, Wyo.—Louis B. Westholder has extended his operations until he now conducts the two largest flower stores in the state of Wyoming, one in this city, the other in Rock Springs. In addition he has branches or agencies in ten other Wyoming towns.

Marion, Ill.—Mrs. Minnie Lilley Copeland, proprietor of the Marion Greenhouses, has contracted with the Lord & Burnham Co. for a 25x117-foot greenhouse. This house will be erected under the superintendence of Lawrence Clary, manager of the range, and will be devoted to carnations.

BELGIAN GLASS

BELGIAN GLASS PRODUCTION.

Increasing at Advanced Prices.

In view of the increasing difficulty in securing glass orders, greenhousemen will read with interest the report on the condition of the Belgian glass industry by Trade Commissioner C. E. Herring, from Brussels, under date of January 12. He stated:

"The revival of the Belgian plate and window-glass industry continues in spite of the shortage of industrial fuel and certain raw materials, notably sodium sulphate, and the transportation difficulties.

"The average increase in labor costs since the armistice has been 150 per cent, taking into consideration the shortening of the hours with the general introduction of the 8-hour day. A general increase of ten per cent was recently granted, and operatives are now claiming further advances of from ten to twenty per cent. The employers agreed to make some further increase February 1. Ordinary blowers (soufflieurs) now receive 700 to 800 francs per month in the Charleroi district, while skilled blowers generally receive 1,000 to 1,100 francs per month, the wages of some even reaching 1,500 francs.

"In the months following the armistice there was a considerable emigration of glass workers to Great Britain, Spain and Switzerland, but this movement has recently diminished and operatives are now beginning to return from abroad. Salaries are said to be higher in the Belgian glass industry than in that of other European countries, although depreciated exchange and the higher cost of living tend to equalize them.

Increased Cost of Raw Materials.

"The high export prices now ruling are largely accounted for by the excessive cost of all raw materials; for instance, coal for the furnaces costs 300 per cent more than before the war, sulphates 200 per cent, limestone 400 per cent, wood 400 per cent, packing straw 100 per cent, and refractory earth and other materials for production approximately 200 per cent. Transportation costs from the Charleroi furnaces to Antwerp have increased about 200 per cent.

"At present all of the eighteen window-glass plants in operation before the war are again producing; in nearly all of them, however, only one furnace is lighted, and others cannot be started until regular fuel supplies are forthcoming.

Export Figures.

"Exports of ordinary window glass, which approximate ninety per cent of the production, rose from 7,152,000 francs in the first seven months of 1919 to 54,359,000 francs at the end of November. In August exports were nearly 3,000,000 francs, in September over 9,000,000, and in October and November 14,685,000 and 20,000,000 francs, respectively. A comparison of export values with pre-war figures is misleading, owing to enormous price increases and exchange depreciation. The rapid revival of the glass industry is better shown by the quantities exported. Thus exports of ordinary window glass in November, 1919, were 13,768 metric tons, as compared with a monthly average in 1913 of 17,130 tons. The November figures are in striking contrast to the monthly average for the entire year of 3,108 tons. In 1913 exports of ordinary window glass averaged 228 francs per metric ton; in August, 1919, it was 1,376 francs, and in November, 1,467 francs per ton. Calculating the franc at par in 1913 and at 9 in November, 1919, the comparative export prices are $44.02 and $163 per ton."

WORMS IN SNAPDRAGONS.

I am having trouble with my snapdragons. I have always had the greatest success with them until last year. I failed to get all the plants I needed for benching and bought some elsewhere. The plants came in fine shape, but did not grow as they should and when blooming time came the spikes would wilt and, in a few days, die. I lost the entire crop, although I tried various sprays and fumigated regularly. This year they were affected the same way. I began to investigate more closely and found a worm in the center of each spike that wilted. So I am breaking out the tops as fast they show any sign of wilting and burning them. What can I do to eliminate this pest? Would you advise throwing out the entire lot and burning them? There is no sign on the outside of the stalks that this worm bores in. The only indications are that the eggs are hatched inside.

C. R. R.—Tex.

I have had no experience with the worm that is troubling your snapdragons. Perhaps readers of The Review in the warmer states have had this pest and could suggest a remedy. I would advise sterilizing your soil, if you can conveniently do so. Purchase seeds from a reliable source, of selected colors, and grow your own plants. Seedlings are more vigorous than plants raised from cuttings and are less subject to disease and much more floriferous.

C. W.

Columbus, O.—C. Franklin Block, who was formerly in business in the Ohio State University section of the city, has been in the navy for the last two years, during which time his goods have been stored. Next fall he plans to return to business under the incorporated name of Fuller & Block, operating in the same part of the city as before.

DAHLIA DATA

BEST DAHLIAS FOR CUTTING.

Please tell me the names of the best ten dahlias for cut flowers.

L. C. B.—Kan.

I find the following varieties of dahlias best from the standpoint of the cut flower trade:

Maude Adams leads them all, bearing a mass of blooms throughout the entire season. It is a snowy white, daintily overlaid with a beautiful live shade of pink. The stems are long and of wiry stiffness and the flower stands shipping and makes up perfectly in design work.

Darlene, a new decorative dahlia, is a close second. It is a more delicate blending of white and pale pink. The earliness of this variety alone makes it a valuable variety; it blooms fully two weeks ahead of all others.

Bianca, the new hybrid cactus dahlia imported three years ago from Holland, proves a leader in the pink varieties. It is followed by Mme. Van den Daele, Frank A. Walker and Delice, all three decoratives of great merit. Mme. Van den Daele is a pale pink, shading to white; Frank A. Walker, a clear lavender pink, and Delice a live clear pink, the most popular florist's dahlia.

In pure white varieties I find Storm King and White Swan the best of the quilled type, and Princess Juliana of the decoratives. Other good nearly white varieties are Mrs. Warnaar and Baron G. de Grancy, both of which are better than the pure white sorts, but have slight tints of lavender pink. They have good stems and are of better formation. Both hail from Holland.

All the above are superior to Sylvia and Nymphæa. J. K. Alexander.

DAHLIAS UNDER GLASS.

Can you give us information relative to growing dahlias inside? Assuming that we take dahlias which were planted outdoors last summer, have had a rest since September and have been placed in a greenhouse and allowed to become cool, say at 45 to 50 degrees, will the flowers be plentiful enough to make it a paying proposition? When, if planted now, would they come into bloom? K. & S.—Wis.

Dahlias such as you have will start all right in a temperature of 45 to 50 degrees if watered carefully, but they will do better if kept 10 degrees warmer than this until growth is well started. Having planted them under glass on a few occasions and knowing others who have also given them a trial, I cannot recommend them for a greenhouse crop and I am afraid you would find them unprofitable. Dahlias are at their best outdoors when nights begin to get cool. When started in winter under glass they grow freely enough, but the steadily increasing temperature favors growth of foliage more than flowers and they flower disappointingly. Furthermore, even if they flowered freely, I doubt if you could find a market for them at profitable prices. C. W.

Legislation and Legal Decisions

SEIZURE OF FUEL.

Right of Railroads.

An opinion of the United States District court for the southern district of Ohio defines the right of a railway company to seize coal shipments, as against a third person to whom the shipper intended to make delivery. The decision answers questions concerning the right of a coal consumer to redress against a railway company which has intercepted fuel consigned to the former.

In the Ohio case, Springfield Light, Heat & Power Co. vs. Norfolk & Western Railway Co., 260 Federal Reporter, 254, it is decided that where a railway company accepts a shipment of coal designed for delivery to the shipper's customer, the company cannot seize the coal without becoming liable for damages for wrongful conversion.

But it is held that where a shipping coal operator is in default under a contract to furnish the railway company's fuel requirements, the company may refuse to accept for transportation coal loaded on its cars for delivery to the company's intended customer and retain the fuel for application on its contract with the operator.

S.

CARE IN WORDING CONTRACTS.

"How Forcible Are Right Words!"

One of the targets at which writers have often shot their arrows is the befogging use of words. The Bible declares that "he that hath knowledge spareth his words," and Shakespeare has commended "men of few words" as "the best men."

It is peculiarly fitting that brevity be used in business contracts, but there is a general tendency to too much brevity. It should not be forgotten that little harm can result from prolixity in the wording of an agreement, whereas brevity carried to the extent of omitting some material condition may prove economy in ink at the expense of much money. "A word spoken in due season, how good it is!"

A practical example of what may be expected where important business contracts are made without a full statement of all incidental terms and conditions is to be found in a case recently before the Iowa Supreme court. In this case, suit was brought to recover the purchase price of certain goods sold by plaintiff to defendant, although the only real disagreement between the parties concerned the question as to whether the defendant buyer was entitled to deduct from the price an amount paid by him to cover freight charges.

Who Shall Pay the Freight?

The litigation was made possible by the failure of the parties to state in their contract anything indicating their understanding as to where delivery of the goods was to be made or as to who should bear the expense of transportation. The controversy would have been avoided, in all probability, had the contract borne the simple words, "f. o. b. _____," naming either the shipping point or the destination.

In the absence of any expressed agreement, the defendant relied on a claimed custom in the particular trade under which he was entitled to be reimbursed for the freight charges, and the Supreme court sustains him in this position, saying:

"A party dealing in a trade market is presumed to know all customs of that market bearing upon the transactions in question. Parties who are engaged in a particular trade or business or accustomed to deal with those engaged in a particular business may be presumed to have knowledge of the uniform course of that business, and one party may be bound thereby though ignorant, unless it appear that the other party knew he was ignorant."

A General Law and a Trade Custom.

In this case the seller argued that the case should be governed by the general rule of law that where nothing is said as to where delivery is to be made to a buyer of goods shipped to him, delivery to the carrying railway company is a constructive delivery to him, especially where he has given routing instructions. The court recognized the soundness of this rule, but held that "while for some purposes delivery to the designated carrier would become delivery to the buyer, this is not so with reference to which party is to pay freight. On that question, a direction to deliver to a certain carrier for shipment is not conclusive against the buyer." In other words, a mutual intention that delivery should be made to the buyer at the place of shipping, merely inferred from failure to require the seller to deliver at the destination, will not outweigh a proven trade custom under which the buyer is entitled to be reimbursed for freight paid where nothing has been said as to who would pay such charges. TRADE POETS

"SAY IT WITH FLOWERS."

Your neighbors have got a brand-new boy—
  As welcome as April showers.
You want to wish them lots of joy;
  So "Say It with Flowers."

Perhaps upon St. Valentine's day,
  To that dear girl of ours,
There's something sweet we wish to say.
  We'll "Say It with Flowers."

On Christmas and the glad New Year,
  When perhaps the storm cloud lowers,
We want to send our friends good cheer.
  We'll "Say It with Flowers."

When sickness comes, as it surely will,
  With long and dreary hours,
You want to cheer the friend who's ill;
  Just "Say It with Flowers."

When death has called away a friend—
  God's ways are not like ours—
We would our sympathy extend;

J. Wesley Patterson.

"SAY IT WITH FLOWERS."

"Say It with Flowers" in the gladsome spring,
When youth is gay and the birds first sing.
  "Say It with Flowers."
  Tulips with their colors bright
  And daffodils will give delight.
Then pheasant's eye, freesias and hyacinths, too,
Of the many that help are a chosen few,
  To "Say It with Flowers."

"Say It with Flowers" in summer's hot days;
Remember those whom illness dismays.
  "Say It with Flowers."
  Fill the bare rooms
  Of the sick ones with blooms.
Make gardens inside as well as outdoors;
Whether it rains or whether it pours,
  "Say It with Flowers."

"Say It with Flowers" in the chill autumn,
The season that brings the chrysanthemum;
  "Say It with Flowers."
  If grateful and glad,
  Or even if sad,
You surely will find flowers ready to tell
What in no other way could be said quite so well.
  "Say It with Flowers."

"Say It with Flowers" in winter's gay season,
When social affairs make demand beyond reason.
  "Say It with Flowers."
  When Nature's asleep,
  Then men's efforts keep
The world supplied with beautiful roses,
With violets, carnations and other sweet posies.
  "Say It with Flowers."

H. Hill.

"SAY IT WITH FLOWERS."

"Say It with Flowers"—what a beautiful thought!
From a wonderful truth this term was wrought.
No other message so fitting and grand
As a bunch of flowers from a tender hand.

When the world seems dark and cold and blue,
When you are lonely, with nothing to do,
When you're in sorrow, pain and grief,
Just a bouquet of flowers will bring relief.

Hearts that are hardened, calloused and sour
Quickly will soften at the sight of a flower.
No other tribute is so fitting and brave
As a wreath of flowers for a dear friend's grave.

Flowers are in style every day of the year;
They drive away sadness, bring comfort and cheer.
Flowers are the great inspiration today
To help struggling mortals upon their hard way.

Send flowers to the prison or the sick one's room;
They spread rays of sunshine through darkness and gloom.
No other token such a welcome will meet
As a bunch of gay flowers, all pretty and sweet.

It's flowers which we love so well in the spring;
They make our hearts glad and inspire us to sing.
There's no happier place to spend many hours
Than in a fine garden of beautiful flowers.

It is flowers about which the poets preach,
For which mortals yearn and angels reach.
It's the flowers along life's dreary way
That make life worth living from day to day.

Flowers lend a touch of love's warm glow
To all things held dear in this life below.
From the shores of the sea to the high mountain stream,
The splendor of flowers stands out supreme.

The Creator's head would bow down in shame,
If the name of the flower we should ever defame,
For the emblem of all truth, love and power
Is surely the fragrant and beautiful flower.

Flowers are first welcome when on life we start,
The great token of grief when from it we part.
Much happier would be this old world of ours
If all who would speak would "Say It with Flowers."

RESULTS.
We give them. You get them.
We both have them.

EPIDEMICS seem to be on the wane and funeral work is lessening.

BRIGHTER weather in nearly all sections has created brighter expectations as to the supply of cut flowers.

THE S. A. F. advertising for St. Valentine's day was so successful that florists are asking for more for other holidays.

AND now the F. T. D. follows in the footsteps of the S. A. F. by getting out some handsome folders for its members at low cost.

PROMPT collections are particularly important to small florists just now, for a limited capital will not go so far with high prices.

THE trade will watch the restoration of private operation of the railroads with much interest, in the hope of better service ere long.

THERE are in the United States 7,459,607 automobiles, or one for every 13.8 persons—evidence of prosperity and propaganda for billboards.

ASK customers if they wish to pay when they make purchases, instead of merely charging without a word. You'll find a larger amount in the cash drawer if you do.

STRANGE as it may seem, young rose stock, while high in price because of costs, is much easier to obtain than last year. This is especially true of Russell and Columbia.

WITH Easter April 4, there will be almost two months between the big spring flower festival and Memorial day, the peak of the bedding-out season. It gives the plantsmen a chance.

THE officers of the national flower growers' association will meet during the international flower show at New York to draft plans for organization, to be perfected at Cleveland in August.

THOSE who send material to be published in the reading columns of The Review should mail it so as to reach this office Thursday, Friday or Saturday when possible. The large size of the paper makes it impossible to handle any but important news copy Monday and Tuesday.

IF the F. H. B. adds a few more quarantines, may not the pile of edicts become so heavy as to topple of its own weight?

No more shortage of cut flowers is likely this season. Every florist should do his part to let the public know the scarcity is over and that prices are down.

GLASS manufacturers are not so much concerned with getting prices as they are with production. Large demand and small labor supply are the principal factors.

FLOWER stores that were begun as a side-line by business men who had more profits than they wished to invest in their regular enterprises have in many cases grown so rapidly that they now overshadow their owners' original occupations.

THE florists' business is not the only one in which activity has subsided in the last two or three weeks. The pace at which general business has been going this winter was too swift to be maintained. In many lines production now seems to be overtaking demand.

EXHIBITED at the January show of the Royal Horticultural Society, London, England, Carnation Laddie, shown by Carl Engelmann, of Saffron Walden, England, who was in this country at the time, was an object of much interest and praise, being characterized as a "great carnation."

BOXBOARD of the quality used in cut flower boxes continues among the scarce items. Most mills decline new business and many are rationing their regular customers. Prices are higher than ever before and, naturally, the florist must pay more for his boxes. The reason assigned for the shortage of boxboard is the rise in the cost of wood packing cases, which has turned many shippers to the use of corrugated fiberboard containers.

WHO KNOWS THIS PLANT?

Several years ago I had a plant that looked like a salvia, but was a lighter green in color, with a strong odor of pineapple. It had a small red salvia-like bloom. We knew it by the name of Salvia robusta. It grew about four feet high. I have looked in many catalogues, but cannot find anything like it listed. Can you give me the name of it from this description? I should like to get some plants of it. J. M.

CO-OPERATIVE CAMPAIGNS.

The satisfaction produced in the cities where coöperative advertising campaigns have been undertaken speaks for their success louder than any praise. From these cities the example has spread to other communities. Chicago will begin a plan similar to Milwaukee's March 1. Philadelphia and Baltimore are making efforts to establish such a project. In other localities the subject has been discussed and action will follow in time.

To acquaint those discussing this subject with its various angles and problems, The Review presents to its readers this week stories of the three campaigns whose success has made them talked of among the trade all over the country. These articles are contributed by the men who are leading in the work of carrying on these campaigns in these three communities. They are intimate and accurate accounts of how each of these cities worked out its particular problems to accomplish coöperative advertising and how the campaigns are carried on. Whether the prospect of your community's establishing such a campaign is near or remote, you should save these articles to guide its formation when the time comes, for this movement will go marching on.

A MONTH AWAY.

By the time this issue of The Review is in the hands of its readers, the big holiday of the florists will be only a month away. So rapid an approach of Easter requires thought and considerable of it. The ordering of supplies cannot be left to the last moment; it is not a commendable policy at any time and under present conditions it is wellnigh fatal. Last-minute orders are nerve-racking to sender and recipient alike and are rarely without resulting dissatisfaction. Preparation made adequately beforehand leaves the florist ready to handle the rush when it comes. He has his hands full when things run at their best. He should take pains beforehand to have things no worse to start with.

This year such forethought is needed if the trade is to take advantage of the great business the holiday promises to bring. Indications are for sales that will surpass everything the trade has known. The only handicaps will be shortage of stock and shortage of help. The former cannot be obviated under present conditions. The latter can be somewhat alleviated by forethought and preparation. One must begin on that now, since Easter is only a month away.

BRIEF ANSWERS.

W. S., Ind.—You cannot flower for Memorial day any market crop from seed planted at the beginning of March. Your best chance would be to buy snapdragon plants.

E. H., Ont.—Consult your market; the man who is to handle your output is the one to advise what to grow.

BRANCH OUT.

Any florist who is not satisfied with the limitations of a local retail trade may go as far as he likes under present business conditions, merely by growing good stock of any kind that is salable to other florists. Having produced the stock, the rest is simple. Like this:

The first insertion sold all the stock within a few days. When we have something more to offer you can count on us to advertise in The Review.—Roy E. Shelly, The Edgewater Farm, Sterling, Ill., February 14, 1920.

We sure get benefits from The Review, as we have sold out on geraniums, primulas, callas and Sprengeri through our Classified ads.—Fairview Gardens, Elnora, Ind., February 10, 1920.

I am just swamped with orders from my Classified ad in The Review. They come by mail and telegraph. Orders for 57,000 in five days. When we catch up I will notify you.—A. Morlander, Minneapolis Nursery, Minneapolis, Minn., February 14, 1920.

Cut out our ad of greens. It sure has brought results. Thanks.—W. M. Woodruff & Son, Lowgap, N. C., February 10, 1920.

The Classified ad got rid of the other rose plants in a hurry.—Wallace Paterson, The Rosemont Gardens, Montgomery, Ala., February 10, 1920.

Your Classified ads sold me out of gladiolus bulbs. Thank you.—E. Roush, Lima, O., February 15, 1920.

If you hear a man complain of the cost of advertising you can be pretty certain he spends a good bit of money elsewhere than in The Review.

OBITUARY

Nathan Dickinson.

Nathan Dickinson, former treasurer of the Albert Dickinson Seed Co., Chicago, died Sunday, February 22, at Lake Geneva, Wis. Mr. Dickinson was 62 years old. He had been connected with the seed concern until ill health forced his resignation as treasurer in 1913. His widow, two children, and two brothers, Albert and Charles, survive him.

Mrs. Alice L. Winter.

Mrs. Alice L. Winter, wife of Herman Winter, proprietor of the Winter Floral Co., Charleston, W. Va., died in a local hospital, Saturday afternoon, February 21, after a long illness of a complication of diseases. She was 50 years of age. Funeral services were held at West Charleston and the remains afterward taken to Newcastle, Ind., for burial. Mrs. Winter is survived by her husband and one son, John Winter, of Charleston.

Charles Wiegel.

Charles Wiegel, an old-time florist of Leonard street, Frankford, Philadelphia, died February 19 after only a few days' illness of influenza. For nearly half a century Mr. Wiegel had done a retail business in northeastern Philadelphia. Phil.

J. M. Fontaine.

J. M. Fontaine, a nurseryman residing near Linden, Cal., on the Calaveral river, died Friday, February 13, at the Dameron hospital at Stockton, Cal., of pneumonia. He was only sick two days and was removed to Stockton, where everything known to medical science was done to try to save him.

Mr. Fontaine leaves a wife and five little children to mourn his loss.

PITTSBURGH, PA.

The Market.

"The largest ever" was the unanimous verdict of both retailers and wholesalers in reporting the St. Valentine's day business, which, unfortunately, included an exceptional amount of funeral as well as holiday work. Violets were plentiful, but there was practically no call for them until it became necessary to reduce the price, which had gone up to $3, back to the original $2 per hundred. Carnations were the only flowers which increased beyond the holiday price, 12 and 15 cents apiece being asked. There were not enough American Beauty roses to supply the heavy demands. Meanwhile the shortage has continued, the embargo caused by snow in the east helping to make a bad matter worse. Fortunately, sweet peas are now particularly good and in fair supply.

Club Meeting.

The February meeting of the Pittsburgh Florists' and Gardeners' Club, Tuesday, February 3, in the lecture hall of the North Side Carnegie library, was an exceptionally interesting session. Dr. Otto C. Jennings, curator of the Carnegie Institute Museum, contributed a most interesting illustrated lecture on "Florida in Midwinter." Before the lecture, the annual business meeting and election of officers was held. The officers are: President, John Barnet; vice-president, De Forest W. Ludwig; secretary and treasurer, Carl Becherer. Mr. Barnet is superintendent of J. Denniston Lyons' Sewickley Heights estate and is one of the foremost private gardeners of western Pennsylvania.

Various Notes.

The marriage of Miss Marion Langhans, the only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Theodore P. Langhans, to Robert L. Thompson, Jr., of Ben Avon, was solemnized Tuesday evening, February 17. Mr. Langhans gave his daughter away, while the son, Oliver H. Langhans, was one of the ushers. The bride's bouquet was of white orchids, valley and lilacs caught with silver ribbon. Both the matron and the maid of honor carried bouquets of white lilacs, heather, pussy willow and pink roses tied with blue ribbons. One of the flower girls carried an old-fashioned nosegay and the other a wicker basket of rose petals. A centerpiece of spring flowers in the Dresden tints was used on the bridal table. The Thompsons are spending their honeymoon in Cuba.

Elmer E. Freeland and John W. Jones have leased the building on the corner of Liberty and Ferry streets, just opposite the Wabash railway station. They intend to have their nursery and landscape designing headquarters there. These gentlemen were formerly with the Pittsburgh Tree Co. and started for themselves the first of the year, but owing to the scarcity of office quarters they have been located with the Pittsburgh Florists' Supply Co. at 618 Duquesne way.

Harvey C. Sheaff is again able to return to business, following a week's detention at his home with the flu.

Mrs. E. A. Williams has just lost one of her most faithful employees, Mrs. Jennie Gunst, who died Thursday, February 19, following a three weeks' attack of pneumonia. Mrs. Gunst, who was about 42 years of age, had been in the employ of Mrs. Williams for over twenty years.

Spiro Kaps, manager of the East Liberty station's corridor flower shop, left Saturday, February 21, for a two weeks' visit to his former home in Minneapolis, Minn., with his brother, Peter Kaps.

John Harris, manager of Harris Bros., has returned to business after two weeks' detention at his home with an attack of the grip.

The I. W. Scott Seed Co. has moved to more commodious quarters at 500 Liberty avenue and 113 Diamond street.

The E. C. Ludwig Floral Co. has an exceptionally fine showing of calla lilies and spring flowers grown at the greenhouses at Ludwig station, near Mars, Pa. Edward Earl Ludwig, the junior member of the firm, has been confined to his home with a severe cold for the last ten days.

A. G. Keroes was in the city last week, calling in the interest of the Climax Manufacturing Co., of Castorland, N. Y. Milton Selinka was also a recent visitor, representing Schloss Bros., New York.

John McClements has returned to business following several weeks' illness with influenza. Michael Steiner and John Jedlico, salesmen for the firm of Randolph & McClements, are ill with the same disease.

William M. Turner, of Penn avenue, Wilkinsburg, has been a patient in the city Homeopathic hospital for the last fortnight. His condition, which was at first alarming, is reported as being favorable. Mr. Turner's head salesman, William R. Shackleford, is still confined to his home.

Much anxiety is felt among the friends of Stephen W. Galchek, the well known floral wire frame designer, of 231 Diamond street, who has been missing since January 27. It is feared that he may have been murdered. The daily papers are trying to solve the mystery and have advanced the theory that he might be held for ransom. Mr. Galchek is a native of Austria and came to this country about sixteen years ago.

CHICAGO.

The Market.

At last the turn has come. After practically two months of unprecedented demand and comparative scarcity of stock, the Chicago market again is in position to fill all orders.

Early last week it was apparent that production was catching up with demand, or that demand was subsiding toward the point where production would be adequate, but the real change did not come until February 20. Up to that time orders were sufficient to consume all the flowers that came to market, without affecting prices. Friday, one of the best of shipping days, proved a surprise because, although mountains of boxes were piled up at the express company's concentrating station, the supply for the first time in many weeks exceeded the demand and prices were attacked.

This week opened with an overstocked market. Part of the trouble grew out of the fact that there was no delivery of mail. Monday morning's mail is the heaviest of the week. Sunday was Washington's birthday and the postoffice elected to observe Monday as a holiday without giving adequate notice to business interests. How the administration can hope for the support of business houses while treating their interests with such little regard is past comprehension. The result in this case was that the mail orders intended to reach the market Monday, for shipment that day, did not reach the wholesalers until Tuesday. Application at the postoffice failed to obtain mail. Consequently the only shipping from Chicago February 23 was on standing orders or on telegrams. Many of the wholesalers wired their regular customers advising them to repeat by wire any orders mailed Saturday or Sunday, but there were many letters which did not arrive until too late for the purpose for which they were intended. As city business also was quiet, this week started with the first accumulation of stock Chicago has seen since the chrysanthemums cleared up.

The time has come again when the importance of shipping trade is thoroughly apparent. The first houses feeling the necessity of cutting prices were those which depend principally on local buyers. For the last two months everybody has been busy, but last week the principal activity was in the houses that cater specially to the shipping demand and the probability is that they will have the greatest measure of prosperity from now until the end of the season. Last week's easing of the market probably was due to two causes, chief of which was the passing of the epidemic of influenza. The arrival of Lent, while it had some effect, was of secondary importance and no doubt its influence will gradually subside. The best observers expect this week to be rather quiet, with a gradual increase in demand thereafter.

Practically anything retailers want can now be had in Chicago. If there is any exception it is short roses. The demand for these is not nearly so strong as it was while the epidemic lasted, but the price of short roses still is stronger than the prices of the better grades. Any retailer who can use first-class stock can get it at prices which seem moderate by comparison with what the stock has been bringing. Carnations, too, are easier. The prediction is made in many quarters that the supply of carnations this spring will be the largest the Chicago market ever has handled. Sweet peas are much more plentiful than they were. There is a marked increase in the supply of jonquils. A few daffodils are seen. There are few early tulips, but Darwins are beginning to appear. Cattleyas, valley and violets are abundant. Taking the market as a whole, stock seldom has been of better quality than now.

Big Business.

The Chicago market has had two months of the biggest business in the history of the trade. From the middle of December to the middle of February there was scarcely a day on which the demand did not exceed the supply. Prices advanced until Christmas levels seemed to many to be the limit of what the public could stand, but the strength of the demand in January carried prices still higher on many items. There was a little decline early in February, but prices advanced again as St. Valentine's day approached. There are numerous growers and wholesalers who took in more money in January than in December. Still more unusual, many houses report that they had taken in more money in February, some days before the end of the month, than in either December or January. In the last four months and a half several houses report sales totals equal to the entire season of 1917-18.

Nor is the big business at an end. While there has been a slight recession in the demand since Lent began, it is apparent that lower prices, as soon as their existence becomes generally known, will greatly accelerate the demand. February 23 and 24 the shipping trade was extremely heavy by comparison with the city demand and there is every reason to believe that March, April, May and June will see a tremendous shipping business in the Chicago market.

Campaign Starts Next Week.

Monday, March 1, will be the date of the inauguration of Chicago's coöperative advertising campaign. The directors spent a whole afternoon's session at the Hotel Randolph February 24 straightening out the kinks preparatory to the start of the undertaking. The automobile campaign February 20 accomplished a great deal, five automobile loads of persuasive advocates scouring the sections of the city where the signatures were not progressing so rapidly as in the others. Fifty retailers have been added to the list since the last meeting of the Allied Florists' Association and the total names in Secretary Swenson's hands number nearly 350. It is expected that seventy-five per cent of the trade in Chicago and vicinity will be members of the association ere March 1.

The next meeting of the Allied Florists' Association will be held Tuesday evening, March 2, at 8 o'clock. Several features are listed for the occasion which are expected to bring out a big crowd. Albert Pochelon, secretary of the F. T. D., will be here from Detroit, to address the meeting in his usual stirring way. Advertising films now being prepared for the S. A. F. campaign will also be exhibited for the first time. It is expected the attendance of florists at the Hotel Randolph on that night will equal the record set at the opening mass meeting at which the coöperative movement was launched.

At the directors' meeting February 24 Hilmer V. Swenson was chosen secretary of the organization to direct the advertising work. In order to begin as soon as possible, the directors present advanced sufficient funds to make available $1,500 for immediate expenditure. The first publicity matter was prepared for appearance in the Tribune Friday, February 27, occupying one-half page.

Chicago to Have Local No. 1.

If the plan of J. F. Ammann to organize the proposed national flower growers' association in locals is effected, the Commercial Flower Growers of Chicago will form Local No. 1. At the meeting at the Hotel Randolph Thursday afternoon, February 19, a motion was passed to apply for the charter, which Mr. Ammann had stated in a letter to W. J. Keimel would bear the first number, since the national body was organized in Chicago and encouraged by the Chicago growers' association, which has an extraordinarily successful record for its short existence. A statement of the aims and object of the national organization was read, from a letter of Wallace R. Pierson, of Cromwell, Conn., and Secretary Otto Amling

The attendance at the meeting was small and it was voted to change the time of meeting to the evening, beginning next month. New members elected were as follows: Sam J. Pearce, 5711 Higgins avenue; Dramm Greenhouses, Inc., Elmhurst; H. A. Bauske, 5301 North Western avenue; Fred C. Meyer & Co., Addison; Batavia Greenhouse Co., Batavia; Joseph Schuler, Hoopeston; Walter A. Amling Co., Pana; Emil Buettner, Park Ridge; Cornelius Kellen, Morton Grove.

Lundin Joins Weiss et al.

Charles G. Anderson, a retired butcher, and David E. Lundin, both residents of Hinsdale, where the latter has been for thirteen years a rose grower for Bassett & Washburn, have bought the shares of James Spandikow in the Weiss-Spandikow Co., of Maywood, and Mr. Lundin will take charge of the growing end of the business, which is shortly to be doubled in size by the erection of two Lord & Burnham steel houses, 70x400.

Various Notes.

The growth of the business of the E. C. Amling Co., which bids fair to considerably exceed a million dollars of cut flowers alone this year, has resulted in a decision to use the big basement under the store at 169 to 175 North Wabash avenue. The basement heretofore has been sublet, but an inside stairway and an electric elevator both George V. Wienhoeber has succumbed. Among the first of florists to adopt the automobile for delivery, he has steadfastly refused to buy a pleasure car, but his last week's purchases included a Packard.

The Chicago Flower Growers' Association reports having received and shipped 110 out-of-town orders in one day during February. The shipping alone up to February 20 had exceeded any entire month's business in the previous records of the concern, including December with its splendid Christmas.

Albert Cole spent February 22 in Cleveland.

Theodore Vogel, for many years with W. J. Smyth, left February 25 with the intention of making his home at Los Angeles. Recent additions to Mr. Smyth's staff are Bernard J. Sherman, who recently sold his north side store to Herbert Youngquist and Arthur Nelson, and Miss Nungesser, daughter of Charles E. Nungesser, a florist at Manistee, Mich. Arthur Weatherwax went to Defiance, O., last week to deliver a casket cover turned out at the Smyth store, and to arrange the flowers at a funeral.

Major Frederick Kensel, who has just left the Marine Corps, in which he had been an officer since graduating from West Point, will represent the A. L. Randall Co. in Milwaukee. Major Kensel has traveled widely in Europe, South America and the Orient and is regarded as well suited to the company's work.

John Borachazka, who sold his greenhouses in Rogers Park to Albert Gullett a year and a half ago, is in the city again after a short stay in Minneapolis. He contemplates buying or renting a small range in the vicinity.

George Way, of the Duro Paper Products Co., is traveling in the west.

Our trade slogan is getting in its work, as witness the following paragraph clipped from the Chicago Tribune: "'Say it with flowers.' 'Affable Louie' Choromokos, for seventeen years proprietor of the Athenia café, 1521 North Clark street, has become a florist at Wilson avenue and Broadway. He sold the saloon to George Salos, an optimistic employee."

Ernest Knecht, for some time a member of the staff of John T. Muir, is laid up with inflammatory rheumatism. A recent addition to the force is Mrs. Homer Knablet, who has removed to Chicago from Clinton, Ind., where she has been employed by Herman G. Hershey, the well known florist.

February 27 is the day on which the desk of C. L. Washburn is specially decorated. His employees and friends have said it with flowers on his anniversary these many years. Mr. Washburn is 62. He and W. J. Smyth both came to Chicago from Albany, N. Y.

Wm. Beyer, who has charge of Alois Frey's greenhouses at Crown Point, has the place in first-class condition and is upholding tradition in the matter of turning out unusually well grown Mrs. Ward carnations.

The friends of A. C. Kohlbrand, of the E. C. Amling Co., make much of the gentleman's birthday anniversary. He

The Market.

This city has not yet recovered from the severe snow storms that have been intermittent for the last three weeks. The highways are still buried beneath a foot or more of frozen ice and snow and traffic with the suburban sections has not returned to normal.

Funeral work continues brisk and an unusual number of small social functions have maintained a demand that has been far in excess of the supply.

Horticultural Society.

Announcement was made at the regular monthly meeting of the Rhode Island Horticultural Society, Wednesday, February 18, that the association had become affiliated with the American Sweet Pea Society. There was one of the largest attendances in many months, attracted by the announcement that J. K. M. L. Farquhar, of Boston, was to address the society. The subject of his talk, which was illustrated by stereopticon views, was "English Gardens."

Gardenias

Until the end of the season we will be very strong on good Gardenias. The flowers that we handle are the best, as good as any offered elsewhere.

We represent the largest Gardenia growers in this section. For that reason we are in a position to take care of your requirements and fill your orders to your satisfaction at the lowest market price. Place a regular order with us for your weekly requirements.

There is a good supply of the following items:

Double Violets
Single Violets
Gardenias
Orchids

PHILADELPHIA.

The Market.

The change, for so long expected, is slowly coming. The market is easier, not in carnations or in roses as yet; that will come later. Violets, calendulas, daffodils and sweet peas lead in the decline. The supply is a little larger; the demand is slightly less. Even so, the market is brisk at high prices. The weather has been so unfavorable that production increases slowly. The arrival of Lent has had little effect on the demand. Good judges agree that it is not Lent that counts now; it is the fact that it comes about the time when production naturally increases with the approach of spring. As Easter will be early this year, Lent comes ahead of the first touch of early spring sunshine. The special feature of the market is the value of flowers for the sick room and for use in designs.

Easter Lilies.

As Easter comes on the first Sunday in April, this coming month, March, will be all-important in securing Easter plants. As the lily is the most uncertain of the leading Easter plants, a word on the lily may be of interest. Lilies, taking the whole country into consideration, will not be equal to the demand. From present appearances, Philadelphia will have more lilies than any other place in the country. The lilies here promise to be fine. They will be well timed. Today, with Easter six weeks ahead, some plants are just showing bud. It is probable that Philadelphia can supply the shortage in lilies in the territory within its shipping distance. While the price is high, it will not be so high as last season.

What to Grow.

Carnations and roses have always been the mainstay of the Philadelphia cut flower market, which supplies an immense territory lying chiefly south and west. The carnations have been for the most part grown in Chester and Lancaster counties, with a few notable exceptions. The roses have been, for the most part, grown in Delaware and Montgomery counties, with a few important exceptions. There are indications today that the growers of carnations in Lancaster and Chester counties are preparing to turn their attention from the growing of carnations to the growing of roses. With a view to finding out the probable effect of this change, should it become general, Arthur A. Niessen was asked a few questions on the subpect:

First, can carnation growers of Lancaster and Chester counties produce good roses?

To this Mr. Niessen replied confidently that they could.

Second, would the change be advisable?

On this point Mr. Niessen was doubtful. He said that six or seven years ago such a change might have been good policy, but that now conditions were entirely different. Carnations are bringing excellent prices and they are likely to continue tc do so. The grower who has been through the bad years with carnations ought not lightly to throw away the probable success of the good years likely to come.

There is large, steady shipping demand for carnations, particularly in the south, which it has taken years to build up. Whether this demand could be changed to roses or something else is uncertain. Leo Niessen added to what his brother had said that he knew of a carnation grower whose returns this month exceeded those of any of the rose growers.

A Tribute to Mr. Habermehl.

The following words were not intended for publication. The thought that they would appear in print never entered the speaker's mind, beyond the shadow of a doubt. Yet they are published because it is right that they should be published in recognition of worth and as an inspiration to those who mean to do their best. The speaker is Robert Craig. "You know Van and I usually visit the stores in the evening just before Christmas and just before Easter. We dropped in at the Bellevue on the night of December 23. Ed Habermehl was there. He had four big decorations on his hands, one at the Manufacturers' Club, two at the Bellevue and Mr. Powell Evans' large ball. He spent half an hour with us, showed us the decorations, talked about them as quietly as though he had nothing on his mind. It was wonderful. Did you know that Ed Habermehl was always the last man to leave a job? No matter if he had worked on it the whole night before, he always saw that everything was completed before he left. Ed Habermehl is a great loss to the business."

The High Prices.

"The high prices of flowers have nothing whatever to do with the high prices of other things." This is Edward Reid's clear, well defined view. "It is fortunate for the growers that they came when they did, for it will enable them to get by. But they were two entirely separate things, each distinct from the other. The high cost of flowers is due to a short supply and an unusual demand, caused mainly by sickness. Had it not been for this short supply and for this unusual demand, prices would not have been

Henry F. Michell returned from Summerville, S. C., February 20, in splendid shape for the coming season.

W. B. Girvin will erect one rose house, 60x218 feet, on his place near Lancaster. Mr. Girvin's plan is to build a second house of the same size, also for roses, in 1921. These two houses put end to end will appear, when completed, as one house, 60x436 feet.

Alexander McIlwee spoke at the February meeting of the Germantown Horticultural Society. Mr. McIlwee, who is lanscape gardener of Fairmount park, talked chiefly on the exhibits. There were six entries of primulas, mostly obconica.

George Aeugle has happily recovered from the influenza. It was pleasant to see him lovingly displaying some particularly fine sweet peas at the store of the Philadelphia Cut Flower Co.

The genial Walter Mott, representing Benjamin Hammond, of Beacon, N. Y., was here February 20. Mr. Mott was looking well.

J. Otto Thilow will deliver an illustrated lecture on the roof garden of the Hotel Adelphia Tuesday evening, March 2, at 8 o'clock. It will be ladies' night.

The death of Charles Wiegel, of Frankford, February 19, is recorded in this week's obituary column.

BOSTON.

The Market.

Winter continues to hold us in a tight grip and the snow, with recent accumulations, now lies deeper than ever. Railroad and street-car traffic is more nearly normal and, with the increasing power of the sun, it is hoped that the worst of winter's terrors have passed. Additional comfort for those short of fuel is derived from the fact that water shipments of coal are now coming in more freely, although the outlook is far from good.

Thanks to some clear, sunny days, cut flowers are more abundant and prices, as a consequence, are weakening, particularly in the case of roses. Good short-stemmed flowers have dropped to $6 and on some of the better grades the decline has been as great as $20 per hundred. From $25 to $30 is now the limit on fancy hybrid teas.

Carnations are coming down, but more slowly than roses, and most of them still realize $8 to $10. Violets are not the popular flowers they were a few years ago and go rather slowly at $1 to $1.50 per hundred, although $2 is obtained for some fancy stock. Sweet peas are abundant and much cheaper. Lilies are in oversupply, since quantities of formosums are now available. Callas are somewhat lower. Arrivals of tulips and daffodils are much heavier, but prices hold up fairly well. Pansies are arriving freely and are popular for selling in large bunches.

Freesia is overdone. Much of it is of inferior quality. Some remarkably fine bunches have sold at $10 per hundred. A good supply of such miscellaneous flowers as marguerites, calendulas, bachelor's buttons, forget-me-nots, Corn Borer Hearing at State House.

The threatened drastic corn borer quarantine attracted a large number of florists, market gardeners, nurserymen and farmers to the State House hearing February 18. The drastic nature of this proposed quarantine is just becoming realized, and over twenty retail florists were among those present. It is even proposed to forbid shipments of cut flowers outside the boundaries of Massachusetts, which would practically mean putting many growers and shippers out of business.

John K. M. L. Farquhar was the principal speaker and J. Edward Moon, of the American Association of Nurserymen, W. H. Elliott, W. G. Wyman and others spoke. It was voted as best to send a united delegation to the Washington hearing February 24 and the following committee was chosen: J. K. M. L. Farquhar, Thomas Roland, W. H. Elliott, M. E. Moore, W. N. Craig, W. G. Wyman, N. F. McCarthy and Commissioner of Agriculture Gilbert.

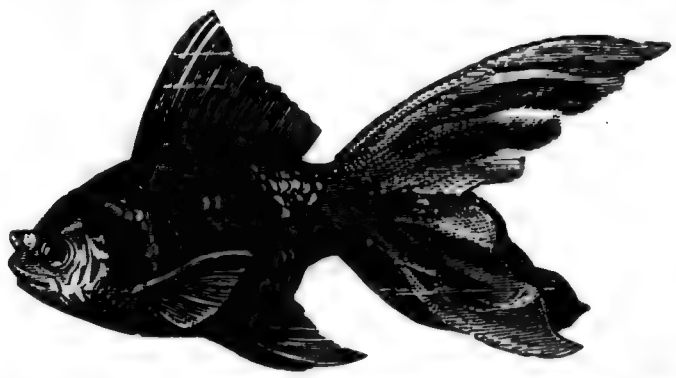
It was considered worthy of note that in the Weekly News Letter of the United States Department of Agriculture for January 14 the heading of the principal article is "Less Danger Apprehended from European Corn Borer; Experience During Last Season Reduces Early Alarm." The article admits that field corn is so scantily injured that discovery is only possible "after the most intensive search"; that "natural control is developing" and that a little parasitic fly destroyed as many as seventy-five per cent of the eggs; that the "menace to the corn crop of the country is minimized by the slight susceptibility of common corn to borer attacks"; that it is single-brooded over most of the country and that "where single-brooded it inflicts no injury whatever on small types of corn." Having made all these and many more similar admissions in their own publications, the wonder is that such drastic quarantining should be deemed necessary by the Department of Agriculture to fight the corn borer. Surely if the F. H. B. is given rope enough it should soon hang itself.

Various Notes.

The dance, entertainment and buffet lunch given by the Gardeners' and Florists' Club in Horticultural hall February 17 attracted an attendance of 200, although snow-blockaded streets and railways kept many away. The entertainment by Mrs. Robert N. Lister and Constance and Henry Gideon was unique and well merited the enthusiastic applause received. The bountiful buffet lunch served in the lower banquet hall and dancing until midnight helped to make a most delightful and enjoyable evening. Among the visitors who seemed to specially enjoy the dancing was Paul V. Fortmiller, of Newark, N. J. Nearly all ex-service club members were present as guests.

The Anita Specialty Co., at 77 Summer street, is developing a fine business, and C. Joseph Sloane, the manager, states that orders are coming in at a lively rate.

Corn borer talk is heard on every hand now. The state will fight the case and the government will be asked to prove its case and show why such a drastic quarantine is necessary.



Kidder Bros. are noted for the fine quality of their violets, which are also better bunched than any others coming into this market. Their Freesia Purity is also of remarkable quality, with flowers double the size of any others seen and carried on 24-inch stems. Such

NEW YORK.

The Market.

The supply of cut flowers is now nearly normal for this time of year. Heavy arrivals of bulbous flowers and a greatly increased cut of carnations have relieved the scarcity which has characterized the market for two or three weeks. Prices, in consequence, have fallen to a point which may also be considered nearly normal. Express deliveries are still held up and most wholesalers meet arrivals of consignments and transport them to the stores. It is hard to say when this condition is likely to be removed, for it evidently suits the express authorities.

There are not too many roses, yet at times the movement of the long-stemmed grades is slow. American Beauty specials remain at the $1.25 pinnacle and the supply available in the best grades is rather slim. Some of the American Beauty growers of late have been taking note of the returns for the special grades of hybrid teas and may decide to cut down the production of the Beauties, which do not crop so well. The supply of hybrid teas is better, but not what it might be expected to be in February. Short grades continue scarce and this condition, of course, gives impetus to the better grades, although frequently long-stemmed stock is let go at concessions to even up the supply. Prices have been affected by the heavy arrivals of other staples and the range now may be said to be $4 to $25 per hundred, with $35 per hundred for the extra special grades of some varieties.

There are plenty of carnations, vastly more than have been arriving for daily market this season. With a flood of other stock, prices of carnations have been forced down to a point more nearly normal, $4 to $6 per hundred now being the range.

Cattleyas are quite plentiful, but the quality is nothing to boast of, the bulk of arrivals running to the lower grades. Prices now are within a range of $15 to $50 per hundred, with $75 per hundred for selected flowers and hybrids. There is a small supply of oncidium sprays and a few other decorative orchids. Cypripediums are plentiful, but the price keeps up, $2 to $5 per dozen still being about the range. Gardenias are in only fair supply and appear now to hang fire considerably at $3 to $6 per dozen. A small supply of acacia is available, at $2 to $4 per bunch, and lilac is bringing $1.50 to $2.50 per bunch.

Easter lilies are a trifle more plentiful, but this is not saying much, although prices remain high, $35 per hundred for the best. A few rubrums are still to be had, at $10 to $15 per hundred. Lily of the valley is arriving in such quantities as to make clearances difficult. The supply now seems to be divided among more than one or two growers and prices are "down to earth," running well within a range of 50 cents to $6 per hundred. It is quite safe to say that more stock is coming than the market demands.

Arrivals of spring flowers are heavier, particularly tulips and narcissi. Tulips prices have tumbled to a range of 50 cents to $1.50 per hundred, with some decidedly fine stock available at the top figure.

The supply of miscellaneous flowers continues quite abundant and the movement is fairly active. Snapdragons, bouvardia, calendulas, daisies, pansies, wallflowers, mignonette, myosotis, primulas and buddleia are now quite staple and this week the collection is augmented by the arrival of stocks.

Various Notes.

Some idea of the speculation in real estate being indulged in at present in New York is given by the fact that Thorley's House of Flowers, Fifth avenue and Forty-sixth street, the 21-year lease of which had been acquired by the Tiffin Products, Inc., at an annual rental of $50,000, has been reacquired by the owner at a considerable profit to the lessees, who have never been called upon to spend a cent in improvements, never really having had possession. It is expected that a modern store and office building will be erected on the site. Charles Thorley has purchased the former home of John D. Wing, 16 West Forty-ninth street, a 5-story building, which he will alter to suit his business for a time. He recently bought also the Russell Sage residence, 604 Fifth avenue, at the price of $441,000, and it is possible that he may later permanently establish his business at this address, which for the present is subject to restrictions.

It is understood that the alterations at the old Siegel-Cooper store, at Sixth avenue and Eighteenth street, are proceeding apace and will be completed in ample time for the entry of the wholesale florists May 1. A large part of the mezzanine floor has been secured by Wertheimer Bros., who will install a branch office and carry there the firm's extensive line of ribbons. It is understood that Russin & Hanfling, the florists' supply firm of West Twenty-eighth street, have purchased a building on Nineteenth street, opposite the proposed arcade entrance to the new florists' quarters, and, as soon as the necessary alterations are completed, will move their business to the new address.

A charter of incorporation under the New Jersey laws was applied for last week by the Garden & Farm Supply Corporation, a concern which is to take over the business of the Garden & Farm Supply Co., which used to conduct business on Clinton avenue, Bronx. The new company is capitalized at $125,000, and it will handle practically everything in the way of garden supplies, such as tools, fertilizers, garden and farm implements, tractors and nursery stock. The concern is at present considering sites for a store and office location.

ST. LOUIS, MO.

The Market.

The wholesale market took a decided slump last week, much to the delight of the retailer, as prices on all seasonable stock showed a big drop. Although Lent is here, the local trade has been kept busy. While the demand for social affairs decreased, there was plenty of other work, especially for funerals, for which the work can once more be done with fresh flowers, owing to the increase in supply and decrease in prices.

Roses are about the only flowers that have not taken a decided drop in prices, as the supply of Premier, Russell and Ophelia has not been any too plentiful and will not be until the weather is more steadily clear. Carnations have come down to as low as $4 per hundred, with $5 and $6 per hundred for fancies.

With the supply quite large, they are not cleaning up daily, as they have been since the beginning of the year. All are of excellent quality, especially the Enchantress varieties and Nebraska.

Sweet peas and violets are plentiful and are greatly reduced in price. The low price and the excellent quality of the sweet peas clean them up fairly well, while the violets drag somewhat, except the extra fancies. Plenty of good valley and orchids are to be had daily. All bulbous stock is having its season and the best of the daily supply is generally sold out. Anything in greens is selling well. There was a heavy demand last week for bronze galax and asparagus. Flat ferns and smilax have taken a jump.

Various Notes.

The St. Louis County Growers' Association will hold an important meeting March 3 at the Eleven Mile House. The question of joining the national growers' association in a body will come up for action. Secretary Deutschmann expects that the great importance of this meeting will bring out a large attendance.

The old Valentine greenhouses, in Kirkwood, which have been in the possession of the W. C. Smith Wholesale Floral Co. for the last few years, have been sold. This firm still retains possession of the A. H. Ahner range, on Woodlawn avenue, which it has been operating for the last five years, growing plants for the trade.

Visitors last week were Julius Dilloff, representing Wertheimer Bros., New York; Morris Le Vine, with Lion & Co., New York; Martin Reukauf, with H. Bayersdorfer & Co., Philadelphia, and P. L. McKee, of the American Greenhouse Mfg. Co., Chicago. All reported splendid business during their stay.

deners will meet at the municipal greenhouses, 5800 Oakland avenue, Wednesday, March 3, at 8 p. m. Secretary Schaff says that the feature of this meeting will be a discussion of "The Cultivation of Orchids" by David Miller and Adam Huber. A large attendance is expected.

Joseph Frank has again opened his floral department in the 5 and 10-cent store, selling carnations at 10 cents each. He will add other stock from time to time, as the price comes down enough for him to sell at 5 and 10 cents, all that he is allowed to charge.

The membership of the St. Louis Florists' Club has reached the 200 mark and some of the workers say that they will make it fifty more by June 28, when the club celebrates its thirty-fourth anniversary.

Grimm & Gorly expect to open their new store by the end of March, in time for Easter. The new store, which is three doors west of the old one, is being fitted up with the finest of fixtures.

Werner Bros., of Clayton, Mo., have been on crop with carnations since the beginning of the year and reaped a harvest during the high-price season, as all of the cut was of excellent quality. Their rose crop is about coming on. The houses are in charge of Charles Roper.

The local plant growers will be well prepared to supply blooming plants for Easter. Among them are William Schray & Sons, George B. Windler, the Bourdet Floral Co., Albert Denger and John Held. They say that bulbous stock will be especially plentiful this year.

Mrs. Theodore Miller will entertain the Lady Florists' Home Circle Wednesday, March 10, at her home on Delmar boulevard.

Julius Schaeffer and Edward Steitz, managers of Vandervoort's floral department, after a busy week decorating Exhibition hall for the automobile show, took a flying trip to Chicago, where they looked for supplies and plant stock for Easter.

The big show windows of Grimm & Gorly, the Mullanphy Florists and Fred Foster are featuring a fine line of blooming plants of all descriptions. The annual fur auction sales and the automobile show brought them a great deal of good business.

The "Say It with Flowers" Bowling League held its weekly bowling February 18. During the evening the Roses met the Daisies and were defeated in two of the three games played. The Carnations, who were rolling the Sweet Peas, won all three games, cutting down the lead of the Roses to seven games. The next meeting of the league was held Wednesday, February 25, when the Roses met the Sweet Peas and the Carnations met the Daisies.

Ernest Strehle, park superintendent, is back attending to business at his office in the city hall after ten days' illness with the flu. J. J. B.

The contract has been let by R. A. Long, of Longview Farm, at Lees Summit, Mo., to the American Greenhouse Mfg. Co. for a steel-frame house 85⅔ x 450 feet and a passage house 11 x 41⅓ feet. This house is the largest that has ever been contracted for by this company.

WASHINGTON, D. C.

The Market.

The supply of stock has shown a fair increase during the last week and prices have dropped a little in some cases. Carnations have dropped to $15 per hundred, sweet peas to $4 per hundred. Orchids are bringing 75 cents to $1 each. Some good daffodils are coming in and clean up at $8 per hundred. Tulips and Paper Whites are bringing $10 per hundred.

There has been a scarcity of Asparagus plumosus during the last week and other greens cleaned up well.

The rose supply has not been good.

The demand for funeral flowers is still on the increase. Many of the local florists have been crowded with funeral work, due to the loss of a number of the city's most prominent men.

Various Notes.

George Shaffer reports business extraordinarily good. He has a number of large weddings booked for this month. His entire force is kept busy with funeral work and the orders continue to pile up.

E. C. Mayberry, of the Du Pont Flower Shop, is back on the job again after his long illness.

Arthur Niessen was in town February 19.

R. Bowdler has been unusually busy with funeral work. G. V. S.

Oyster Roast for Club.

The Washington Florists' Club will start the new club year with an old-time oyster roast. During the war, the florists of the national capital refrained from their usual gaieties and adopted a resolution postponing all of their big entertainments. It was recently discovered that there was a tidy sum available for a real entertainment and J. Harper Hetherington, manager of the Washington Floral Co., was selected to make arrangements for an oyster roast to be given at the greenhouses of that company, at Alexandria, Va.

The date set is Saturday, February 28. The trip to Alexandria is to be made in automobiles, the procession forming at 5:30 p. m. in front of the store of the S. S. Pennock Co. When the members reach Alexandria, they will be taken in charge by David G. Grillbortzer, president of the Washington Floral Co., a guarantee that the event will be a successful one.

Independence, Mo.—J. O. Hinde plans to build an additional house, 20x100 feet.

Louisville, Ky.—A. Baurmann has a department in a local newspaper under the heading, "Hints for Home Florists." In addition to discussions of various floricultural subjects, there are answers to queries.

Zanesville, O.—C. L. Humphrey's advertisement for St. Valentine's day occupied an entire column in the local morning daily paper. The results were big, says C. L. Humphrey, for the business for the holiday was tremendous.

Manhattan, Kan.—Mrs. Carrie Collins, who was formerly in the cut flower and plant business, has closed her greenhouse, but is operating a truck patch, growing vegetable plants to sell.

Shamokin, Pa.—Owing to the death of Mrs. H. P. Campbell, January 27, the entire business has passed into the hands of her three sons, under the name of Campbell Bros. Edward S. Campbell is the only one who is active in the business, the other brothers retaining their positions with a railroad.

You need Bailey's books

Get the knowledge you need, hints and practical suggestions that will help in your work, by buying Bailey's new "Standard Cyclopedia of Horticulture"—the florists' 6-volume library. 4,000 engravings, 96 full-page cuts, fine color work.

Take advantage of the present easy payment plan of $3.00 per month, or send $36.00 for the complete set of six volumes. This is the best book buy any florist could make—an investment that will pay a life-time of dividends.

Committee Meetings Called.

George Asmus, chairman of the national flower show committee, has called a meeting of this committee to be held at the administration offices, 1170 Broadway, New York, Tuesday, March 16, at 3 p. m. As the business of this meeting is important, a full attendance of the committee is expected.

William F. Gude, chairman of the committee on tariff and legislation, has called a meeting of the committee to be held at the administration offices, 1170 Broadway, New York, Wednesday, March 17, at 2 p. m. The matter of future action of the society in regard to Quarantine No. 37 will be considered at this meeting. John Young, Sec'y.

ATTENTION!

Members of the S. A. F. and affiliated societies:

Are you going to attend the seventh international flower show, to be held March 15 to 21 inclusive, at the Grand Central Palace, New York city?

If so, during your stay make the S. A. F. booth your headquarters.

RETAIL STORE MANAGEMENT

WHAT THE LEADERS IN THE TRADE ARE DOING

F. T. D. FURNISHES FOLDERS.

Aids Members in Advertising.

In order to spread the gospel of telegraph delivery among the benighted public, the Florists' Telegraph Delivery Association has prepared a quartet of leaflets which it is furnishing to its members at a surprisingly low figure. It is so low because the association is having the leaflets printed in a million run in colors, all except the retailer's name, which is imprinted on them after his order has been received. Secretary Pochelon has already received orders for more than a quarter of a million of them, in response to the single letter which has been sent out telling members of the project. Since they are suitable for use at any time of the year, the folders are being ordered in lots of from 1,000, or 250 of each, up to as high as 16,000.

Attractively Printed.

The covers are printed by the 3-color offset process, reproducing attractive designs prepared by Hilmer V. Swenson & Co., Chicago. One is devoted to an explanation of the F. T. D., another to telegraphing flowers to sick friends, another to telegraphing them as gifts and another to telegraphing them for birthdays and anniversaries. The inside of the folder is illustrated by a sketch, carrying out the idea of the brief story printed on one page. Space is allowed for the retailer's name, which is printed in when his order is received. Less than 100 members have sent in their orders, totaling over a quarter of a million folders. When the number of responses reaches the expected figure, the story of telegraph delivery will be spread broadcast.

WEALTH IN A WINDOW.

The window display shown in the accompanying illustration should have a strong appeal for both nature-lovers and those who relish the expensive. Anyone passing along Powell street, San Francisco, in front of the store of the Art Floral Co., would be tempted to pause even on the most urgent errand and gaze at the delicately contrasted colors of the cattleyas and their gray-green background of moss-covered oak branches. This is the store which has a 3-months-old leopard, still so kittenish and unsophisticated that only a chain is needed for its restraint.

Window Orchid Display of the Art Floral Co., San Francisco.

LIGHTING THE SHOW WINDOW.

Opportunities Overlooked.

Selling experts have estimated that from thirty to fifty per cent of a store's sales are made through its windows. Putting it the other way around, the retailer who neglects to take proper advantage of the advertising and selling power of his window loses just that percentage of possible sales. Some may question the accuracy of those percentages, but few will question the intrinsic accuracy of the point involved. If the percentages appear too high, reduce them, halve them if you will, and even then where is the florist who would rest complacently, knowing he was preventing an addition of from fifteen to twenty-five per cent to the volume of his business, through his indifference to the advertising and sales-producing value of his windows?

For the retailer who wishes to make the best use of his windows, the first step should be to set down a figure representing the appraised value of the windows. Putting a value on the windows, if done fairly, will in itself serve to give a new respect for their importance, and until the retailer does come to look upon his windows as having a definite and considerable dollars and cents value, he will not be in the right frame of mind to plan intelligently and enthusiastically regarding ways and means for making greater use of their service. That such calculation is a real and actual valuation, is demonstrated by the value put on their windows by various leaders in the merchandising field. It is reported that Charles Stevens & Co., of Chicago, value their windows at $150,000 a year; R. H. Macy & Co., New York, $100,000 a year; Filene's Boston, $106 a day; Saks & Co., New York, $50,000 a year; Famous-Barr, St. Louis, $10 to $25 per day per window, according to location.

What Good Lighting Does.

The purpose of window lighting, as of the window itself, is to arouse upon the part of the observer a buying desire for the goods on display. As an object is seen by the light it reflects, rather than by the light thrown upon it, it is obvious that it is only when the lighting is of the proper intensity and color, as well as when the light comes from the correct angle, that it may be said to be contributing its full efficiency as a factor in selling. The lighting in many windows falls below that standard; far, far below, in numerous instances. The reasons for that condition are legion.

Many, perhaps most, retail florists are not aware of the improved lighting arrangements and devices available for their use. Few merchants in any field have arrived at a full understanding of the actual character of the service which the display window performs.

The show window is as a stage and the goods on display are the actors therein. Logicians may condemn that simile on the ground that inanimate articles of merchandising are not comparable with the living, breathing actor. The fact remains that the florist who adopts the stage manager's point of view with regard to the problem of window lighting and dressing will find himself well on the road towards getting the full selling value out of his windows. The good stage manager conceals the mechanism of his lighting; he allows only the artistic effects to be seen and enjoyed. He does not annoy his audience with the distracting and painful effects of visible light and unscreened lights or glare. Most important, perhaps, of all, he does not depend for his effects upon a flow of light from any one source or direction; he makes use of border lights, foot lights, flood lamps, bunch lights and spot lights; withal, he is economical in his use of light, wasting none of it in borders or flies or in the auditorium. He uses reflectors to place the light where it will do the most good. Furthermore, he makes use of backgrounds, stage properties and lighting all to one end, to bring out the work and personality of the actors. And the florist who works with the same intelligent effort to bring out through good lighting the attractive features of the goods on display may depend upon it that his windows will contribute their share towards the success of his selling effort.

Effect on Merchandise.

Profiting further by observing the methods of the stage, the shrewd florist will not permit the use of mirrors in his windows in any position where their reflection of light will annoy the observer. He will study the background of his window most carefully also, aiming to make use of colors that will enhance the appearance of the merchandise. Backgrounds of dingy grays or dark colors appear dull, no matter how much light is thrown upon them. Light, vibrant colors help bring out the desirable colors of the display.

The light of 5,000 candles hardly is sufficient to enable one to thread a needle that is held against a steel gray background, but one-half of one candle power is sufficient to enable one to do the job easily when the needle is held against a white background. So let it be recognized at the outset that while the effect of light on merchandise is itself positive and direct, the visibility of the merchandise is subject to control and modification by the character and color of the background. Because an object is discernible only insofar as its color is distinguishable from that of the background, light and color must be depended upon to emphasize such contrasts.

Emphasizing Colors.

Without color the window dresser's art would contribute little or nothing to the making of sales; it is, in truth, his most effective tool. Nevertheless, recognition of the possibilities of electric lighting in the rendition of color is in no sense general, not even today. All too many merchants are prone to regard the window lighting equipment as something too sacred to be changed under any circumstances—like the firm name. Flowers of all kinds and colors are displayed in such windows under identically the same lights, regardless of the effect produced.

In the light of the regular Mazda lamp all the colors of the spectrum occur, but the red and yellow rays predominate somewhat over the proportion of those rays occurring in normal daylight. For that reason when a display is shown under these lamps, the reds, browns and yellows are emphasized, appearing correspondingly stronger than when seen in daylight. The blues and

Flowers —or—Plants

Which?

Flowers or plants, which shall we florists push the most?

Jimmy, the Hibernica Hybrida, with his ear to the cash register, says: "Push flowers, there is more money in them. Plants last too long."

Tom, the Scotchman, says: "Sell folks what they want; then they will want more of the things you sell, whatever you have to sell."

Suko, the Jap, says: "In Japan, flower shops sometimes much show make plants in pot. Sometimes all flowers, in vases filled. Then sometimes, again, flowers in vase, plants in pot, same like outdoor garden look to be.

"Some day one sell most. Some day other. Most days sell most of both."

Which, after all, you see, is only another way of saying what Tom said.

What do you say?

violets, on the other hand, suffer a loss in depth when seen under this lamp. Colors may be brought out and emphasized by employing color screens of different values, or lamps which have been dipped or otherwise treated to produce light effects.

When it is the aim to accentuate blue or white the window dresser has only to make use of light having some of its undesirable red and yellow rays screened off, while the blue, violet and other rays are permitted free passage. In order to reverse the effect, bringing out the red, yellow and brown and subduing the blue, green and white, it is only necessary to supplement the white light by brown and yellow, secured by using amber-colored bulbs. Or if red light be employed, the effect will be to make the contrasts between red and the other colors in the display all the more acute.

In procuring such color effects it is necessary, however, that the screens or lamps be selected accurately; any old piece of colored glass picked out at random will not give the desired results. For daylight effects in lighting, excellent results can be secured by using what is known as the Mazda C-2 lamp, in which the filament is encased in a special blue glass bulb designed to screen out some of the light rays which are, in the ordinary lamp, present too abundantly to simulate good daylight effects. However, screening out some of the light rays tends to reduce somewhat the total amount of light supplied by these lamps, the reduction being reported as amounting to from thirty to thirty-five per cent. That, however, is inevitable, regardless of the medium used; so it should be the practice to use lamps of sufficient extra wattage to offset whatever loss occurs through such screening out of certain light rays.

Proper Intensity.

However, the color of the light is not all; it must be also of the proper intensity and fall upon the goods from the proper direction. Both of those points are vital and merit careful attention.

The intensity of the light best suited to illuminating a display is regulated by the color and character of the flowers and also by the brightness of the surroundings. The importance of that second condition can be illustrated by referring to the sickly illumination supplied by an automobile headlight when in competition with daylight. By the same token, show windows located on a brilliantly lighted street require a much higher lighting intensity than is needed to give such windows the appearance of brilliant illumination when their surroundings are less brilliant. That other and more directly responsible factor in deciding the intensity of the light—the color and character of the stock—varies somewhat with each change of display. Dark colors absorb a greater percentage of light and reflect less of it than do the light colors; and, as an object is seen by the light it reflects, the light colors are more easily viewed.

By taking account of the reflection value and the character of the display and regulating the intensity of the light accordingly, the shrewd window dresser imagine that a continuance of the campaign, because of an apparent shortage of flowers, is an unwise step, is wrong. What has caused the shortage if not demand? There are as many growing establishments as ever and, as far as is known, practically everyone is running to full capacity. At any rate, there are no more idle than is always the case. Has any particular glut been recorded since the campaign started? Was not every market bothered with periodical gluts before we became active with our publicity movement? The Washburns are right. The greatest good will come later. Demand will not be allowed to exceed supply for long. Production is already increasing and will naturally continue to increase. We must expect it and we must prepare for it.

All Should Subscribe.

In spite of increased labor cost and advanced cost of materials, have growers ever enjoyed as good returns for their products as they have recently? Yet, the growers, as a class, have not supported our campaign to the extent expected of them. They evidently have not given our movement the serious thought it deserves. They have been content to profit through the better movement of their products brought about by the campaign, without contributing to the expense of the work. The subscriptions from growers should be on a par with those from other sections of the trade.

The campaign can be active only so long as those who are to reap the benefits will share in the expense. Subscriptions are not coming in as they should and it is unfair to ask those who subscribed a large part of the expenses last year to contribute more than their share again this year. With the great number of florists to share in the benefits, it should not be difficult to carry the funds to the amount required by the committee, $100,000. Is this such a great sum to raise among 20,000 members of the trade? Assure yourself, Mr. Nonsubscriber, that it is not and send in your check for the amount you think right

PLAYING THE GAME FAIR.

How often have you heard it said that business is as much a game as is baseball, football, tennis or golf and that it requires certain fundamentals to give you the endurance to accomplish what you set out to do! To be an athlete, one must keep himself in trim and with plenty of practice, plus endurance, he can virtually succeed in whatever he undertakes to do.

Just so with business. In order to succeed in business, there are certain essential rules that must be followed. It is not always the wealth a man has which characterizes him a success so much as the fact that his business savors, first, of honesty to his customers and then of service, consisting of all the word implies. We all admire and appreciate those in our own ranks who have been successful from the standpoint just mentioned and who always participate in the various welfare movements connected with our business. If you were to investigate their methods of progress, you would find that one of the predominating factors that loom up big is their view regarding the proper use of advertising and publicity to keep flowers ever in the minds of their patrons, so that they do not have to wait for certain occasions to sell flowers, but are doing business all the time.

Now, whenever you find a florist doing business all the time, you will readily grant that there must be something underlying the principles of this type of busy man. Generally you will find, also, that whenever a movement is on foot for further development, this busy man is ready to help the project with his purse as well as his heart, and the combination spells success. what is meant by playing the game fair. Our liberal and broad-minded publicity campaign is one of the cogs in the wheel of better business for all florists and yet we find too many unheedful of the generous spirit needed to carry it on. Pledges are still coming in, but we need more and, to win success, our efforts must be directed toward those who have as yet not sent in their contributions for such a splendid campaign as has been going on the last two years.

We shall not feel that we are playing the game fair if we allow others to subscribe to a fund that has for its purpose doing good for all and yet have not subscribed ourselves.

progress, we can still attain much more and, if all would but view our project in the proper light, our funds would never be lacking.

Robert Whittaker said: "Live for something, have a purpose and that purpose keep in view."

The publicity committee has a purpose and that is to bring the trade to the high plane to which it is justly entitled, where all will enjoy the fruits of their labor and toward which we all want to pay our just proportion. Are you willing to be of this class? We think so, or the S. A. F. would never have sponsored the plan. Now let us all back it up and be good sports and prove that we play the game fair.

others interested to make frequent trips across the country in order to be present at these meetings. Prof. W. S. Cooper, of the University of Minnesota, gave an interesting lantern talk on "Ecology of Plants," especially referring to certain districts of California, showing views of the big redwoods and a considerable variety of California vegetation. August Vogt, of St. Paul, read a paper on "Proposed Plan of Florists' Coöperation." This brought out an interesting discussion in regard to the florists' business.

The next meeting will be held March 18 at the Merriam park greenhouses, Merriam park, St. Paul.

HELENA, MONT.

The State Seed & Nursery Co. reported St. Valentine's day business as the largest yet experienced. The demand was three times the supply. Orchids, violets, plant baskets of Primula malacoides and combination baskets of primulas and violets made up most of the sales. At the close of the day there was not a flower or plant left. The State Seed & Nursery Co. used over 100 of the large S. A. F. St. Valentine's day posters and every package and piece of mail carried stickers. This firm's crop of over 30,000 violets failed to take care of the orders received.

TRI-CITY FLORISTS' CLUB.

The Tri-City Florists' Club held its monthly meeting February 12, at the home of William Knees, Sr., of Moline, Ill. A majority of the members were present and the meeting was an unusually interesting and instructive one.

The discussion of the evening was on peonies. R. M. Rohlf, of Davenport, Ia., gave an extremely interesting talk on that subject. Two guests added to the enjoyment of the evening by giving short talks. They were C. C. Pollworth, of Milwaukee, Wis., and J. A. Lambert, of the Ove Gnatt Co., La Porte, Ind.

The officers for the ensuing year were nominated.

price, which remains at $15 per hundred. Roses are a little cheaper than they were last week, running from $10 to $30. Freesia, too, is a little easier. Sweet peas are from $1.50 to $4. Jonquils, just beginning to come in, are $10 and $12. Shipments of California violets are falling off and the flowers are $2 per dozen bunches.

Various Notes.

Samuel Murray is cutting a few Easter lilies, the first of the season. He says he will have a good supply for Easter.

After two or three quiet days following the recent rush, E. A. Humfeld had a heavy business Friday, February 20, using all the stock he could cut and buy.

Mrs. T. A. Moseley reports a good St. Valentine's day, the high prices of flowers making the total greater than in normal years, although the number of sales was large, too.

the hotel were turned into an outdoor garden, with a lattice framework on walls and ceiling covered with smilax and moss, into which were woven artificial nasturtiums. Small electric bulbs were strung thickly through the greens and Japanese lanterns depended from the ceiling, adding to the garden effect. A fountain at one end of the ballroom played over a mound of ferns and led to an arbor, where 250 bunches of green and red grapes hung. Three hundred long-stemmed Premier and Columbia roses were combined with woodwardia fern leaves in the ballroom. Hugo Neff, manager of the Muehlebach Flower Shop, and Joseph Reichl, of the hotel, planned the affair.

were reached, exceeding our most sanguine expectations.'' Taking into consideration that the business has been in existence only since August, 1919, this is highly satisfactory.

''Do not spend your time wondering why a black hen lays a white egg! Get the egg! In other words,'' observed Ernest Ashley, of Allentown, Pa., ''don't waste time and energy inquiring into the causes of advanced prices on cut flowers, but push sales and show purchasers that they are getting full value for their money. Granted there is such a thing as a limit, at the same time sentiment cannot be computed in dollars and cents; in fact, with the classes being elevated, the higher the cost, the stronger is the sentiment.''

Bro., Allentown, Pa., commented upon the boons enjoyed by the trade in the various labor-saving devices now possible in the growing end. "We have automatic coal carriers, stokers and traps; now, if we could get some automatic workers in the houses who would be as reliable and helpful as the machinery, the combination would be immense." More roses and less carnations will be grown next season.

John H. Sykes, of Allentown, Pa., spoke favorably of present conditions, having big business, more than the average supply of stock, an artistic sister to do the fine work and a good range, kept thoroughly up-to-date.

E. N. Kroninger, of Allentown, Pa., may be proud of the report that the finest carnation seen here this winter came from his place.

New life has been injected into the Hoffman Greenhouses, at Elmira, N. Y., since Frederick J. Gantz returned to his old post as grower. Albert Hoffman, son of the founder, is also distributing "pep" around the place and the business is becoming lively. H. M. Hoffman, who declined the nomination for mayor, having served six terms, is giving more time to the nursery dpartment and attended the farmers' week gathering at Cornell University. Grower Gantz is producing the best crop of carnations seen in this vicinity. He talks interestingly of his experience as a grower in Florida, where the lack of potash caused him to quit.

Superintendent Richard King, of the United States Cut Flower Co., Elmira, N. Y., is justly proud of the record shown throughout the entire season and is decidedly optimistic regarding the future, both from a grower's and a retailer's point of view. The big range showed a fine stock of rose and carnation cuttings and of roses in 2¼-inch pots—Mock, Hoosier Beauty, Richmond, Shawyer, Columbia, Sunburst, Premier and, last but not least, Killarney, for Mr. King does not think that the old favorite will be discarded for some time to come, when the quantity of cut and quality are considered. Carnations show the effect of close picking and a big crop is in sight. Laddie will be grown more next season. Some 15,000 stocky plants are being held for own planting. Mr. King says that the best plants will be of one's own growing; it can hardly be otherwise with the enormous demand for rooted cuttings. Lilies and hydrangeas are promising for Easter, while a batch of pelargoniums could hardly be in better shape. Primulas and cinerarias, about 1,500 in number, are moving steadily and but few are expected to be a loss.

The Flick Floral Co., Fort Wayne, Ind., is getting ready to tear down a number of its old houses on Thompson avenue and will build new ones in the rear next summer. W. M.

LAMBERT'S LOCALS.

The Charleston Cut Flower & Plant Co., Charleston, W. Va., is adding to its already large, modern establishment, so that it will have two excellent ranges for cut flowers and plants. The place is heated by gas. Because of the lack of flowers and plants for window decoration, the firm made an F. T. D. display, showing telegraph wire connections and a number of real telegrams ordering flowers for prominent people. It was an unusually attractive display and brought them much F. T. D. business.

Raymond E. De Rycke, at Moline, Ill., recently purchased the range of Eckstam Bros., which contains about 2,000 feet of glass. Mr. De Rycke came

Club Meeting.

A special meeting of the Nassau County Horticultural Society was held in Pembroke hall, Glen Cove, Wednesday, February 18, at 7 p. m. President Thomas Twigg occupied the chair.

James Hitchinson, Herbert Woodger, Stanley Balance, Alfred Woodger, David Dean, William Young, Robert M. Barnett, Edward Manda, John D. Wilson and William Alexander were elected to active membership and one petition for active membership was received.

President Twigg was empowered to appoint a committee to secure a judge for all shows and exhibitions to be held by the society in the coming year.

George Platt, one of the active members of the society, died from pneumonia in the previous week and the secretary was instructed to write a letter of sympathy to Mrs. Platt and the family.

The exhibits for the next monthly meeting, to be held Wednesday, March 10, will be a pot or pan of tulips, twelve roses, mixed, and twelve spikes of antirrhinum.

Arthur S. Cook, Cor. Sec'y.

Altoona, Pa.—The greenhouse owned and operated by Carl Begalke, 111 East Twenty-second street, was badly damaged and the growing stock totally destroyed recently when one side of the glass-covered roof gave way under a heavy accumulation of snow. The loss was estimated at $2,500.

PACIFIC COAST DEPARTMENT

Loomis, Cal.—W. A. Hawkins, who came here from Seattle, Wash., about a year ago, recently left this place.

South Pasadena, Cal.—C. Austin, who has been a bulb grower, plans to undertake the growing of general florists' stock.

PORTLAND, ORE.

The Market.

There was no great change in the market last week. Florists are all busy and are using all the flowers they can secure. Owing to the great number of funerals which occur daily, on account of the flu and other causes, it is almost impossible to get stock enough to meet the demand. Spring flowers are plentiful and are bringing good prices. Potted plants are moving in good shape, for the reason that cut flowers cannot be had.

Various Notes.

The Portland Floral Society met last week and had a good attendance, but there was little business to transact, except in regard to the rose festival.

The range of Clarke Bros., on Thirtieth avenue and Forty-eighth street, was badly damaged by fire last week. The fire apparently started on the roof of the boiler houses from sparks from the smokestack. One of the greenhouses was destroyed and two others badly damaged. The boiler room was totally destroyed. Albert Clarke suffered several cuts and burns about the hands and arms in an attempt to fight the flames. The loss on buildings, equipment and plants is estimated at about $3,000. L. T. S.

LOS ANGELES, CAL.

The Market.

Business continues excellent, with a scarcity of stock in almost all lines. Both field and greenhouse carnations have again advanced in price, owing to the big shipping demand for funeral work and also the local call. Daffodils are much scarcer than usual at this time and it is a daily conundrum at the wholesale houses to make 100 take the place of 200. Freesias are a little more plentiful, but the price has not been shaded; the Rainbow types are coming in slowly. Roses are becoming a little more plentiful, Beauties especially, but the demand still exceeds the supply. All small flowers are scarcer and are high in price. Greens have made another jump and are hard to obtain.

The rain at the end of last week was too late to be of much help to the violets, but it was welcomed for the other stock.

Club Meeting.

At the meeting of the Los Angeles Florists' Club, at Christopher's, February 12, the following members were present: W. Armacost, F. R. Hills, H. Reeve Darling, C. Gutting, Roy Wilcox, F. Lichtenberg, S. Purdie, A. F. Borden, A. Knopf, F. Reymond and F. Warner. The following officers were elected: President, Walter Armacost; vice-president, Roy F. Wilcox; secretary, A. F. Borden, and treasurer, H. Reeve Darling. Further meetings will be held the second Thursday of each month at 6:30 p. m. at the same place.

Various Notes.

Fred Dostal, who for some time has been on the staff of Howard & Smith, has gone back to J. W. Wolters'.

George J. Hall & Co. have contracted to take the whole cut of bulbous stock from C. A. Brazee, of Wilmington, one of the largest growers of this class of stock in this vicinity.

F. Sperry, of the L. A. Floral Co., is in bed with a severe cold.

Walter Armacost, his wife and two children are all down with colds.

A. A. Hart, of Cleveland, O., is visiting in the city with his wife. He expects to stay a few weeks and will make a tour of the ranges in the vicinity.

The Redondo Floral Co. reports the busiest season on record. The three partners, A. F. Borden, A. Knopf and F. Reymond, and a full crew of assistants have been on deck early and late.

Wright's Flower Shop is making a fine showing of Phalænopsis Schilleriana, also fine cattleyas from the greenhouses.

The Superior Nursery Co. is opening up another large dahlia garden this year, indicating that Charles Gutting has plenty of faith in this popular flower. H. R. Richards.

SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.

The Market.

A general shortage of flowers was reported last week. Not only roses but carnations and daffodils are becoming scarcer and higher in price. The demand for carnations was such during the middle of the week that the price went up to $1.50 and $2 per bunch and many orders went unfilled. The long-distance shipping of carnations has been particularly successful this year and the unusual amount of funeral work has resulted in a strong demand for them from all over the country.

With the exception of the crops of one or two growers in this vicinity, the rose supply is considerably smaller than the demand. A few of the nurseries are cutting from the second crop now, but most of the growers will be obliged to wait another week before their roses are ready. In the meantime the price remains high, with a big call for roses both in San Francisco and from out-of-town customers.

Daffodils are scarcer and higher. The first crop is nearing the end and it is expected that the quantity will be slightly less than the demand until the next crop is ready for cutting.

Almond blossoms, both pink and white, now occupy a position of prominence in the retail shops, which report a ready sale for stock of this kind. A few of the rarer flowering shrubs and fruit trees have made their appearance also, but most of the blossom stock is still gathered from the almond trees. Acacia blooms have been particularly fine this year and have been extensively shipped with good results.

The demand for Oregon grape foliage is big this season and the distributors of this stock clean out each shipment in short order.

Orchids are still fairly plentiful, but retailers state that they are selling a satisfactory number of the blooms at $1.50 each. The only new arrivals on the market last week were a number of potted camellia bushes in various colors, white, pink, deep rose and variegated.

Various Notes.

A new florists' shop has been opened at 1237 Polk street, between Sutter and Bush streets, by M. L. Bartev, who also operates a shop at 1757 Fillmore street. Mr. Bartev makes a specialty of wedding and table decorations and intends carrying a comprehensive stock of potted plants, ferns and hanging baskets. The new shop opened with an attractive window display of cut flowers and fruit baskets. The workrooms are conveniently arranged in the rear of the store. There is also a basement, where Mr. Bartev intends to make his own reed baskets, etc.

Mrs. Copeland has been busy with table and funeral work and reports a big demand recently for bon voyage baskets developed in her own original manner.

The firm of Pelicano, Rossi & Co. is rushed with funeral work as well as a good volume of cut flower trade and table decorations. Mr. Pelicano states that he is cutting from a splendid crop

Peter Rosara, of the Pelicano, Rossi & Co. staff, is confined to his home with an attack of the grip. The most recent report of his condition was favorable and it is expected that he will be able to return to the shop soon.

The new shop of Avansino Bros., 257 Geary street, is now in the hands of carpenters and decorators, and they expect to open for business March 1. The store has more space than the old quarters and is far more convenient, with a roomy mezzanine floor and a basement.

One of the most effective St. Valentine's day windows which were seen in San Francisco was that of B. M. Joseph's shop, on Grant avenue. The entire window was framed with stenciled paper in the manner of the old-fashioned valentine, providing an original frame for the profusion of spring flowers, which were grouped artistically about the central figure of the display, a peacock, excellent proof of the taxidermist's skill, posed in lifelike aspect, complete master of the situation. The coloring of the bird's tail feathers was admirably repeated in a fan-shaped plaque of pansies which lay flat on the floor of the window, suggesting a continuation of the feathers themselves.

The convention of fruit jobbers, which was recently held in this city, was the stimulus for a considerable amount of floral work. A dance was held during the session at the Hotel St. Francis, the decorations being done by Julius Eppstein. All the ballrooms of the hotel were used for the event and were appropriately decorated in grapes, apples and acacia boughs.

Some particularly fine specimens of almond blossoms were secured by Julius Eppstein last week. The single flowers measured almost two inches across and the texture of the blooms was especially heavy.

J. A. Axell is shipping quantities of acacia and spring blooms with good results. He reported a heavy demand for violets for St. Valentine's day and is now disposing of a considerable amount of hyacinths and tulips on the bulb.

The rose crop of the E. W. McLellan Co. is arriving now, a large part of the cut being shipped out of the city. The Ophelia buds are in excellent shipping condition and the Russells and Cecile Brunners are also in good shape. Manager Avansino says that the late daffodil crop is showing promise and will probably be ready for cutting soon.

M. C. Main, bulb grower of Santa Cruz, Cal., was a visitor in San Francisco last week.

The United Flower & Supply Co. is finding it difficult to meet the demand for carnations. This firm is cutting from a big crop, but, together with the shipping trade and local orders, the Bush street depot cleans up on carnations each day before all the trade is supplied. This firm also reports a scarcity of maidenhair and asparagus ferns, which is confirmed by the statements of many of the other wholesalers. The firm's cut of freesias and daffodils is good just now and much of it is being shipped away.

MR. W. H. MARCON,
Alberni, B. C., Can.

Dear Sir:

In reply to your letter of January 29th, after careful consideration it has been decided that the cut leaves and branches of cedar, ferns, Oregon grape and other plants in your region, if shipped into the United States for decorative purposes, do not require a permit as they are not for propagating purposes and their movement is not restricted. I am so notifying our inspector at Seattle.

Very truly yours, success of his extensive acacia shipments this year and has no word of complaint as to the condition of the stock upon arrival at its destination.

Domoto Bros. sold a quantity of potted camellias which were brought to the local market from their nurseries across the bay. Mr. Domoto stated that last week's demand for camellias was on account of the Chinese New Year celebration. Mr. Domoto expects to have some double-flowering plum soon, as well as a fine crop of Darwin tulips for cutting.

S. Enomoto, of Enomoto & Co., has just received a large shipment of mats from Japan. His company is shipping large quantities of spring flowers and it is expected that the second rose crop from the Enomoto nurseries will be ready in a few weeks.

The Silva & Bergtholdt Nursery Co., of Newcastle, Cal., recently purchased a tract of land containing about 100 acres, known as the Hannaman ranch, located several miles west of Auburn, Cal. Work has already been started on the property. M. M.

CLEVELAND, O.

The Market.

The scarcity of stock has eased up a little. The cost of roses and carnations has increased considerably, but they clean up daily with little effort. Roses are arriving in good condition, the quality being good in all grades. Premier and Columbia are demanded more than other varieties. Bulbous stock is available in quantity. The demand is smaller than the supply and much is left on the counters after the day's business. Freesias have been cleaned up well. Violets moved fairly well last week; a few good blanket orders kept them cleaned up. Snapdragons are in demand. Calla lilies clean up well. Calendulas, daisies, wallflowers and others are in fair demand. Greens remain about the same, still scarce.

A number of long pink roses were used in church and wedding decorations last week and, as the supply is still limited, it kept the trade busy trying to get the amount required.

Various Notes.

Albert Barber added one more store to his chain when he leased the property of Willard Calhoun, 13336 Euclid avenue, for twenty-five years. There are a greenhouse, store and residence on this property. Mr. Barber takes possession of the place March 1 and intends to live in the residence. The general offices at 2120 East Fourth street will be moved to the new place. Willard Calhoun, one of the pioneers in the business, has been located there for the last twenty-five years and through his hard work and efforts has worked up a steady trade, which has enabled him to retire.

Louis Kitzerow has opened a florists' shop at 3623 Lorain street. He formerly had a saloon and restaurant at this location. Leonard Metzger, formerly with Wilhelmy's, is taking charge of the designing and decorating for him.

The sympathy of the trade is extended to Frank Shoen on the death of his wife.

Harston & Burder have opened a florists' store at 3161 East Forty-ninth street. Mr. Burder was formerly employed by William F. Hanna, on Ninety-third street.

H. P. Knoble is gradually recovering from the effects of an attack of the flu. Mrs. Knoble is reported in a critical condition with the disease.

Albert Wilhelmy has moved to his new store on Clark avenue, a few doors east of where he was formerly located.

S. H. Wilson, of the Wilson Seed Co., Columbus, O., was a visitor last week.

L. Anderson, Rocky River, O., reports a fine crop of hydrangeas to be ready for the Easter trade. W. F. B.

Seed Trade News

AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION.
President, E. C. Dungan, Philadelphia, Pa.; secretary-treasurer, C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O.

IT is going to cost money to grow seeds in 1920.

SUPPLIES of all seeds seem to be adequate but peas.

INCREASES of small size are made in retail prices for 1920 on muskmelon, summer and winter squash and tomato seed.

THE high price of onion sets and the low price of onion seed will result in a large increase in the acreage for sets at Chicago this season.

ADOLPH KRUHM, secretary of Beckert's Seed Store, Pittsburgh, delivered a lecture on "Vegetable Gardens" before the Horticultural Society of New York, February 18.

THERE is a big retail mail order demand so far this season, exceeding the expectations of many concerned, but it has not yet resulted in stiffening the wholesale market.

WHETHER the high rents in the large cities have caused so many to buy their own homes that the resulting back-yard gardens will boom seed orders, is a question given consideration by some retail seedsmen.

THE Philippine Seed Co., 363 Calle Raon, Manila, gains splendid returns from advertising, using a number of various sizes of advertisements in Progressive Agriculture, a local paper printed in both English and Spanish.

RETAIL prices for vegetable seeds for 1920 are less in most cases than in the last two years, the greatest reduction being for cabbage seed. Marked reductions are also shown in beet, carrot, onion, spinach and English and Swede turnip seed.

THE widely known firm, Dobbie & Co., Edinburgh, Scotland, has transformed its business into a private limited liability company, with a capital of £50,000, or at normal exchange approximately $250,000. The management remains unaltered and the partners, Messrs. Cuthbertson, Fife and Burnie, continue the same.

THE American Mutual Seed Co., Chicago, sends to agricultural seed buyers a 16-page house organ called Advance Seed News. It is gotten up in newspaper style, but practically everything in it is propaganda or direct advertising for the publisher. Judging from the size of the pile of mail sacks, a large edition is printed and distributed widely.

WHEN TITLE PASSES TO BUYER.

Previous to Actual Delivery.

Upholding the right of plaintiff to recover damages for defendants' failure to furnish seed potatoes of a kind bargained for, the North Carolina Supreme court lays down the following principles of sales law applying to the selling of flowers, nursery stock, seeds and other commodities:

It is not essential to a passing of title to goods sold that physical possession be given the buyer. For example, title commonly passes to a buyer to whom goods are shipped by the seller as soon as the seller ships them under a straight bill of lading in which the buyer is named as consignee.

But, even where title passes to the buyer under such bill of lading, he is entitled to an opportunity for reasonable inspection of the shipment on its actual arrival. And if it proves to be inferior to what he has bargained for, he may reject delivery without becoming liable for the purchase price. Furthermore, in such case he is entitled to sue for damages, measured by the difference between the contract price of the goods and their higher market value at the time and place agreed upon for delivery, in addition to recovering any money paid down on the purchase price. (Richardson vs. Woodruff & Sons, 100 Southeastern Reporter, 173.)

The Goods Had Been Accepted.

But a decision of the California District Court of Appeal, in the case of American Steel Pipe & Tank Co. vs. Hubbard (183 Pacific Reporter, 830), shows that a buyer's acceptance of goods may preclude him from asserting a misrepresentation by the salesman as to the character of goods to be delivered.

In this case plaintiff sued to recover the price of a lot of oil orchard heaters sold to defendant. The defense was that the heaters did not come up to the standard of a sample exhibited to her at the time she gave the salesman an order.

The court finds that the evidence failed to establish this defense, but adds that, in any event, defendant could not assert any difference between the sample and the heaters delivered, because she accepted delivery and distributed them throughout her orchards after full opportunity for inspection. The court says:

"While the court, in our opinion, upon sufficient evidence, found the goods were of the class and kind purchased by defendant, nevertheless, having opportunity to inspect the same, even were they different from those contracted for, she, by accepting and using them, must be deemed to have waived any objection on account of the heaters being otherwise than as represented by the seller."

Limits of Warranty.

Another point on which defendant was defeated in this suit relates to the question of warranty. She claimed that there was a breach of an implied warranty that the heaters were so constructed that water would not leak into them during rain storms. The contract of sale contained no reference to the quality of the heaters in this respect,

CATALOGUES RECEIVED.

Stokes Seed Farms Co., Moorestown, N. J.—An illustrated, well printed catalogue; 144 large pages and cover. The seed and nursery departments are both well represented, but the book is especially noticeable for the prominence it gives to garden furniture, bird houses, and such farm animals as cattle, sheep, ponies, dogs, etc.

Northrup, King & Co., Minneapolis, Minn.—Thirty-sixth annual catalogue of "Sterling Brand" seeds, vegetable roots, poultry feeds, insecticides, implements and sundries; illustrated, ninety-six pages, in a tasteful brown cover. The prices of vegetable seeds are not quoted in connection with the descriptions, but in a condensed, 8-page list at the beginning of the book.

Colorado Seed Co., Denver, Colo.—"Home Garden Seeds," an illustrated 72-page catalogue, offering not only seeds and bulbs, but also nursery stock, roses, perennials and a specially comprehensive stock of implements and supplies. Tree seeds are listed.

Northern Nursery Co., Ipswich, S. D.—"1920 Catalogue and Planter's Guide," illustrated; thirty-two pages and cover. Emphasis is placed on the advantage or necessity of using home-grown, acclimated stock in so northern a latitude as that of the Dakotas. An announcement on the back cover states that the company is preparing to add a seed department.

J. Chas. McCullough Seed Co., Cincinnati, O.—An illustrated catalogue, containing extensive lists of nursery stock, tools and other requisites, as well as full lines of seeds and bulbs; ninety-six pages, in a tasteful black and white cover. The company draws particular attention to its poultry supply department and also to its grass seeds, "prescribed for all soils and purposes."

C. W. Brown, Ashland, Mass.—A 12-page descriptive list of gladioli and dahlias. The list starts with twenty-six varieties of gladioli of Mr. Brown's own introduction. He offers gladiolus seeds as well as corms.

D. Hill Nursery Co., Inc., Dundee, Ill.—A 24-page wholesale list of both evergreen and deciduous stock. "You will find here offered," says the catalogue itself, "all sizes of evergreens, including seedlings, cuttings, grafts, once transplanted, twice transplanted, and heavy specimens several times transplanted." There are also assortments of dwarf and clipped evergreens for tubs, window boxes, etc. The deciduous stock consists largely of young plants for lining out, but larger sizes also are listed.

Sluis Bros., Ltd., Enkhuizen, Holland.—Wholesale catalogue of vegetable and flower seeds. Thirty-six of the total fifty-six pages are occupied by flower seeds. In the quotations of prices, one column is reserved for the prices of "seeds to be grown during the season of 1920 and for delivery as early as possible after harvest."

Ford Seed Co., Ravenna, O.—Two catalogues, general and wholesale, of "Ford's Sound Seeds." The general catalogue is an accurate, well illustrated book of sixty-four pages and colored cover. The wholesale list is condensed to twenty-four pages. Large lines of plants and nursery stock are offered, as well as all the classes of stock usually carried by seedsmen.

J. M. McCullough's Sons Co., Cincinnati, O.—"McCullough's Seed Catalogue and Amateur's Guide," illustrated, 120 pages, accurately edited and bound in an artistic though unpretentious cover. All departments of both the seed and nursery business have a place in the book. Particular attention is given to spraying for the control of diseases and pests; a large number of outfits for spraying are described and illustrated, and much tabulated information is given on "How and When to Spray."

Palisades Nurseries, Inc., Sparkill, N. Y.—Wholesale list of hardy perennials, vines, shrubs, roses, etc.; eight unusually large pages; accurately, compactly and clearly printed. "We print real prices," says the company, "which, as long as unsold and without engagement, we are willing to accept." A special offer is made of "surplus large-sized shrubs, growing on a piece of ground to be cleared this spring."

EVANSVILLE, IND.

The Market.

Stock is more plentiful, but still hardly enough to meet the demand. The weather remains cloudy, but not cold. There is much sickness and a large number of deaths.

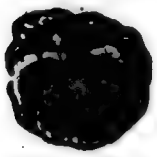
sending flowers and plants to the hospitals and sick rooms. They are propagating mums and carnations.

Theodore Kuebler reports business more quiet last week. He is still cutting some chrysanthemums. He has some fine cinerarias and primulas.

The Blackman Floral Co. is cutting a large quantity of flowers, for which the demand is heavy.



Leo Price, of the Lockyear Floral Co., who was injured in an automobile accident several weeks ago, is again able to attend to business.

Royston & Fenton report a heavy demand for coleus and Easter greeting pelargoniums.

Karl Zeidler is cutting good roses and carnations. He has a large batch of geraniums in 4-inch pots, also plants of all kinds for the spring trade.

Mrs. J. C. Elspermann has been having a big demand for funeral work and for flowers and plants for the sick room. E. L. F.

Great Falls, Mont.—The Electric City Conservatory made a special advertising effort for St. Valentine's day and reports by far the biggest business for that holiday in the firm's history. In fact, it was so much better that no comparison could be made. Bulbous stock and spring flowers were plentiful and there was a strong demand. Heart-shaped boxes, baskets, dolls and corsages found ready sale. Chas. A. Burrell thinks the successful advertising matter of the S. A. F. for St. Valentine's day ought to be followed by more for other holidays.

NEWS OF THE NURSERY TRADE

CAUTION in growers about overselling may result in surplus lists in the spring.

THE Berryhill Nursery Co. was recently incorporated with a capitalization of $55,000, by E. L. Shuey.

THE date of the annual meeting of the Arkansas Nurserymen's Association is set for May 28, at Little Rock.

THE death of J. M. Fontaine, who conducted a nursery business near Linden, Cal., is recorded in this week's obituary column.

THE impression is general that though there may be a scarcity of stocks at wholesale, there are sufficient supplies to fill retail orders.

O. C. KNUDSON, formerly of Keystone Park, Benson, Neb., has moved to Omaha, Neb., continuing in the landscape gardening and nursery business.

THE Buckeye Nurseries, Tampa, Fla., have been incorporated with a capital of $2,000,000. The officers are as follows: President, M. E. Gillett; vice-president, D. C. Gillett, and secretary and manager, George R. McKean.

SPECIALIZATION in growing has made greater the necessity of organization among nurserymen. No longer does one man grow all he sells. Some, indeed, grow nothing they sell, while others sell nothing that they grow to the consumer.

THE official roster of the Cherry Hill Nurseries, T. C. Thurlow's Sons, Inc., proprietors, at West Newbury, Mass., includes: President, George C. Thurlow; vice-president and general manager, David C. Stranger; treasurer, Winthrop H. Thurlow.

THIS season W. H. Barnes, of Neponset, Ill., will begin carrying his own line of nursery stock; previously he took orders and delivered them from an out-of-town firm. A cold storage building is already completed, work has been begun on a root house and other buildings will be added as rapidly as possible.

IN a general way the changing times have solved the business problems of the nursery trade. Whereas two years ago nursery stock was being sold so low that few in the trade were prosperous, now the supply is so much less than the demand that competition practically has ceased to be a factor and the seller works his own sweet will with prices. There are only a few items on which there is a surplus.

IF good prices are an incentive to increase production, the output of nursery stock, meaning fruit trees especially, should develop rapidly.

ACCORDING to a report of the federal forester at Salt Lake City, Utah, the government cottonwood nursery is soon to be closed. All large-scale planting work in that district will terminate with the present season, due to the high cost of getting the work properly done and to the fact that the plantable acreage in that territory is not nearly so large as originally estimated.

W. S. MARSHALL, Springfield, O., who has been superintendent and general manager of a large pecan and citrus nursery and experimental ground, and who has now a small experimental nursery of his own, where he has been carrying on experiments in hybridization for several years, has closed a deal for additional land, to be used exclusively for growing roses and shrubbery and for rose seedling beds.

A PASADENA nurseryman who imported 500 grapevines from New York state was surprised when the shipment was refused entry by Horticultural Inspector Thorndike on the ground that the roots of the vines showed evidences of having been attacked by the phylloxera. The importer thought that grapevines in California were generally affected with this pest, but was told that in southern California, at least, it was not prevalent.

PRESENT TRADE PROBLEMS.

Presented by Earl D. Needham.

The summary of nursery trade conditions and problems at the present time contained in the address of Earl D. Needham, retiring president of the Western Association of Nurserymen, at the Kansas City convention was one of the best that have been made. John Watson, executive secretary of the A. A. N., said he wished every nurseryman might have an opportunity to read it in full. The most important parts of the address follow:

"The nursery industry of today is one of specialists. No longer does the nurseryman take his customer through his establishment and assemble his purchases as he goes along; system has now taken the place of this haphazard method. No longer does the average nurseryman boast truthfully, 'I grow all the stock I sell;' specialists have taken his place.

"It has been determined that the climatic conditions of certain places permit the growing of a better shrub than can be grown at other localities, where possibly fruit trees, evergreens or strawberries do best. This has resulted in most nurserymen specializing on the lines that do best in their territory and prove most profitable to them. Some of these nurserymen are growers only, leaving the distributing to others who specialize in that part of the work. Thus we have the wholesale and the retail men, both interested in the same identical thing—the planting and growing of more trees, shrubs, etc.

"These retail nurserymen, whether they sell through catalogues or salesmen, are supposed to be the distributors of all the stock produced, not only by themselves, but also by the strictly wholesale men. With this arrangement in effect as it now exists, does it not become apparent to all that a close relation exists between the two branches of the nursery industry and that neither branch may be, or become, independent of the other without disturbing the whole scheme of affairs? If this plan, whereby the producer of the stock leaves to the retailer the task of distributing his wares, is most profitable for us, as it has proved to be in other lines of merchandising, then, can the factory be a stranger to the sales force, or must each understand the problems the other must effectively meet before success is attained?

Trade Conditions.

"Reports received from all sections of the country and branches of the industry indicate from a financial viewpoint that business is good. In volume, business is away ahead of former years and in most cases stock has been sold at a price which nets the seller a handsome profit. The price which ten months ago seemed unreasonably high, now appears low. However, it must be remembered that the prices quoted then, for stock to be delivered this spring, contemplated every business cost that has developed in the meantime; therefore no money has been lost by those early sales. It is more than probable that had not those early sales been consummated, the present high level of prices would not yet have been reached. Early sales have reduced the supply available for the late buyer, who wishes to secure his retail orders first, then buy what he needs to fill them. His frantic efforts have no doubt been somewhat responsible for the latest price increases. Surely the grower cannot argue that his business, even though secured at a higher price, is more profitable to him than that of the early, dependable and regular buyer.

"It is thought by some of the best informed nurserymen that while there is an apparently small supply of stock available at wholesale, nevertheless there are in most items sufficient quantities available to fill all retail orders.

"This line of reasoning, if correct, is due to the fact that wants were covered earlier this year than usual and that the retailers have been slow to unload any unsold stock, anticipating that they may need it themselves. The growers have been cautious about overselling and may possibly be undersold, so that by spring it is possible that an actual surplus may exist. If this condition develops and any fruit stock this year is burned, each of us will appreciate more than ever the need of the factory and sales force, or the grower and distributor, getting closer together, so that each may better understand the needs and problems of the other. Close cooperation will prevent many losses.

Price and Volume.

"The same 30-inch box still holds approximately 300 apple trees, which only a short time ago represented a wholesale value of $15 to $25, while now the invoice will likely read about $100. Therefore, when sales are doubled it is still possible that the volume or amount of stock used is cut in two.

"Retail men are thoroughly surprised in comparing present stock requirements with those of a few years ago. While the same 30-inch box now costs twice what it formerly did and while the labor to fill it has doubled in cost and freight and express increased twenty-eight per cent to thirty-five per cent, still, when the value at retail of this box filled is considered, a big reduction in operating cost is seen.

"It costs less today than ever before to pack, box and ship $100 worth of apple, cherry or other fruit trees. Some price increases are at present unwarranted.

"Holding firm to a fair price, refusing to be stampeded into demanding unreasonable prices and, whenever possible, offering a reduction to bring the price to a fair and normal basis, will do more to stabilize the business now and to save the profits which are now being made from filling a brush pile deficit in the near future than any other policy, especially one of overlooking the interests of the planter in order to get the last possible penny now.

"The retailer should be careful, in fact be slow in adding 1 cent to the present selling price. Doubtless some items would better be cut out rather than the public be disgusted with abnormal and unnecessary prices.

"Should we not endeavor to find more economical means in conducting

BALTIMORE.

The Market.

The market this week is much the same as it has been for the last two months, as regards both supply and prices. It is just a matter of each morning filling orders that have accumulated from the previous day. Then there is no stock left and the rest of the day is spent in filing orders, subject to procuring the stock, for the next day's business.

The last few days, which have been bright and clear, have increased the supply somewhat. Roses, carnations and sweet peas have been in a little better supply, but not in large enough quantity to relieve the shortage or to alter prices. Calla lilies are coming a little better, but all bulbous stock still remains scarce.

One reason given for the shortage of bulbous stock is that it has been impossible to get it out of the ground, where the growers have it buried, on account of the extremely cold weather, since it is frozen in so hard that it is impossible to get it out. This may be a good reason, but it would look as though proper care had not been exercised in burying the bulbs last fall. While this winter has been cold, yet there has been many worse ones and we have never heard this excuse before. If bulbs are buried in ashes, there should not be much trouble in getting them out; the writer has done it in much worse weather than we have had this winter. Some of the retailers are beginning to think that the growers are following a line of least resistance; that is, they are deriving as much from their short crops as they would from a normal one, and are satisfied.

St. Valentine's Day.

St. Valentine's day should have been one of the big flower days of the season. Flowers had been well advertised. Everyone was just as busy as he could be and sold everything he could get. But when it came to valentines, the business was by no means what it should have been; with violets at $4 and $5 per hundred and carnations at $3 and $4 per dozen, the public did not send floral valentines.

We advertised in the magazines that a floral valentine is the ''open sesame to a woman's heart''; that it is the smallest investment with the biggest returns. But when we ask the man of business instinct $4 for a dozen carnations, to say nothing of roses, is it any wonder he does some thinking before he decides on flowers? February 14, 1920, was not what it should have been from a valentine standpoint.

A Chat with a Wholesaler.

I called on the firm of Sieck & Glick and found both of the partners on the job after their recent illness. Mr. Sieck is as well as ever, but Mr. Glick, who had a heavy siege of sickness, is still weak. In talking over high prices and the shortage of stock, this member of the firm told me that all of their business was over early in the morning, that

NEW MUMS

It's time to think of what you will need in new Mums to recruit your collection, so as to cover the whole season in the various colors. These four new pink varieties will enable you to begin cutting pink as early as the other colors, and to cut continuously, which is important. Get a few of each variety early enough to take a cutting or two from each plant and reduce the first cost. We will begin delivery early in March.

$4.00 per doz., $25.00 per 100

HARBINGER—An early pink that should supersede Unaka on account of being a full flower and better color. Grows 5 eet from June planting.

PANDORA—Follows Harbinger in date of blooming. Bright deep pink. Grows 5 feet from June planting.

TOKIO—Follows Pandora. Grows 5 feet in height and produces blooms of exceptional quality for the season. Bright lavender pink.

PROGRESS—Follows Tokio and finishes as Chieftain comes on. Incurved form and large in size. Bright deep pink. Grows 4 feet and very stiff.

their receipts were as good as they had been in previous years, with much less work. But Mr. Glick realizes the fact that they might be doing at least twice the volume of business if they had the stock. He said he realized that they would not be getting the prices, but he felt that it would be better for the business. His argument was that it would be better to have a great number of flower buyers than a few, for the same amount of money involved. Mr. Glick says that one reason we do not hear so many complaints from the public about high prices is because they do not realize them. I asked him what he meant by this statement. His reply was that there was really not a great deal of counter work being done, that most of the flowers that are being used this winter are for funeral work; that when a man went into a store, for instance, and ordered a funeral offering for, say, $25, he did not realize the price of flowers as he would if he asked for a dozen roses over the counter and was charged $6 or $8. There is no doubt that Mr. Glick has been giving the matter of prices much serious thought, and I feel that he has the right idea.

Various Notes.

John J. Perry, of the S. S. Pennock Co., who was ill with pneumonia, is coming along finely and at this time is able to be up and about the house. But it would seem that troubles never come singly, for when Mr. Perry began to get better his good wife was taken down with the same trouble, and at this writing is extremely ill.

Ferdinand Guerth, also of the S. S. Pennock Co., is on the job again after a spell of pneumonia.

There is one grower in our midst who has the courage of his convictions. M. Hilpert does not feel that the shortage of stock this winter is due entirely to weather conditions and his aim is to have more of it for next winter. With this object in view he is now making arrangements for an addition to his range, on Belair road, of a house, 35x200, for carnations. We all know that building materials are high, but so are carnations, and before you can have rabbit potpie you must first catch your rabbit. Tate.

CINCINNATI, O.

The Market.

Last week showed little change in the prices of stock. Roses maintained the prices of the week previous. The advent of bulbous stock was thought to help matters, but we have not reached the point where supply equals demand. Until that time comes, no perceptible change will take place.

Carnations are of good quality and, while this city and its suburbs and the nearby Kentucky towns have a great many carnation growers, the demand of the local trade, in addition to the heavy call from southern cities, has kept the market on the short side. Carnations are a great favorite in southern cities; everyone seems to have roses in his garden and, in consequence, people are partial to carnations.

Hamburg Late Pink Chrysanthemum

This photograph was taken December 28, 1919, and will give a good idea of what HAMBURG LATE PINK looks like when grown to single stems and planted six inches each way.

Hamburg Late Pink is an improved late pink Maud Dean, having more petals and, if grown for late, will hardly ever show an open center.

The average grower of Chrysanthemums must have varieties which are easy to handle, and from which he can cut as near 100% of perfect blooms as possible. Hamburg Late Pink has been grown for the last four years, and produces a very high proportion of good flowers. It is not an exhibition variety, but for late pink is one of the best for commercial purposes. It can be had in bloom the latter part of November, by taking an early bud, but some of the flowers will show open centers. By selecting late buds, after October 1, most of the flowers are cut during December, and would advise to select late buds, as the later buds will hardly ever show an open center, and some flowers can be had even in January.

Keeping qualities are excellent and where a graceful pink flower is wanted, Hamburg Late Pink cannot be surpassed.

Hamburg Late Pink will be disseminated in the Spring of 1920. Plants will be ready March 1, 1920, and all orders will be filled in rotation.

GODFREY ASCHMANN, 1012 W. Ontario Street, PHILADELPHIA, PA.

Now that Lent has set in, the social functions are practically at a standstill. The retailers are taxed to the limit of their ingenuity to turn out work which is satisfactory in quantity as well as in quality, but it is surprising what one can accomplish when pushed against the wall. There is a more general use of cycas leaves with plumosus and handsome ribbon, also of wreaths of magnolia and oak leaves of good size with few flowers. Sprays of Benora carnations with a few red ones judiciously used make up well. Cinerarias have made their appearance.

Everyone is making plans for a big Easter business.

The Market.

Business dropped off considerably after St. Valentine's day and for the first time in months there has been plenty of stock for all needs. This is due, not only to decrease in demand, but also to the increase in the flowers being cut in this locality.

There is little demand for American Beauties. Roses in general consist of the medium and short grades, there being practically no long grades. Premier leads in quality and Ophelia also finds a good demand. Ward, Bon Silene and Sweetheart are short in supply. Carnations are high in quality and especially plentiful.

Spring flowers are not much in demand. At present the market sees tulips, narcissi, daffodils, freesias and hyacinths. Freesias are in oversupply. Snapdragons and anemones have appeared on the market and find a ready demand. Violets and sweet peas are in oversupply. Calendulas, pansies, wallflowers, primulas and Japanese lilies are to be had. Calla lilies sell readily. Greens of all kinds are plentiful.

IT IS THRIPS.

I have discovered a new pest, new to me at least, on chrysanthemums, stevias, feverfew and farfugium. It may be on other plants, but so far is not conspicuous. It resembles the red spider, both in appearance and effect on plants. It is minute, almost invisible to the naked eye and seems to have a filmy web like the spider. The shape is longer and more slender than the spider and it not only runs nimbly, but squirms as it crawls. It is the color of weak tea and almost transparent, but without any of the dark spots so characteristic of the spider. I have tried washing the plants with tobacco water and spraying with cold water under heavy pressure, but the results are not encouraging. It may be something common, but it is not green fly, white fly or red spider, though the affected leaves look like the work of the latter. It, however, does not confine itself so closely to the vein ridges as the spider, but roams rather freely.

F. B.—Minn.

According to the description of the insect, I am of the opinion that it is thrips. The best remedy I know of is to spray the plants with Hammond's Thrip Juice No. 2 according to directions. To be effective the spraying must be done thoroughly, especially underneath the foliage. M. P.

Yours for a tight house,

THE GARLAND COMPANY

CLEVELAND, OHIO, U. S. A.

Greenhouse Heating

SASH HOUSE IN CANADA.

My house is 12½x60 feet and is made of sashes. It is seven feet from floor to ridge. It lies at the east side of another house. The walls are four feet high; the east side has eighteen inches of glass, the north end adjoins the boiler pit and working room and the south end is glass. I have a 5-section, round boiler rated at 1,100 feet of radiation; its top is about eight inches below the greenhouse floor. The smoke flue has an 8-inch grade and a 22-inch diameter. The boiler has two 2½-inch outlets and two 2½-inch inlets. I wish to keep the house about 40 to 45 degrees when it is 30 degrees below outside. How should I arrange the heating for this house?

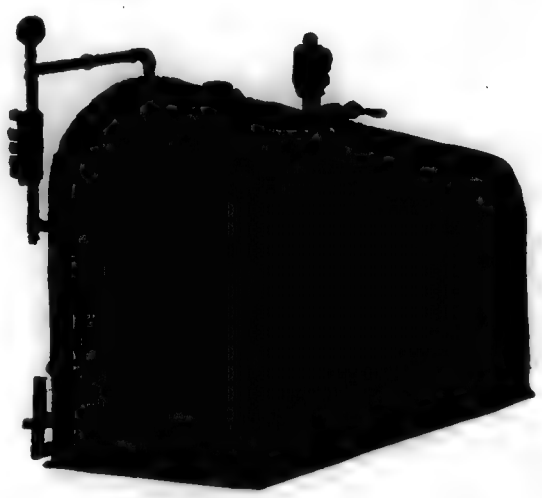
Please tell me also how I should take off the flows from the boiler so as to heat the next house, which I intend to pipe later on. This house is 17½x60 feet, eight and a half feet from floor to ridge and of the three-quarter-span type of construction. Its walls are all good. I should want to keep it at about the same temperature as the first house, using both of them for the growing of plants. I have 480 feet of 1½-inch pipe and 150 feet of 2-inch pipe on hand. A. P.—Can.

One 2½-inch supply pipe will answer for the narrow house, but a somewhat larger pipe should be used to supply the wider one. However, since the flow and return outlets are only 2½-inch, it will answer if 2½-inch connections are made with the boiler and 2-inch pipes are taken off as soon as possible to serve as flows and returns on the east side of the 17½-foot house.

Run a 2-inch flow pipe on each side plate of the narrow house and at the farther end connect each of these flow pipes with a return coil under the side benches. Five 1½-inch returns will be required on the side where the wall is exposed and four returns on the other.

In the 17½-foot house, after taking off a 2-inch flow pipe for the plate on the east side, carry the 2½-inch flow to a point opposite and about two feet below the ridge. There take off another flow and continue the main flow as a 2-inch pipe to the west wall plate, where it should be continued to the farther end of this house. This will provide three 2-inch flow pipes. Connect each flow with a coil of 1½-inch return pipes, using four returns in the west coil and three in each of the others, unless the house is in an exposed location, when it will be well to run four pipes in the center coil.

NUMBER OF FLOWS.



We are erecting three short-span houses of the A. Dietsch Co., as shown in the sketch sent you, and should appreciate some information regarding the heating system and arrangement of pipe, so that we may maintain a night temperature of 60 degrees.

The houses will be 14¾x225 and will be eight feet to the gutter, with six feet of glass in each wall. The houses are connected and there are solid benches throughout. We intend using 2-inch pipe. How many runs of pipe will it take and where will they be best placed to insure the desired temperature? Condensation is to be returned to the boiler, which is placed in the cellar of the boiler house and two feet below the floor level of the houses.

R. R. S.—O.

From the sketch it is seen that the boiler house is in the middle of the north side of the range and the range has a cross aisle at that point for the main feed line. From the size of the pipe, it might be inferred that hot water is to be used, but as condensation is to be returned to the boiler, it is evident that steam is to be used as the heating medium.

For low-pressure steam, a 5-inch steam main should be used until the supply pipes to the first house have been taken off, when it may be reduced to 4-inch and then to 3-inch for the third house.

To heat each of the houses, run a

Help Save the "White Coal of Industry"

The boiling hot water resulting from condensation in your steam lines is worth money. You have paid for it in terms of coal. It contains valuable heat units. It is the "White Coal of Industry"—it should not be wasted.

And it need not be wasted. The Morehead Back-to-Boiler System will save it for you by returning it to the boiler at temperatures as high as 400 degrees Fahrenheit. It reduces coal consumption an average of 20%. At the same time your steam will be "drier" and more efficient; your production speeded up and profits increased.

2-inch supply pipe as a main in each direction from the cross aisle on the plates of the side walls or on the purlins, to the farther end of each house. For the coils, use three 2-inch returns on each of the outer walls of houses 1 and 3, which have six feet of exposed glass. As we understand the construction of the houses, there are no partition walls, in which case it will answer if a 2-inch main is run each way on each of the inside lines of gutter posts, with two 2-inch returns on each side of these posts. There will then be four 2-inch flows running in each direction, with fourteen 2-inch returns, there being five returns in the middle house.

Instead of using 2-inch returns, it is preferable to use four 1¼-inch returns on each of the inside rows of gutter posts. All of the returns should be kept three feet above the floor of the greenhouses. Were it not that the water level of the boiler is so close to the level of the greenhouse floor, one of the returns might be carried in the inside walks.

AMOUNT OF PIPE.

We are sending a sketch of a greenhouse, 25x85 feet. The side walls are three feet of glass and three feet solid. The south end is a salesroom, while the north end is solid. The twenty-five feet next to the boiler room is also solid. I should like to install a new hot water boiler and should like to know how much pipe would be necessary and what would be the best arrangement of the pipes so as to have a temperature of 60 degrees in zero weather. The house runs north and south and is well protected on the west side. The twenty-five feet of space at the north end is occupied by ground benches, the rest by raised benches. Should the boiler be below the ground level? What, at present prices, ought this outfit to cost installed? R. M. C.—O.

To heat the house itself, about 1,100 feet of hot water radiation will be required for 60 degrees and it is probable that 100 square feet additional will be needed for the salesroom. To provide for this, as well as for the mains, the boiler should have a rating of at least 1,500 square feet of radiation, particularly if soft coal is to be used. With most boilers, this will mean a grate containing about six square feet.

Five 2½-inch flow pipes should be run the entire length of the two rooms, placing one on each plate, a third two feet below the ridge and the others under the purlins. With each flow pipe, supply three 2-inch returns, placing a coil under each of the benches. If possible, it would be preferable to run these through both rooms, but as it may not be feasible to run these returns through the north room, with its solid beds, it may be necessary to connect these returns at the partition between the rooms with a 4-inch return main and carry this at, or near, the floor level along the west wall of the north room and join it to the boiler.

If the coils from the south room cannot be continued through the north room, a 3-inch overhead flow should be run through the 25-foot house and,

BUFFALO.

The Market.

February 15 put the finishing touch to our starved market. A heavy snow storm came up Saturday afternoon, February 14, and continued all night and Sunday. With this there was a ripping wind, and Monday was a stay-at-home day for all growers on the outskirts of the city. The train traffic also was impaired, so that shipments came in a day late. Some roads were out of commission longer.

But when things look their worst, a change takes place. The demand for funeral flowers has fallen off a great deal and the sun has put in an appearance, so that everybody is now banking on a much better supply of stock soon.

Various Notes.

Paul Galley, of Gardenville, has been elected a trustee of the Union Fire Co.

The influenza has abated to the stage where it is no longer feared. The attack has been light in this city.

About May 1 the Fillmore Flower Shop will locate at Fillmore avenue and East Utica street, in a new building now under construction. This location will be a few doors from the present quarters.

W. J. Peake, of Walden avenue, has put up an attractive sign. At night it is undoubtedly the most vivid in the city. F. P. A.

Club Meeting.

The Lancaster County Florists' Club held its monthly meeting in the Chamber of Commerce rooms February 19, with President-elect W. B. Girvin in the chair. After some discussion it was decided not to raise the membership dues and also that ladies should have full membership privileges.

The club was fortunate in having as a speaker F. S. Bucher, who has aided so many Lancaster county farmers in increasing the fertility of their soil. He gave to the club much valuable information on the value of legumes for cover crops and their worth in supplying nitrogen, and also on the value of lime and its application. In short, it was the best talk the club had heard for some time.

The club expects to attend the New York flower show Thursday, March 18, leaving Lancaster at 6:05 a. m., giving members four or five hours at the exhibition. Members contemplating going should get in touch with Albert M. Herr, secretary.

Elmer J. Weaver, with some other florists of the county, had visited G. W. Kerr at Doylestown, Pa., where the W. Atlee Burpee Co. grows its winter-flowering sweet peas, and made an exhibit at the club meeting of Mr. Kerr's new varieties.

Owing to the proposed visit to the New York flower show, the March meeting will not be held.

The Market.

Local florists continue to have much funeral work. Though the flu epidemic has subsided, the death rate stays high, due to pneumonia. Several florists report a number of pre-Lenten weddings. The cut flower trade continues to be dull, due largely to the high prices. St. Valentine's day and Washington's birthday trade was reported good by most of the local florists.

Various Notes.

Philips Bros., 938 Broad street, report that their St. Valentine's day business was the largest since they have been in the trade. Many telegraph orders helped to swell the total. The amount of the individual orders was higher than usual.

Henry A. Strobell, Broad street, had an attractive Washington's birthday window display, in which baskets of cherries played a conspicuous part.

The Market.

Prevailing weather conditions are such as to insure a heavy increase in production. Prices, therefore, are already much lower and the outlook for the retailer much brighter. Business keeps brisk. The influence of Lent this year is only small in regard to house parties and other social affairs. Bulbous stock, sweet peas and freesias are of fine quality and plentiful.

Various Notes.

The Jacob Schulz Co. and the William Walker Co. have been exceedingly busy. Everybody in both stores was on the jump and stock moved faster as the increased supply came in.

At the greenhouses of Marret & Miller, on Cherokee road, the stock of Easter lilies is progressing in fine shape and expectations for a good crop for Easter are high. B.

Hamilton, O.—R. G. Bock has recently returned from eighteen months of overseas service with an ammunition train and has purchased a greenhouse on Fair avenue, where he will grow cut flowers in addition to the present line of spring plants. Mr. Bock has been steadily employed in the trade since 1907, when he was apprenticed to his uncle, the late Theodore Bock, of Hamilton.

THE ROSE BUG IS DOOMED

THE FLORO-CHEMICAL CO.

Announces the First and Exclusive Offering of

MELROSINE

(TRADE MARK)

The first real and only effective remedy for the destruction of the rose beetle or chafer

Reprinted from The Florists' Exchange, February 7, 1920.

Is the Rose Bug Doomed?

If there exists anywhere around this section a more cantankerous brute—one that you cannot possibly have a sympathetic feeling for, as in the old way, you drop him into the can of oil—than the Rose bug, we don't know of it, him or her. You go over your Roses in the dewy morn or at nearly twilight and gingerly pick or shake him and her off the Roses until you can't see a last one remaining—but he and his wives and family (or their close relatives) are back again on the job next day about as numerous as before, doing their spiteful best to disfigure and destroy your Roses.

Once we thought we had a remedy. Fifty young chickens one day found their way down to big old Crimson Rambler, just when the bugs were coming to the surface. What a glorious time those chicks had that day! The second day they were not so keen on the Rose bug food. And the third day they absolutely refused to go anywhere near. However, that Summer that particular bush (which was isolated from the Rose beds) was little troubled.

This story is just en passant.

Seriously, any eradicator of the Rose bug pest will be hailed with joy by commercial grower, private gardener and amateur, whatever be the form it may take or the labor it may entail.

We follow with a letter from Mr. Wohlert, an old and esteemed subscriber for The Exchange, and wish only to add our hope that the preparation he mentions will be made known to the commercial man before the Rose bug makes its next appearance.

• • • •

Editor The Florists' Exchange:

Rose bugs are surely difficult creatures to get away with and up to the present it has been almost impossible to eliminate them. Therefore, perhaps, you may be pardoned for your comment in your issue of Jan. 24, upon a remedy for Rose bugs in a manner which cannot but leave the impression that such a remedy or this particular remedy, is of but little value in ridding our Roses of this injurious insect. I hold no brief from the originator or introducer of this remedy, but having known the originator for many years and having watched with great interest his endeavors to perfect his remedy, I feel qualified and justified in stating that his remedy not only is an efficient one from my viewpoint, but know that it has been severely tested by many men well known to the trade who would not vouch for its merits as they have done were the remedy not a most excellent one.

It seems to me that your comment was not exactly proper, at this time, inasmuch as we should encourage any helpful endeavors to assist horticulture, and I am sure Mr. Barclay, the originator, should, by all means, receive a vote of thanks from all horticulturists for doing something for us which has heretofore not been done, particularly as he did not allow the remedy to be marketed until it had been tested out by such authorities as Theodore Wirth, J. Horace McFarland, Bureau of Entomology of Pennsylvania and others—this relieving buyers purchasing a pig in a bag.

I have no financial interest in this preparation, but know it to be of commercial value, also I understand a New York seedsman has thought well enough of it to pay a good price for it.

A. E. WOHLERT.

Narbeth, Pa.

The product of a private gardener, Mr. Hugh Balfour Barclay, of Merion, Pa., to whom horticulture owes an everlasting debt for his discovery.

Mr. Barclay conducted exactly 872 experiments before he was satisfied that his product was really effective and good enough to be placed on the market, assuring the public of an article which fulfilled every need demanded of it.

In 1919, samples were sent to the most eminent Rosarians and Horticulturists in America for tests, and all have voiced their approval by word and letter. To the skeptical ones, we will gladly mail copies of written testimonials.

MELROSINE while destroying the Rose bug does not leave a blemish or spot on the flower, nor has it any odor.

MELROSINE when used is diluted with twenty times the amount of water. Full directions for use on each can.

MELROSINE is sold as follows: Sample cans, enough to make a gallon of diluted mixture for thorough trial on a number of plants, 50c; per pint, $1.00; per quart, $1.75; per 2 quarts, $3.25; per gallon, $6.00; per 5 gallons, $25.00; per 10 gallons, $45.00.

A special discount of 10 per cent is allowed to florists and growers and a further discount if put in stock for selling over the counter.

HERE IS YOUR OPPORTUNITY to make an extra dollar when trade is dull.

THE FLORO-CHEMICAL CO., Park Ave. and 146th St., New York, N.Y.

TORONTO, ONT.

The Market.

Florists are still busy and are in the same position as before with regard to stock; that is, they could handle more flowers than they are able to obtain. The death lists are now much smaller and the flu is rapidly decreasing. Still there are many demands for designs and the florists are using their ingenuity in making them up to stretch the available stock as far as possible.

In spite of Lent, there are a number of receptions and other social affairs and there are many orders from this source.

The opening of the federal parliament in Ottawa next week has taxed the capacity of the Ottawa florists and many orders have been booked with Toronto florists for supplies of flowers.

There is little change in wholesale prices except for carnations, which have advanced, and mignonette, which has advanced for first-grade stock.

Various Notes.

There is still a considerable list of florists ill. J. J. Higgins was ill for a week. Mrs. J. J. Higgins suffered a relapse and is again under the doctor's care. John H. and Frank Dunlop are both laid up with the flu. Mrs. G. W. Warren is recovering from the flu, as is also W. J. Hoath.

Much sympathy is expressed for Mr. and Mrs. Charles K. Cooper, who lost their only child, Doreen Helen, aged 14 months, of pneumonia.

The regular meeting of the Gardeners' and Florists' Association was held February 17. It was decided to support the effort to have a botanical garden established in or near Toronto. The Ontario Horticultural Society is also supporting this scheme and a delegation from Toronto University has already waited on the Ontario government, urging that such a project be taken up. The plan is finding favor with florists generally. The next regular meeting of the Gardeners' and Florists' Association will be held March 16 and the annual social March 9.

The Toronto Retail Florists' Club will hold its regular meeting March 8.

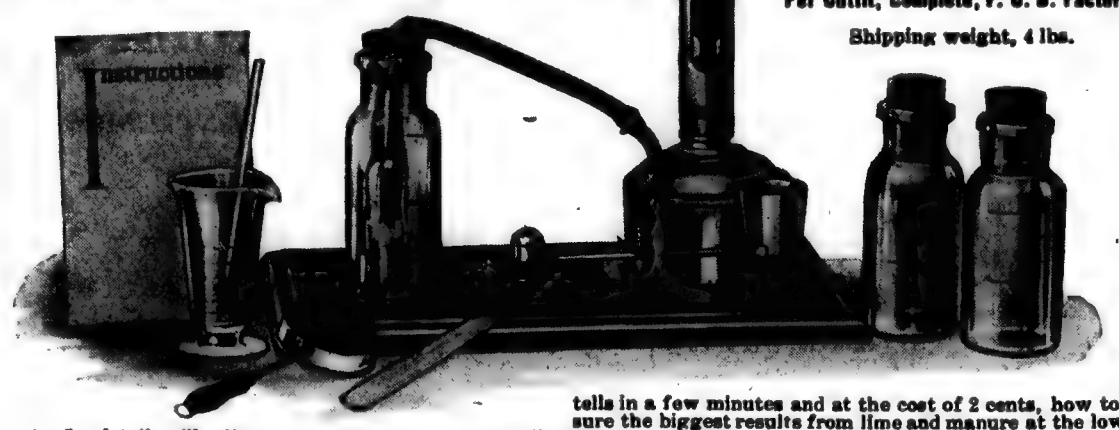
Test and Correct Every Field Before Planting From Corrected Soils

THE "BIG CROP" Soil Test Tells whether or not any piece of land is in the proper condition to produce a "BIG CROP" and serves you as a guide how to correct faulty soil conditions

LIME AND MANURE (organic matter) are the most important "BIG CROP" makers in the soil. If the soil runs short in these elements, crop yields run short also.



The "BIG CROP" Soil Test tells you whether or not any piece of land is in the proper condition to produce a "BIG CROP." It tells in a few minutes and at the cost of 2 cents, how to insure the biggest results from lime and manure at the lowest cost. In detail will tell you: Whether or not your soil needs lime; whether or not manure (organic matter) is needed.

Progressive Greenhouse Growers and Truck Gardeners don't guess any more as to what the soil contains. They know what it should contain and make sure of it with the "BIG CROP" Soil Tester. Make sure of the lime and manure in the soil and you will always have a big crop as far as the soil is concerned.

The "BIG CROP" Soil Tester is sold on the money back guarantee if not satisfactory. Play safe; it means money to you A trial will convince you.

Repair that Leaky or Cracked Boiler Without Shutting Off the Heat

EVERY greenhouse man who has ever had a leaky or cracked boiler knows what a lot of time, trouble and money that means.

Yet all the fuss and worry attendant upon the old-fashioned method of repairing is now entirely unnecessary.

"X"—the wonderful Boiler Liquid will do $200.00 worth of repair work for $10.00; and do it in about half an hour.

"X" Is a Scientific Process of Repairing Without Dismantling or Welding

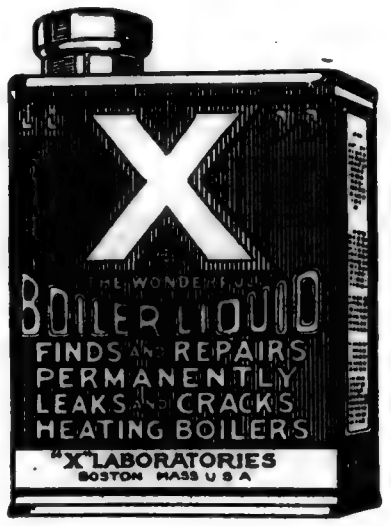
"X" is an absolute liquid. It is simply poured into the boiler and instantly combines itself with the water. In sizzling out through the leak or crack the "X" is changed by the atmospheric oxygen into a metal-like solid, making a permanent repair. This repair is gradually hardened by the heat in the boiler, so that it stands a pressure of over one-quarter of a ton.

The surplus "X" that remains in the water automatically stops all new leaks due to expansion or other causes. In this way "X" Liquid makes the boiler (and in a hot water system, the entire system) absolutely LEAKPROOF.

Makes Boilers Rustproof and Scaleproof Saves Coal

The chemical composition of "X" Liquid is such that it absorbs all free oxygen in the water. This prevents the metal from Rusting. "X" also prevents the lime and other scale-forming elements in the water from depositing layers of Scale on the walls. "X" keeps the boiler Rustproof and Scaleproof.

"X" does not evaporate or lose its strength with age. When new water is added it combines itself with this water and performs its functions again and again.



"X" contains no cement, powder or other injurious ingredients. It cannot clog the air valves; in fact it makes frequent repacking of valves unnecessary.

A Strong Guarantee!

You take no chance in using "X" Liquid. It is unconditionally guaranteed to make good. If it fails you get a new can—or your money back.

But your greatest guarantee of the value of "X" is the fact that it is used, sold and recommended by 99 per cent of the manufacturers of boilers and radiators. It is used by the U. S. Government.

If your boiler cracks or leaks this winter you don't have to worry about your greenery—if you keep a can of "X" Liquid handy. Just get a can of "X" and do the repair job yourself.

Get "X" Liquid from your steamfitter, or we will ship, charges prepaid, on receipt of price.

The Market.

Although a few more varieties of flowers are appearing, the market, as a whole, is in but little better condition than last week. Roses remain scarce and high-priced. Carnations are a little more plentiful, but by no means adequate.

Bulbous stock is more in evidence. Fuchsias are getting quite plentiful and jonquils, daffodils, hyacinths and amaryllis are also seen. Calla lilies are in good supply and are good property, because of the great demand for funeral work. Sweet peas are in constant demand, but are limited in quantity.

The terrible scourge of sickness continues and the death rate is high. Flowers are in constant demand for both purposes and everyone is kept busy filling orders and the entire stock of flowers is utilized.

Potted plants are greatly in demand for sick rooms. Among this class are cyclamens, primroses, begonias, cinerarias, jonquils, daffodils and hyacinths.

Social functions have been few lately, due to the epidemic of influenza, and the demand for corsages and decorations has been meager. Nevertheless, small flowers have had their place and have been readily sold. Violets, sweet peas, freesias, orchids, pansies, calendulas and baby roses have all been good property.

Various Notes.

The March meeting of the Indiana State Florists' Association will be held at the Smith & Young Co. commission house, March 2. The main topic for discussion will be the entertainment and provision to be made for the F. T. D. at its next meeting, which will be held in Indianapolis, October 14.

Frank Sachs, a former Indianapolis florist, died in Iowa of the influenza. John Hartje, a cousin of the deceased, went to attend the funeral.

Some of the local stores had attractive window displays for Lincoln's and Washington's birthdays.

Good reports are being heard from the sick. A. F. J. Baur's children are considerably better; the Schwomeyers are able to be up again. Charles Rieman is again at work, Martin Nelson is on the job again and others who have been off for a few days are improving.

Because the two night firemen went to sleep on the job, the large boiler at the greenhouses of B. F. Hensley, Knightstown, Ind., was damaged by the intense heat, causing a heavy loss.

Gordon, Wis.—Mrs. L. E. Meyer has been doing a large business in evergreens, including wreaths, roping and branches, as well as moss and cones.

Hanover, Pa.—S. M. Rudisill, who has been specializing in asters the last two years, plans this coming season to grow them much more extensively and also to grow roses and a few other flowers in addition.

Westerville, O.—The Glen-Lee Place, conducted by V. W. Lee and Mrs. Mary E. Lee, handles coal in addition to its florists', seed and nursery business. Mrs. Mary E. Lee writes the column, "Town and Countryside," in the local newspaper also.

How large lawns are kept in fine condition

Cutting large plots of grass with hand mowers is a tedious, expensive job. Labor is scarce and its cost is high. As a consequence, many large fine lawns have deteriorated badly during the past two years.

Not so, however, with those who have an Ideal Power Lawn Mower to do the work. For one man with an Ideal can easily cut as much grass per day as five hard working men with hand mowers. And he will do the work better.

Advantages of the Ideal

The Ideal is a power mower and roller in one and the sod is rolled every time the grass is cut. This keeps it smooth, firm and free from bumps. The Ideal is scientifically designed to keep lawns in fine condition. The weight is just right for steady year around work.

The Mower has a thirty-inch cut and one man can easily mow four or five acres of grass per day at an operating expense of about fifty cents for fuel and oil.

Cuts Close to Walks, Trees and Shrubbery

Machine turns easily and will cut close up to walks, trees, flower beds and shrubbery. When running over walks, driveways, pavements, etc., the operator simply lifts the cutting mower from the ground by means of a conveniently placed lever.

This feature is also important in the early spring when it is desired to use the machine for rolling only. Simply lift up the cutting mower, add more weight if required and you have the most convenient power roller imaginable.

The success of the Ideal is due to its sturdy and powerful, yet simple, construction. No clutches or complicated parts to wear and get out of order. The motor is built in our own shop and designed especially for the work.

Owners of large estates, public parks, golf clubs, country clubs, cemeteries, etc., are all using the Ideal Tractor Lawn Mower with great success.

Special Cutting Mower for Putting Greens

For work on golf courses we furnish, at slight additional cost, a special set of cutting blades for use on the putting greens. In less than five minutes the regular 30" blade can be substituted for cutting the fairway.

When desired, we also furnish, as an extra, a riding trailer which fastens to the frame and permits the operator to ride and at the same time have the same easy control as when walking.

You can secure the Ideal through your dealer direct or from our factory. Write today for catalogue and further details.

CALLAS

GODFREY CALLAS.
Are the only ones that you can make money on. Your blooms don't come all at once; but get them once established and with proper attention, you have a steady cut of blooms; and then, how the Godfrey does bloom.
We have 40000 well established bulblets in flats, just the kind to grow on for next season; we are offering at $2.50 per 100, or $22.50 per 1000 prepaid. Fine lot of 2½-in. in pots, ready for move up, $5.00 per 100 or $45.00 per 1000. Cash.
C. L. HUMPHREY,
ZANESVILLE, OHIO.

YELLOW CALLAS: Calla Elliottiana, the pretty golden yellow Calla, with green foliage flecked with yellow. Makes a splendid Easter or Memorial Day novelty. Forcing size bulbs, $15.00 per 100.

HERE'S A GOOD ONE
Everyone who grows single Pompons knows Mrs. E. D. Godfrey. It has been the best late pink variety. Now comes a sport of Godfrey, its name is:
ANNABEL
It is a sturdier grower with exceptionally good foliage. Has long stiff stems, well branched. Have cut stems with seventeen flowers and buds running up to 3½ in. across. Unusually good keeper in bench or when cut. Color, a beautiful cerise, tending toward lavender. Flowers of anemone type with several rows of petals, and yellow center. Season of blooming, Thanksgiving to Christmas. It is better than parent or any other Pompon and will bring more money. It is later than any variety we know of. 2¼-in. plants for delivery April and later. Orders filled in rotation. Order early. Sold under agreement that you dispose of no stock to any person until 1922. Prices, $3.00 per doz., $20.00 per 100, $180.00 per 1000. Strong plants and careful packing guaranteed.

Mr. Florist, grow Dahlias for profit. Be sure you have the right varieties, then you will be sure to get the profit. We can offer you a hundred varieties of our own growing, but offer you here 7 varieties that will assure you profit. Each variety produces freely, high quality, perfect, long stem, good keeping cut flowers, absolutely true. Last year we grew 2½ acres of these 7 varieties alone for our local trade and did not have enough. This year we will grow 5 acres of these 7 varieties.

NONE BETTER.
We offer a selected quality. All produced from young bulbs that were never allowed to flower. We guarantee our stock to be up to size, free from disease, and will refund any money advanced if dissatisfied upon return of bulbs. It is important to know from whom you buy. We own our own stock which was especially grown for us. Our growers and ourselves stand back of you.

Willis E. Fryer, Mantorville, Minn.,
Dear Sir: Book me for 500 of the Gladiolus Mrs. W. E. Fryer under ½-in. Considering the size of the bulbs, under ½-in., it did fine with me last summer and every bulb produced a bloom. It is by far the finest red that I have yet seen. Yours truly, J. G. Burrows.

Mrs. W. E. Fryer, No. 1, $5.00 per 100, $40.00 per 1000; No. 2, $4.00 per 100, $30.00 per 1000; No. 3, $3.00 per 100, $24.00 per 1000; No. 5, $2.00 per 100, 300 for $5.00. Bulblets, $3.00 per 1000; qt. of about 4000, $10.00. Primulinus, per 100, No. 1, $5.00; No. 2, $4.00; No. 3, $3.00; No. 4, $2.25; No. 5, $1.75. This is fine for early cut flowers. Halley, No. 4, $8.00 per 1000; No. 5, $5.00 per 1000. Choice Mixed, No. 3, $6.50 per 1000; No. 4, $5.00 per 1000; No. 5, $3.00 per 1000. Bulblets, $2.50 per peck. Crackerjack, No. 3, $7.00 per 1000; No. 4, $5.00 per 1000; No. 5, $3.00 per 1000. Hohenstauffen, per 100, No. 1, $3.50; No. 2, $2.50; No. 5, $1.00. This grows a tall spike and will produce more flowers than any white I ever grew.
The largest stock of seedling Iris of my own, originating in the U. S. 5000 transplanted baby seedlings of the tall bearded Iris, and not one of this number has been selected to name. Write for new descriptive list of over 80 varieties.

Mrs. Watt; almost the exact shade of Hadley Rose, brilliant wine, one color, excellent keeper, no crooked spikes. We have sold one hundred thousand bulbs of this variety so far this season, and above that number were sold by us last season. The winner for best vase of bloom, Mrs. Watt, at National Gladioli Show last summer, states: "The vase of Mrs. Watt bloom attracted fully as much attention as any vase of bloom in the hall." All size bulbs sold except the following: ½-in. and under, $10.00 per 1000, $75.00 for 10,000, f.o.b. Wilton. 5% discount for cash with order. No orders accepted for less than 1000.

A Couple of Comments on Ease of Installation

E. H. Sunbury, of Wamesit, Massachusetts, writes the following:

"The Skinner System of Irrigation is the simplest and easiest to install, as well as the most practical I have ever heard of."

This is what Mr. R. Scheffler, of Wheaton, Illinois, writes:

"The Skinner System can be put up by any handy man."

EVERTITE
GLAZING CEMENT

Applied with an

"OH BOY"
Automatic Glazing Gun

The Ideal Combination

Patent applied for. S. A. KOST, Inventor.

EVERTITE GLAZING CEMENT remains elastic at all times—forming a waterproof and airtight joint over the sashbar. EVERTITE GLAZING CEMENT will stand the extreme expansion and contraction that a greenhouse is subject to and will not check or crack—nor will it harden.

EVERTITE GLAZING CEMENT applied with a new "Oh Boy" Gun (see cut above) makes an ideal combination. This gun, which is the last word in glazing guns, allows Evertite Glazing Cement to flow in a uniform consistency all the time. Note the ease with which this gun can be handled. Think of what you have used and draw your own conclusion.

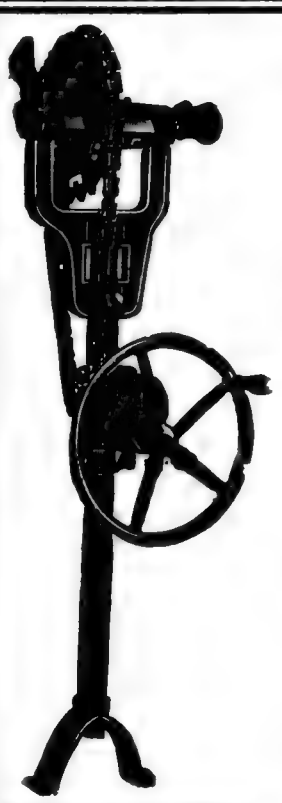
AGMCO AGMCO AGMCO

L. Stapp Co., of Rock Island, Illinois, orders three more All Steel Greenhouses, 34 x 300

The Stapp Company have been buying greenhouse material and building greenhouses off and on for thirty years. They used to buy materials years ago a good deal like most florists did then, the heating pipes from a local dealer, the glass through the local jobber, and the millwork from us. Then they would hire some local carpenters and after many vexatious delays and mistakes the greenhouses would finally get built after a fashion.



They do it in a different way now—they simply give us the contract complete and we turn the houses over to them ready for them to wheel the soil in the benches. Troubles and worries are over and the job is done right.

How about having us handle your job this way?

INDEX TO ADVERTISEMENTS AND TABLE OF CONTENTS..PAGES TWO AND THREE

Greenhouse Builders

Those of you who know M. Matherow, of Baldwin, Long Island, know he has a reputation for sending to New York, top-notch cuts. He swears by the wide house. This is an interior of one of his.

You who are fortunate in knowing W. J. Pilcher, of Kirkwood, Mo., no doubt have heard him say that he wouldn't build another narrow house on his place. He even thinks it might pay him to rip down his narrow ones, and put up another big L & B one like this one of his, at the left.

Is the Wide House a Fad?

Not so long since, the Manager of our Chicago office was present at a Florist Club meeting in Kansas City, when the wide house question came up.

Some said it was just an Eastern fad. To which our Manager answered:

"Well, suppose it is a fad, is that anything against it? Growing Carnations in the benches, instead of the field, used to be called a fad, yet think of the hundreds of growers who are doing it now.

"Automobiles used to be considered a fad, yet who of you would or could be without one today?

"Isn't it so, that with any new thing, of whose merits you and I are not yet thoroughly convinced, we kind of kid ourselves along by saying, 'Oh, that's only a fad. Wait a few years and it will be a thing of the past.'"

But somehow, when a certain thing makes a fellow's cash register ring more than some other thing, why not put your money in it?

You would like to lessen work, wouldn't you?
The wide house does it.

You'd like to overcome overhead chilling of plants from ridge vents, wouldn't you?
Wide houses do it.

You'd like to overcome chilling by sudden drops of temperature, wouldn't you?
The wide house does it.

You'd like to cut down coal bills, wouldn't you?
The wide house does it.

How it does it, and why it does it, I'll tell you in an early issue.
So be on the lookout.

Greenhouse Builders

Those of you who know M. Matheron, of Baldwin, Long Island, know he has a reputation for sending to New York, top-notch cuts. He swears by the wide house. This is an interior of one of his.

You who are fortunate in knowing W. J. Pilcher, of Kirkwood, Mo., no doubt have heard him say that he wouldn't build another narrow house on his place. He even thinks it might pay him to rip down his narrow ones, and put up another big L & B one like this one of his, at the left.

Is the Wide House a Fad?

Not so long since, the Manager of our Chicago office was present at a Florist Club meeting in Kansas City, when the wide house question came up.

Some said it was just an Eastern fad. To which our Manager answered:

"Well, suppose it is a fad, is that anything against it? Growing Carnations in the benches, instead of the field, used to be called a fad, yet think of the hundreds of growers who are doing it now.

"Automobiles used to be considered a fad, yet who of you would or could be without one today?

"Isn't it so, that with any new thing, of whose merits you and I are not yet thoroughly convinced, we kind of kid ourselves along by saying, 'Oh, that's only a fad. Wait a few years and it will be a thing of the past.'"

But somehow, when a certain thing makes a fellow's cash register ring more than some other thing, why not put your money in it?

You would like to lessen work, wouldn't you?
The wide house does it.

You'd like to overcome overhead chilling of plants from ridge vents, wouldn't you?
Wide houses do it.

Dreer's Cannas

This season we harvested the finest and largest crop of Cannas that we have ever grown

KING HUMBERT

And all the other good varieties you should have are included in our list and the roots are heavy and firm.

PRICES. The prices quoted are for dormant roots, which can usually be supplied until about the first of April, after which pot plants will be sent out and in which the advance in price will be as follows: All varieties listed at $7.00 or less per 100 will be supplied in pot plants at $8.00 per 100 or $70.00 per 1000, and on varieties listed above $7.00 per 100 there will be no change in price between dormant roots and pot plants.

All have green foliage unless otherwise specified.

ELEVEN SPECIAL VARIETIES

Carmine Beauty. Deep bright carmine flowers freely produced high above the heavy dark-green foliage which has a narrow red margin. 4½ ft. 15 cts. each; $1.50 per doz.; $10.00 per 100; $90.00 per 1000.

Cheerfulness. No more appropriate name could be given to this brilliant novelty. Its beautiful bright fire-red or deep orange flowers appear early and continue without interruption until frost. Add to the prevailing color a golden border and center with each petal flaked carmine-crimson and you may form some conception of this fascinating variety. 3½ ft. 10 cts. each; 85 cts. per doz.; $6.00 per 100; $50.00 per 1000.

City of Portland. A wonderful bright rosy-pink, much deeper in color than Mrs. Alfred Conard or Hungaria; a free-flowering, vigorous grower. 3½ ft. 20 cts. each; $2.00 per doz.; $12.00 per 100; $100.00 per 1000.

Fairy Queen. The dwarf, compact plants of this distinct novelty are covered with flowers from spring until fall. The plant rarely exceeds 3 feet in height. The flowers, of a clear rose-pink, are of medium size, good substance and borne upright on stout stems in great abundance. Each flower has a distinct cream-colored border.

We believe Fairy Queen will become one of the very popular Cannas. 60 cts. each; $6.00 per doz.; $50.00 per 100.

Flag of Truce. A large-flowered, creamy white with faint pink dots on each petal. The general effect is white. Not as white nor as tall as Eureka, but quite distinct and valuable. 4 ft. 35 cts. each; $3.50 per doz.; $20.00 per 100.

Golden Eagle. A wonderful clear golden-yellow of free, upright growth. The flowers are produced in large clusters well above the foliage. 4 ft. 35 cts. each; $3.50 per doz.; $20.00 per 100.

Harmony. Great clusters of good-sized, well-formed Geranium red flowers are arranged on good stems in such a manner as to give the trusses an almost globular appearance. 3½ ft. 20 cts. each; $2.00 per doz.; $15.00 per 100.

Pocahontas (Bronze-leaved Olympic). Large oriental-red flowers borne on firm upright stems, just high enough above the foliage to show the entire head. The foliage is a dark bronze-green with emerald shadings; the ribs a darker bronze. 4 ft. 20 cts. each; $2.00 per doz.; $15.00 per 100; $100.00 per 1000.

Poppy. Intense poppy-red. Large perfect florets in good trusses over greenish-bronzy foliage. Rich and effective. 5 ft. 20 cts. each; $2.00 per doz.; $10.00 per 100; $90.00 per 1000.

Remarkable. This effective bronze-leaved variety stands out boldly among other sorts, not only on account of its height (6 ft.), but because of the beautiful scarlet-carmine trusses of bloom surmounting the rich green-bronze foliage. 20 cts. each; $2.00 per doz.; $10.00 per 100; $90.00 per 1000.

Surprise. The brightest red Canna we have. It surpasses in brilliancy such popular varieties as Meteor and Lafayette and produces its great trusses with equal freedom. 4 to 5 ft. 35 cts. each; $3.50 per doz.; $25.00 per 100.

Mrs. Karl Kelsey. (Orchid Flowered). Orange-scarlet, suffused and striped with yellow; 5 ft.	50	3 50	30 00
Mrs. Woodrow Wilson. A rich but soft crimson-pink, with very large flowers, a robust grower and free bloomer; 4 ft.	2 00	15 00
Olympic. Rich Oriental-red, shading lighter to the centre and dappled carmine. The individual florets and trusses are very large and of excellent form. 5 feet.	$0 85	$ 6 00	$50 00
Orange Bedder. One of our own introductions and unquestionably the best of its color, a particularly bright orange with just sufficient scarlet infusion to intensify the dazzling mass of color; very free flowering. Awarded a certificate of merit by the S. A. F. & O. H. at New York, August, 1917; 5 ft.	60	5 00	40 00
Panama. The color and markings of this splendid Canna are unusual; the rich orange-red face of the petals is bordered with a broad edge of golden-yellow; 5 ft.	60	4 00	35 00
Pennsylvania. Vermilion-scarlet overlaid with orange; 5 ft.	50	3 50	30 00
Philadelphia. Rich deep red; 4 ft.	60	4 00	35 00
Queen Charlotte. Rich pomegranate-red bordered with golden-yellow; 3 ft.	85	6 00	50 00
Rosea Gigantea. Large flowers, borne in such abundance that the mass of color is amazing. A deep rich rose, almost a coral-carmine; 4 ft.	1 25	8 00	70 00
Salmon Queen. Rosy salmon-scarlet, blending to a rosy carmine towards the center, a very effective bedder; 5 ft.	85	6 00	50 00
Scharfenstein. The beautifully formed, large round florets are produced in compact but graceful trusses. The color is a unique light red salmon with orange and carmine suffusions that forms a most attractive addition to the range of colors found in Cannas; 5 ft.	85	6 00	50 00
Schopenhauer. A rich brilliant red with yellow throat, very free; 3 ft.	75	5 00	40 00
Souv. de F. Langle. Very distinct orange-red color, edged with gold; 4½ ft.	75	5 00	40 00
Superb. Deep salmon with bronze foliage; 4½ ft.	60	4 00	35 00
The Gem. An entirely distinct spotted variety. The immense trusses of flowers are borne on upright branching stems well above the foliage, and are of deep cream or straw-yellow, spotted with deep carmine; 4½ ft.	1 50	10 00	90 00
Uhlberg. Entirely distinct, of a soft rosy-carmine; the throat of the flower is of a creamy-yellow, and the edges of the petals are also pale yellow; 3 ft.	60	4 00	35 00
Venus. Flowers of fair size, of a soft rosy pink with a pretty mottled border of creamy-yellow; 3½ ft.	75	5 00	40 00
Wintzer's Colossal (Orchid Flowered). The largest flowered Canna. The florets often measure eight inches across and are of a bright scarlet; 5 ft.	75	5 00	45 00
William Bates. A splendid free flowering yellow of good size; 5 ft.	1 50	10 00	90 00
Wyoming (Orchid Flowered). Massive orange flowers which make a strong contrast with its rich bronze foliage; 6 ft.	50	3 50	30 00
Yellow King Humbert (Orchid Flowered). A sport from King Humbert in which the foliage is green and the flowers yellow with red spots. Very attractive	75	5 00	45 00

Blooming Plants for Easter

OUR STOCK WAS NEVER LARGER—OUR STOCK WAS NEVER BETTER

The demand for blooming plants for the coming Easter, promises to be the most phenomenal in the history of the industry. This, together with the fact that not a few of the desirable sorts obtainable in former years are not to be had at all this season, and still others in only very limited quantities, should impress upon the trade in general the grave importance of booking their orders at the very earliest possible date. Nothing is more certain than that those who neglect so doing will experience serious difficulty in supplying their needs, and will, perforce, have to struggle along with what they can get.

LILIES

Beyond a question of a doubt, we offer the trade the finest stock of Lilies that we have ever had, and we think we are safe in asserting that better were never grown in the United States. Pot plants will range from 12 to 24 inches tall, with 3 to 8 blooms, and pans with 10 to 20 blooms. Price, 30c per bud and bloom.

AZALEAS

The stock of this item will be very limited; only enough, probably, to supply early orders. Prices will range from $3.50 to $7.50 each. Orders for Azaleas alone will not be accepted; a fair assortment of other plants must be included.

BABY RAMBLER ROSES

Erna Teschendorff principally. All Babies will be extremely scarce this year, for reasons well known to the trade, and but few growers were able to obtain any stock. We were one of the fortunate ones, we are pleased to say. Prices will range from $2.00 to $5.00 each.

HYDRANGEAS

An exceptionally fine lot. Bushy, symmetrical plants of Otaksa and best French varieties. In pots of 1 to 10 blooms and pans of 4 to 6 blooms. Prices ranging from 50c to $5.00 each.

150,000 NEPHROLEPIS

(In Variety.)

We are the largest growers of Nephrolepis Ferns in the country; in fact, we are headquarters for them.

Nephrolepis Norwood

The most beautiful form of Nephrolepis to date, graceful, compact and symmetrical, a vigorous, healthy grower. All growers are invited to inspect our Norwood greenhouses.

Strong Plants.
4-inch pots, $6 per doz., $35 per 100.
Orders filled strictly in rotation.

Nephrolepis Verona

Makes a good plant in all sizes. Much finer frond than any crested sort outside of N. Smithii. The fronds are carried on a heavy, wiry stem. We consider it one of the best of the newer introductions.
2¼-inch pots, $10 per 100, $90 per 1000.
4-inch pots, $35 per 100.
6-inch pots, $9 and $12 per doz.

CROTON

Leaves and Sprays

Cut Croton Leaves and Sprays have been supplied by us in the past few years to some of the leading retail Florists, who have featured them in mantel, table and funeral work. Cut Crotons will last in a cool place for three to four weeks. We can supply them every day in the year. Very highly colored sprays at 35 and 50 cents each. Cut leaves, $3 and $5 per 100.

When you have orders for funeral or table work "out of the ordinary," order Craig's Cut Crotons.

ADIANTUM GLORIOSA

Same as Farleyense, but as hardy as Nephrolepis.
4-inch strong plants, $60 per 100.

PTERIS AND CYRTOMIUMS

Pteris Argyrea, 4-inch, $25 per 100.

IMPORTANT NOTICE

Owing to the very great increase in price of all materials used in packing of plants, we find it necessary to make a small charge for same, as follows, much lower than the percentage plan:

Full size cases	$1.50 each
Three-quarter size cases	1.00 each
Small size cases	.50 each

Would suggest taking plants in paper pots whenever possible. It is a big saving in both packing and express charges.

TERMS: Cash with Order—Kindly send sufficient to cover the entire bill. We do not make shipments C. O. D. unless remittance has been made on account to guarantee acceptance. This does not apply to regular customers. Remittances—Remittances should be made by money order or New York drafts. If money is sent, letter should be registered. All prices quoted in this list are strictly net. Shipping Instructions—Give your name, post office, county and state, and the name of your nearest express office to which shipment is to be made. We have always made it prominent in our printed terms that our goods are sold F. O. B. cars at the point of shipment, and are at the purchaser's risk while in transit. Because of the present unsettled conditions we wish to emphasize still further that we do not guarantee safe delivery. The ownership of all goods sold by us passes to the purchaser on delivery by us to the carrier and the issuing of the receipt by the carrier ends our responsibility. Any claims for damage should be made promptly to the agent at the point of delivery. Correspondence—We endeavor to answer all correspondence promptly, but owing to the pressure of business we ask that all requests be clearly and concisely stated. Errors—Keep a copy of your order. We aim to have our orders correctly filled. Where we are at fault we shall make satisfactory correction.

THE FLORISTS' REVIEW

REVERSING THE SILVER LINING

The cloud of gluts and near-gluts that casts a shadow over the flower markets at this season has another side not so gloomy for florists. But much united effort, already initiated in some cities, will be needed to turn the silver lining into view of the trade.

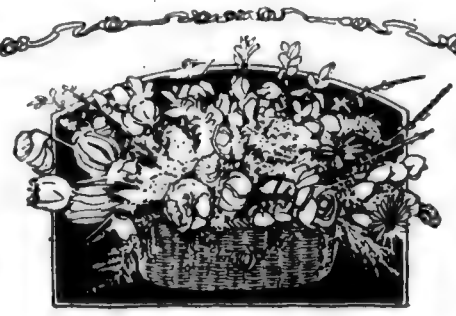
AFTER an unprecedented period of flower scarcity and consequent high prices, the sunshine of late February and early March has brought into the markets all over the country such quantities of stock that prices have eased decidedly. The passing of the flu, the arrival of Lent and the advent of sunshine all coincided to lessen demand as the supply increased. The result is an abundance of flowers that, after the extreme scarcity of the last two months, has the appearance of a glut. It is not yet a glut, however, but possibly a near-glut. At any rate, prices are approaching a point unsatisfactory to growers and, what might seem strange at first thought, unsatisfactory to retailers at the same time.

The reason for the dissatisfaction of the former is plain. That of the latter springs from a keen view of the future and of the general welfare of the trade. Stable prices for a commodity are always more desirable both for the stability of the trade and also for the psychological value they have on the public mind. Where there is too wide a range of prices, the profitable average is difficult, if always possible, to calculate. But there is another, stronger reason, for farsighted retailers' dissatisfaction.

Next Year.

Every retailer knows he missed making money in the last two months because of the lack of flowers and the excessive prices he was compelled to charge for them. Even without the flu, many believe, there would have been a scarcity of stock. Next January will be like the last, or, at least, a close resemblance. If prices descend so low now that growers do not make money, they will not be so desirous of adding glass in order to produce larger crops next winter. So the retailer who wants a bigger supply of flowers next season would like to hold up prices for the grower instead of forcing them as low as possible under present conditions. Not solely for his own sake, to make dealings with the public easier, but also for the growers' sake—whose advantage, after all, is the retailers' too in the long run—does the man with the store wish to keep prices away from the depths to which they sometimes drop at times of abundant supply. If he can accomplish it, he is working for his own good, this year and next year, as well as working in behalf of the grower now so that the latter will return the advantage later.

Win Back the Old Buyer.



There is a second reason for the retailer's desire for more stable prices, excluding the excesses of stringencies and gluts alike, and that is to get back the old regular flower buyer, the man of the salaried class and his wife, who were raised with flowers in the home and always want them there—except when they are so expensive as to be out of the question. If there is a way to get back these lost patrons and keep them in addition to the new ones gained, the retailer will have an increased and therefore more lucrative clientele.

The way to achieving this has been shown by leading merchandisers of flowers in years past on an individual, and therefore small scale. Now it is feasible as a means of solving a trade's problems because of the united power which a coöperative advertising campaign gives to the florists of a community. The more numerous such local campaigns become the more force they will carry in the aggregate, so that they may presumably become a powerful factor in stabilizing prices. And by the assistance of florists in their individual advertising, much could be accomplished.

It is safe to say that if the trade as a whole exerted the advertising effort on behalf of moving a glut that is employed in boosting sales for a holiday, the quantity of flowers that would be moved would be so great that prices would be prevented from going below the point that indicates misfortune to retailer and grower alike in the end.

In Chicago.

To accomplish this thing was the first step undertaken by the Chicago cooperative organization, the Allied Florists' Association, last week. Though collections from members were not started until the following Monday, March 1, the directors of the organization, realizing the crisis to be met by immediate action, pledged sums individually to run advertisements in the daily newspapers Friday and Saturday, February 27 and 28. The first of these appears on this page. It occupied a quarter page in the Tribune, the largest morning paper. The second, shown on the next page, occupied slightly smaller space next day.

"Say it with Flowers"

They are plentiful now and are blooming in greater profusion. Milder weather, sunshine and longer hours of daylight have brought an abundance of flowers today where a few weeks ago only a few were in bloom.

"Say it with Flowers"

For there is no finer way of giving cheer to those who are ill—radiant brightness to the home—and true expression of one's feelings on a birthday or other anniversary occasion—they are silent messengers of love.

TODAY AND TOMORROW

Your Florist and Several Hundred Other Florists in and About Chicago Will Display Flowers in Abundance and at Very Reasonable Prices.

THE ALLIED FLORISTS' ASSOCIATION OF ILLINOIS

Chicago Florists Start Co-operative Campaign by Fighting Glut.

At the same time the retail members of the association were appealed to by a mimeograph notice from the secretary. They were urged to unite to push the sale of flowers at popular prices on these two days. The notice said:

"Friday of this week a quarter-page ad will be run for you in the Tribune, calling attention to the fact that flowers are plentiful and giving a reason why they are plentiful. It also calls attention to the fact that you and several hundred other florists will display flowers in abundance on Friday and Saturday, and also that for these two days you will offer them at reasonable prices.

"There is no doubt but what this ad will direct a good many people to your stores. As an extra inducement we urge that you quote a reasonable price on flowers for Friday and Saturday, because it will mean that you can do a volume and make just as much money, even more. Would you not rather, in order to get the public into your stores, make a profit of $1 each on ten sales than to make a profit of $2 on fewer sales?"

Individuals Tie Up.

The advertising, of course, was for the benefit of the entire trade, but individual florists took advantage of the occasion to reënforce the appeal by advertisements of their own. A. Langè followed the advertising argument used by the association, offering stock at reduced prices in the advertisement which is reproduced on page 23. It appeared in Saturday's Tribune.

The result was a big Saturday business in Chicago retail stores. Though prices had been easing during the week previous, it required some time for the public to realize the fact. For when prices were high the old-time patrons had stayed away from the florists' shops and did not know, therefore, when prices began to drop. The advertising of the Chicago florists made known to them the lower prices that reigned, and produced large sales.

In New York.

The same germ was at work in New York, but since there is no coöperative campaign there, the individual florist must do the work. Max Schling ran the advertisement shown on page 23 in the New York newspapers, using the same sort of argument as in the Chicago advertising, but adding a paragraph calculated to create telegraph business. Mr. Schling believes the overloaded market may be made an opportunity, instead of being a handicap, for florists. On this subject he writes:

"Conditions in the flower business changed here with us the same as they change every spring, not only with us but with other florists. Bulbous stock and sweet peas especially overloaded the market and a great many of the flower buyers disappeared south. In consequence, flowers are more plentiful, because there are not so many people to buy flowers.

"We should utilize this condition to encourage the middle classes, who while flowers are at their highest point get away from us and who to a certain extent buy only for the most necessary occasions, to buy flowers as they used to, not only as a luxury but as a necessity to their well-being. For this reason we ran this ad in the New York papers."

Use the Occasion.

Some florists have taken the opportunity each year at this time to move large quantities of stock at popular prices. But the number has been too few. This year the trade needs such action on the part of not a few, but many florists, not alone in the cities but also in the small towns, everywhere that flowers are plentiful. There is an especial occasion this year, the opportunity to win back the patrons driven away by high prices, to draw into the flower stores still others, those who are spending money but not for flowers. Moreover, such action is needed this year to maintain prices, first, that they may not fall so low as to make the last two months' figures seem exorbitantly high, and, second, to give a return that will make growing possible at present high costs. For the sake of the entire trade, prices should be held as firmly as possible, else the recollection of January purchases may make buyers apply the word profiteering, not a welcome epithet to either retailer or grower. And to maintain an adequate supply of flowers, which means an increased supply next year, prices must be kept up in order to make the construction of new greenhouses seem profitable at present building costs. Firm prices can be had by moving large quantities of stock tc the public at reasonable figures while it is abundant. The example has been set and is successful. Every florist can help.

MICHIGAN FLORISTS' SHOW.

At First Annual Meeting.

At an executive meeting of the Michigan State Florists' Association, held at the Michigan Agricultural College February 16, it was decided to hold a spring exhibition of cut flowers, potted plants, florists' supplies and anything pertaining to the florists' trade or horticulture in general, at the Michigan Agricultural College, East Lansing, March 16 and 17. A banquet will be held on the evening of March 17. Prominent speakers will be present. The ladies are especially invited. Special invitation is extended to the ladies' auxiliaries of the various florists' clubs of the state to attend in bodies and hold their meetings in Lansing at the same time. This being the first exhibition and annual meeting of this new and hustling organization, the executive committee will appreciate it if you will make a special effort to be present and to exhibit if possible. A nominal charge of 10 cents per square foot will be charged to exhibitors to defray incidental expenses. Application for floor space should be made at once to the secretary of the association, Robert M. Plumb, 1430 Burns avenue, Detroit, who will supply further information on exhibits. There will be no charge for admission to the exhibition, but complimentary tickets can be secured from the secretary by any member wishing to give them to customers or friends.

MOTT-LY MUSINGS.

William B. Koehler, of Frankford, Pa., commenting on the prevalence of blind growth in hydrangeas, thinks it is possible that the long dull period may have much to do with it, as he fails to recall having had a similar experience in the growing of thousands.

Fred Kalmbach, grower for William Wunder, of Pittville, Pa., advises taking cuttings now, later potting into 3-inch pots and then into bulb pots or planting in the field. He believes that this overcomes the tendency to blindness. He has no use for old stock. It was noted that a fine lot looks promising for Easter.

C. Doerrer & Sons, of Westfield, N. J., are carrying a fine lot of Carnation Enchantress Supreme. "We refused an offer from the New York market for 30 cents apiece for the crop, needing all for our retail trade," observed Charles Doerrer. "To offset this, our Golden Spurs are producing but one spike to the bulb and mother bulbs at that."

Augustus Tremper, of Rhinebeck, N. Y., had a large crop of Marie Louise violets for St. Valentine's day and made his customers happy by not advancing the price for that occasion. W. M.

USINGER'S UTTERANCES.

August Meyer, in charge of the greenhouses of the Williams & Meyer range, at South Bend, Ind., reports excellent results in the short time they have had this glass. Mr. Meyer is a grower of wide experience and is growing some excellent stock. Sweet peas are in fine shape and freesias are being used to fill the shortage in other stock. Easter lilies are coming along well and will be on time for Easter. The entire stock produced is for Williams the Florist, on Michigan avenue, South Bend.

Mr. Buckler, of the South Bend Floral Co., South Bend, Ind., was lauding the virtues and sales possibilities of canary birds and birdseed. I do not know whether the smiling Mr. Buckler is an economist, but his comparison of the eating of bird seed by canaries and fish food by the humble goldfish is 100 to 1 in favor of the canaries. A bird eats a pound of seed a month, while a goldfish eats a 10-cent box of food a year. Figure out the profit in birdseed.

Van Aken Bros., Elkhart, Ind., were receiving some fine roses from three greenhouses in Coldwater, Mich. "Our only trouble is getting enough stock," commented Miss Olson, in charge of the store.

The Wakarusa Greenhouse, at Wakarusa, Ind., in charge of Charles M. Fletcher, is showing some nice cinerarias and primroses. Plans are in preparation for a large aster season. Mr. Fletcher has excellent land for growing quality asters. W. T. U.

LAMBERT'S LOCALS.

The well known firm of Gentemann Bros., of Quincy, Ill., has been dissolved by mutual consent, Philip Gentemann retiring and H. A. Gentemann purchasing his brother's interest and continuing the business at the same location, 714 Main street. Mr. Gentemann has moved his working force from the greenhouses to the store and by concentrating his efforts shows considerable improvement in his service. He has added another Dodge to his automobile fleet, making a total of three cars. The business has shown a continued increase throughout the season, with a liberal cut arriving from his own greenhouses.

A matter of much concern to the florists of Kansas City, Mo., was the recent poisoning of three of the employees of the W. L. Rock Flower Co. by pricking their fingers on thorns of White Killarney roses. L. Willis was poisoned December 23, and it became necessary to amputate the infected finger. He has not yet recovered. William Miller has been laid up with an infected finger for some time, caused by the same thing. He was called before the medical board for examination; the board stated that the infection came from the fertilizer and was dangerous. William Huts is now in the hospital with the same infection. Mr. Rock is anxious about his employees and advises that the matter should be looked into to determine the source of the infecting germ. The doctors found the germ in Mr. Willis's finger and compared it to the germ in yeast.

GREENHOUSE FIRES.

Brazil, Ind.—Fire of an unknown origin caused a loss estimated at $300 to the greenhouse of G. E. Hershey, on Walnut street, February 17.

Belleville, Ill.—Considerable damage to the boiler room of A. Fehr's greenhouses, on Main street, was caused by fire recently. An overheated boiler was the cause.

Springfield, O.—The greenhouse belonging to Thomas McBeth, East High and Burnett road, was almost totally destroyed by fire February 14. The fire ignited in the rear of the greenhouse, which was partly destroyed before the fire department arrived.

TATE'S TIPS

BUILD WISELY AND WELL.

The Reason Why.

My aim in the last few weeks has been to get the growers throughout the country to think over the matter of insufficient production of flowers. That production has been short of demand is an admitted fact. Now, the only point to be considered is whether this shortage was only temporary or whether the demand for cut flowers has gone beyond the actual source of supply. It is time for the growers to get down to "brass tacks" and study this question for themselves. There is no doubt that the business has reached a crisis and what its future is going to be is up to the growers themselves.

Prices were abnormally high. That there was an undercurrent of grumbling all over the country is a well known fact. This was even being taken up by the daily press. The Review tried to counteract some of it in its issue of February 19, but if this thing becomes general, it will soon counteract all the work that has been done by the national publicity committee.

Most of the stock that could be procured during the scarcity was used for funeral work; this, in a manner, made the stock available an actual necessity. Only a small percentage of stock was being used for entertainments or for any purpose that can in any way be charged to luxuries. Yet the growers were satisfied, because with less work they were getting from curtailed crops returns as large as, and in many cases larger than, those which they received from normal crops. To my mind, there is just one thing that is ever going to bring the price of cut flowers back to normal—that is increased production.

The Effect of the Slogan.

It is evident that there is a "handwriting on the wall" which every florist should heed. The national publicity committee has for three years been working on the dissemination of the slogan, "Say It with Flowers." You can go into a theater and hear it sung; you can pick up almost any of the modern magazines and see it used by the authors of short stories; you can take a trip by automobile or railroad and see it on the billboards nearly as often as you will see some popular tire advertised. This is all having its effect. People are following the advice of the slogan and are "Saying It with Flowers," but the publicity of this slogan is attracting attention in another direction—to the great demand for flowers and the high prices that can be obtained for them.

Outside Capital in Trade.

The inability of the growers to supply the demand is attracting outside capital. Let us look at this phase of the question. We recently read of a corporation in New Jersey giving a contract for a range of houses to cost $800,000. From the statement of the company which received the contract, it would appear that this range of houses, when the builders have completed their commission, will be ready for a corps of trained florists to walk in and go to work. To stock such a range and provide for a working capital will take at least $200,000 more; this will mean an investment of at least $1,000,000. It is true that what this corporation intends to grow has not been divulged, neither has the directorate, yet there are two significant facts that should be taken notice of. The first is that its location is adjacent to a district that supplies a big part of the roses for the New York market; the second is that a board of directors that is willing to invest $1,000,000 in any enterprise would have expert advice and investigate the subject from every angle. The fact that the contract has been let is the best evidence that this all has been done and that they are convinced that it will be a paying proposition.

Building Is a Science.

We will assume that what the flower market all over this country needs is greater production. This means that more houses will be needed. Here is another point that will require careful study on the part of the growers. We have just been reading of large houses collapsing from the weight of snow. This may happen once in a lifetime, but that once is enough. Many a grower goes through life without a fire, but this does not prevent him from carrying insurance. Then there are other points to be considered besides durability; there are ventilating, heating, light and many other details that are of the utmost importance. The construction companies have trained engineers who make a study of all this. Today, greenhouse building is an exact science. It will pay any man, even if his building is not extensive, to investigate this side of the question. The initial cost may be more, but when you take into consideration the lasting way in which the work will be done, it will pay, considering the better growing qualities of a house and the future repair account. Now is the time to build and the wise grower will build well. Do some thinking; the time is ripe.

MR. MILLER'S NEW LILY.

When A. Miller, of the American Bulb Co., was in Japan last summer he ran across a new type of early Easter lily and brought a few cases of it home to be tried out under greenhouse conditions. Some of the bulbs were turned over to Holm & Olson, at St. Paul, who report as follows:

"With regard to lilies, will say that the case of that new lily you sent has turned out wonderfully. It seems to be a much quicker growing and forcing lily than the giganteum and we do not think we are going to be able to hold them back for Easter. They seem to grow considerably taller. They are now thirty to thirty-six inches tall and all of even height. They will average about five buds to the stalk."

Holland, Mich.—Miss Helene Huizenga, who has been bookkeeper for Dumez Bros. the last four years, is now with her brothers at the Twelfth Street Floral Shop.

OPEN LETTERS from READERS

PRACTICE PAYING PROMPTLY.

I notice that in The Review of February 19 a brother florist complains of C. O. D. shipments. If all in the trade would try to make it a practice to pay their bills on or before the tenth of the month following the time of purchase, then there would be no need for such complaint.

I wholesale a good deal of stock and have found that, as a rule, the florists are the slowest to pay; some of them barely pay before the next month's bill is due.

W. E. Pitt.

PLACE ADS WITH TRADE AIDS.

I read with interest the quotation from the St. Louis Star in The Review of February 19 under the heading, "Press Whacks Prices," and have been thinking of some way to handle such a case. It seems foolish to try to strike back at such unfounded lies.

We all know that a newspaper is supported financially, not by the price obtained in the sale per copy, but by the enormous advertising which it carries. Let us not strike at a paper which employs such narrow-minded editors and reporters. Let us simply remember, when we place our national, state and city publicity dollars, to keep them out of the hands of the St. Louis Star and all other papers of their class. Remember this, members of the trade. A newspaper exists on the revenue derived from its advertisements. Place your advertising with a trade booster.

G. H. Quentin.

THE TRADE'S OPPORTUNITY.

It rapidly is coming to pass that the small florist, in a country town, if he expects to prosper, must grow stock which will sell at wholesale through The Review, his only salvation with coal and labor where they are. We have had this in mind for some time and are operating along these lines on a little larger scale; we sincerely hope our expectations of results from the Classified ads will be exceeded as usual. The Review's Classified ads are a surprise to all of us at one time or another, but they never fail to bring results.

Walnut Hills Floral Co.

GET READY FOR BIG DAY

PREPARING EASTER PLANTS.

Weather a Hindrance.

The weather has been abnormally cold in the eastern half of the country since Christmas, with a record-breaking fall of snow. In addition there have been more cloudy days than usual and even on those that are clear many roofs have carried an accumulation of snow which, with the low temperature, has melted slowly. Then, with fuel none too abundant, the average grower has, in spite of high prices for cut flowers, been up against it in many ways. In the forcing of Easter crops the climatic eccentricities cut a big figure and careful calculating is needed to get the various plants in bloom on time. The skilled cultivator understands how to hit the holiday date to a nicety and these notes are rather intended for the great numbers of small growers who lack the facilities of the large plant growers, but who want to get a nice assortment of pot plants for the great floral festival.

Lilies.

A year ago there was a paucity of lilies, practically none but cold storage bulbs being available, and plants were naturally of poor quality. The coming Easter will see a good supply of lilies from newly imported bulbs and the quality seems to be unusually good. The formosums, which come in ahead of longiflorum giganteum, have been flowering for some time. They grow much taller than the other forms of longiflorum and therefore do not appeal so well to growers and buyers. For church decorations, either cut or in pots, they have no superior. They are variable in height and in the number of flowers carried per stalk. We have some with qnite stout stalks only showing two or three buds. Others of similar strength show a dozen or more. Little forcing will be necessary to have these formosums in on time.

With giganteums it is different. The bulbs arrive late and for so early an Easter as the coming one they will need about all the heat at our command. Generally speaking, if we can see buds so as to count them on Ash Wednesday we feel safe, provided the plants are given an average minimum of 60 degrees. Plants which are not yet showing buds are decidedly late and, if wanted for April 4, must have a night temperature of 70 degrees or the warmest house at command, and be frequently sprayed. A little nitrate of soda once a week will help advance the laggards. Use a pound in thirty gallons of water. If a small house is at command, where lilies can be placed which are late and which can be closed early in the afternoon, by all means use it. Keep the atmosphere constantly moist and, if the plants are a little too dwarf, shade the glass a little to help lengthen their stems. With your early lilies use care not to move the plants from a high to a low temperature, or the buds may refuse to open at all. Wait until the flowers start to open and then lower the temperature gradually.

Roses.

There will be a large supply of roses this season, but a good many small growers will be a little late. The rambler varieties, like Tausendschoen, still the most popular of all, will be all right if you can now see the small buds on the sprays. The polyantha, or baby rambler class, like Mrs. Cutbush, Orleans, etc., if in the same stage, will also be all right. Do not force them too hard; 55 to 60 degrees is ample at night, and be careful how you ventilate. A cold draft will start mildew and it will speedily disfigure the foliage and render the plants unsalable. Also, when syringing, do it in the morning of clear days, so that the foliage is dry before sundown. Hybrid perpetual and hybrid tea roses come along fast. If the buds are merely showing March 10 they are all right in a temperature of 50 degrees at night. These latter are harder to time than the ramblers. They are not wanted with wide-open flowers, but in the bud stage, just showing color. Some moving around of the plants will be necessary if we get a few warm days just before Easter, but carefully avoid cold drafts on every consideration. Give the plants plenty of water and liquid manure twice a week until the buds show color.

Good penmanship, spelling and grammar, though desirable, are not necessary. Write as you would talk when doing your best.

WE SHALL BE GLAD TO HEAR FROM YOU

French Hydrangeas.

Few of the old otaksa hydrangeas are now used for Easter. The French types, with their fine range of colors, force much more easily and bloom with a freedom which is surprising. On 5-inch pots I have counted twelve to fifteen heads and on 8-inch pots one or two of my plants carry thirty to forty-two heads each. So abundantly, in fact, do these French hydrangeas flower that we have trouble in securing blind shoots for propagating purposes. Plants started early in January and given 50 to 55 degrees at night now have heads two to four inches in diameter and will be on time without having recourse to forcing. This is advantageous, as plants grown thus cool are much more stocky. Where flower heads are as yet merely peeping, they are late and should have 60 degrees at night. Hydrangeas are thirsty subjects and need an abundant water supply and liquid manure twice a week until the heads are well developed. Avoid syringing them, as they are more susceptible to mildew than the old otaksa.

Astilbes.

Astilbes, or, more popularly, spiræas, have to be home-produced now and will figure less at Easter and Memorial day than in former years. Give them as much heat as you like and you cannot overwater them. They are among the few plants below which you can place saucers and keep them filled with water without the foliage showing ill effects from it. Be careful to fumigate lightly where the spiræas are, as their foliage is easily scorched. In the case of pink varieties, like Queen Alexandra and Peach Blossom, the plants must be kept shaded as soon as the flower heads start to open, or they will speedily lose much of their beautiful color.

Deciduous Shrubs.

Some deciduous shrubs are available for the coming Easter. Unsold plants, cut back, planted outside and carried over until the second season, make splendid stock for forcing. There is a wide variation in the time needed to flower deciduous shrubs. Lilacs will come in within six to eight weeks in a temperature of 50 degrees; so will Deutzia Lemoinei and gracilis. Azalea Kaempferi, a grand Easter plant, needs not more than six weeks. Prunus triloba, with its beautiful peach-pink double flowers, and ornamental malus require but a month. Laburnums must have a longer period. I prefer to grow them fairly cool and allow eight to ten weeks. Wistarias flower within six weeks. These periods can be reduced by giving the plants strong heat and keeping the atmosphere reeking with moisture, but plants grown under such conditions are not fit to send out to anyone, as they lack substance and will wilt badly. It is not well to have more than a small number of flowers open on any of these shrubs at Easter. If fully opened they will drop to pieces before they can reach your customers; so you should plan to deliver them in the bud stage.

Bulbous Plants.

Bulbous plants form a not inconsiderable part of the Easter stock in trade of many country florists, as numerous inquiries sent to The Review indicate. Hyacinths, grown singly or in pans, tulips and daffodils in pans constitute the bulk of this bulbous material. It takes but a short time to force these plants into flower. Really they should not be forced at all, but brought along in a cold greenhouse, kept well up to the light to make them as stocky as possible. In ordinary years I like to bring these along in coldframes which are well protected on cold nights, but, with a yard or more of snow covering all such frames now, we must have recourse to other methods of handling them. As a rule, three weeks is ample time to allow for any of these bulbs after housing. Much will, of course, depend on the weather. Tulips may need covering with papers as the flowers start to open, and remember that if we get a warm spell of weather a good, cool cellar should be used to accommodate these useful bulbs. Murillo tulips and Victoria narcissi are the two best pan subjects for Easter, but several other sorts are available this season.

Miscellaneous Stock.

Genistas should never be forced, or they will possess little substance. Grow them cool and airy. You can retard them in any temperature above actual freezing. Azalea indica will be scarce and expensive. It can be subjected, if necessary, to hard forcing until flowers start to open; then grow cool. The same applies to rhododendrons, which are fewer than usual, and of course acacias and ericas can hardly be grown too cool. Coming to soft-wooded subjects, it will be necessary to keep cinerarias cool and well shaded, also cyclamens. Primula obconica and malacoides will be available and also need the coolest greenhouse treatment and shade in addition, to keep them in presentable condition. Schizanthus, a lovely Easter plant not much seen, is another cool-loving plant. Water and feed it well. With marguerites remember that you can scarcely overwater them at any stage of their growth when pot-grown.

GROWERS' LOCALS

GROWERS' ASSOCIATION.

Ammann Offers Aid to Locals.

March 17 and 18, the committee on constitution and by-laws for the national growers' association will meet in New York. Suggestions that anyone in the trade has to offer will be appreciated if sent to the secretary.

Immediately after Easter, I shall be ready to visit any community and assist in the forming of a local organization. Write soon in order that dates may be agreed upon. We shall not encourage the organizing of locals with a membership of less than twenty-five. Let us take time by the forelock and organize as many locals as we can prior to the big national meeting at Cleveland, O., in August.

Illinois already has one local with 100 members and we expect in the near future to organize two more locals. Get busy, you other states. Write to the secretary and let us help you.

The Need of a Growers' Society.

You need a national growers' association because:

It will constantly work for your interests as a flower grower.

It will elevate the flower business in general and make it both more pleasant and more profitable.

It will safeguard your heavy investments in an extremely hazardous business.

It will afford protection from unjust and harmful legislation.

It will assist you in the production of high-grade flowers and plants.

It will remove the drudgery of the grower.

Its activities will procure prices for a grower's products commensurate with the chances he takes.

It will help you to solve many perplexing problems.

It will extend the demand for your products.

It will minimize the annual waste of flowers.

Its Need for You.

The national growers' association needs you because:

With you, the organization is stronger than without you.

Your experience will be a valuable asset.

Team work is a necessity always.

More abuses in the trade can be corrected with your assistance.

Meetings are of greater value when many participate.

We live but a short time, so let us make the most of it.

Your financial support will permit the organization to extend its activities.

The more intelligence assembled, the greater the force.

In unity there is strength.

It will add one more booster for better conditions in the trade.

Your interests are common with those of many others.

SOUTHERN ILLINOIS FLORISTS.

To Form Local of National Body.

As announced in The Review of February 5, a movement was started during the convention of the American Carnation Society in Chicago to organize the florists in southern Illinois and it was planned to hold a meeting for this purpose in Centralia February 25. At that meeting, which was attended by a fair representation of the trade, it was decided to defer organizing until after the national growers' association had been fully organized and then to meet in Springfield sometime in April for the purpose of forming the southern Illinois local of the national growers' association. A call announcing the date will be issued by J. F. Ammann on his return from the east and a letter will be mailed to all those in the southern district.

Fixing Prices.

A lengthy discussion of spring business brought out the fact that none of those present knew just what it cost to produce potted plants, but that all were selling them too cheap. It was decided to make the minimum price of 4-inch geraniums $2.50 for such varieties as S. A. Nutt and the whites and $3 for such as Poitevine, with $1 per dozen as the minimum price for 2½-inch pots of soft-wooded plants like salvias, verbenas and coleus. Many were in doubt as to whether these prices would show a profit and a discussion ensued as to the cost of production. One firm reported a good profit last year in its cut flower department, but a heavy loss in the potted plant department.

This discussion will stimulate many to try to find out the actual cost of production and any who have such figures will do the trade a valuable service by sharing such information with the other members of it. The idea seems to be prevalent that many are losing money on the potted plant department and are bleeding the cut flower department to keep up the other.

Watch for the date of the meeting at Springfield in April and arrange to be there. J. W. Ross, Sec'y.

MICHIGAN PLACES EMBARGO.

Fears Corn Borer from New England.

Following in the footsteps of Illinois, Michigan has barred such plants as may harbor the corn borer if they come from the New England states, New York or Pennsylvania. In his proclamation of the embargo L. R. Taft, state inspector of orchards and nurseries, East Lansing, excludes cut flowers or entire plants of chrysanthemums, asters, cosmos, zinnias, hollyhocks, gladioli, cannas, peonies, dahlias and such other herbaceous plants as have a hollow stem or a large pith likely to shelter the corn borer. The edict, however, specifically excludes the bulbs of any of these, if no stem is attached, a wise revision of the Illinois embargo.

The proclamation reads as follows:

Whereas, the European corn borer, Pyrausta nubilalis, an insect not known to be present in the state of Michigan, has been found in the states of New York, Massachusetts, New Hampshire and Pennsylvania, and is likely to be in the neighboring states, since it has been shown that this insect is a serious pest and causes great damage to corn, broom corn and other farm and garden crops, and because this insect spreads rapidly and will be extremely difficult to eradicate if it is brought into the state of Michigan upon any of the plants upon which it feeds.

Now, therefore, the undersigned, state inspector of nurseries and orchards of the state of Michigan, by virtue of the authority vested in me by the provisions of an act entitled: "An act to prevent the importation from other states and the spread within this state of dangerous insects and dangerously contagious diseases affecting trees, shrubs, vines, plants and fruits," (Compiled Laws, Section 7422), hereby prohibits and declares unlawful, from and after the first day of March, 1920, until otherwise by him proclaimed, the importation into the state of Michigan and the shipment within said state, of any corn or broom corn, including all parts of the ear or stalk, the shelled grain only excepted; and also celery, beans in the pod, beets with tops, spinach, rhubarb; rye, oat, wheat or other straw, sedges or rushes, whether used as such or as packing materials; cut flowers or entire plants of chrysanthemum, aster, cosmos, zinnia or hollyhock; also cut flowers, or entire plants of gladiolus, canna, peony and dahlia, except the bulbs thereof without stems, and such other herbaceous plants and shrubs as have hollow stems, or a large pith likely to shelter the European corn borer, and which have been grown or propagated in the states of Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont, Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Connecticut, New York and Pennsylvania.

Notice is hereby given to all persons, firms and corporations, and especially to all common carriers, that anyone who brings into the state of Michigan, any of the plants enumerated above, which have been grown or propagated in the states named, will be guilty of a misdemeanor, and if any plants are brought into the state of Michigan, contrary to the provisions of this quarantine, such plants will be destroyed. The penalty for such misdemeanor is a fine not exceeding $100 or imprisonment for not more than ninety days, or both such fine and imprisonment at the discretion of the court. L. R. Taft.

AMERICAN CARNATION SOCIETY.

Plants for Allies.

The American Carnation Society has continued the committee which was to look after the welfare of Belgium, France and possibly England insofar as new varieties of carnations are concerned. It is herewith requested that our leading growers send the introductions of the last two years insofar as it is possible to either W. E. Wallace, Eaton Bing, Dunstable, England, or C. Engelmann, Saffron Walden, Essex county, England. These gentlemen will see that any plants which arrive in their care will be properly distributed and have made arrangements for same. Also please see that the information with regard to the sending is mailed to the committee. Since the American Carnation Society has undertaken this kindness, every prominent grower of carnations ought to do his part.

Irwin Bertermann,
Theodore Dorner,
J. H. Dunlop.

CARE OF CARNATIONS.

I am sending you samples of soil and carnations. The bed is full of buds and there are several blooms, but they do not come out full. I have given them sheep manure twice, but only lightly, and have kept the temperature at about 50 to 52 degrees at night. Please tell me what the trouble is. E. E.—Ill.

The specimens submitted were well covered with red spider and fairy ring. It is quite evident that your watering and syringing have not been done properly. Had you syringed properly, your plants would be free from spider and, had you kept the foliage dry most of the time, you would not have the fairy ring. Go over your plants first of all and pick off all the spotted leaves. Then put a cake of Ivory soap in your salt sprayer and wash the plants off thoroughly. Select a bright day for this and repeat it two days after. Then spray the plants with Bordeaux mixture. Repeat this in about ten days unless you see a decided improvement. Keep the spotted leaves picked off right along.

The soil submitted was all gone except a few pieces of decayed wood. Without seeing a whole plant and a liberal sample of the soil, I cannot advise you in regard to it. Your plants probably do not need feeding, at least not until they start into active growth. Your temperature is all right.

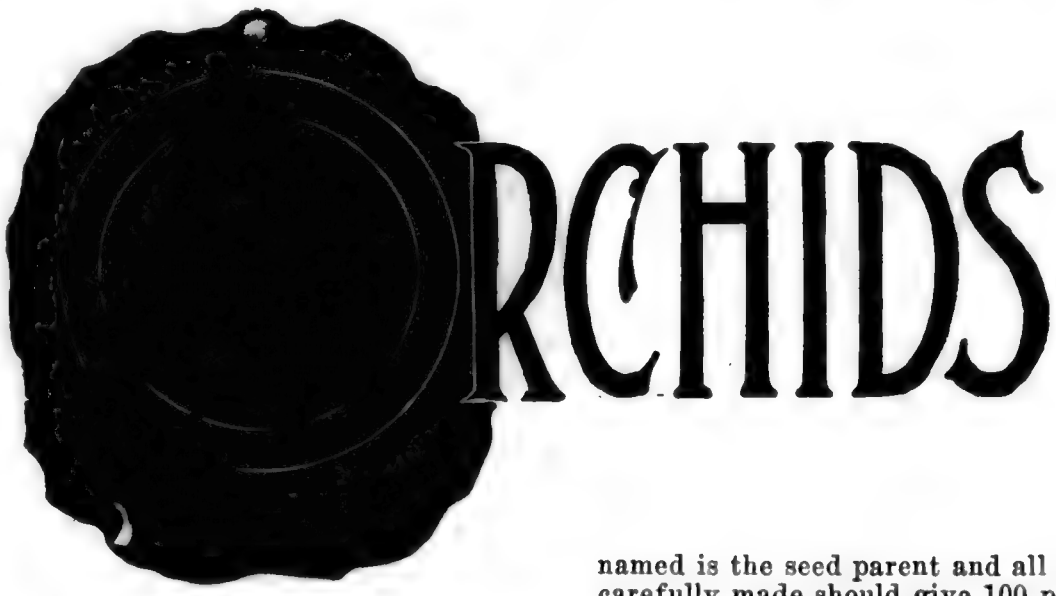
SOW BUGS ON CARNATIONS.

Our carnations are troubled with sow bugs. We have used brown sugar mixed with Paris green with little success. We have also placed boards with raw potatoes beneath the benches and have scalded the bugs under them every few days. But the amount of space devoted to carnations is so big and the bugs are so many that we must find some more effective and less tedious way. I have found that sow bugs and snails prefer cabbage heads above everything else, but I know of no poison that will penetrate the cabbage leaves so as to make them fit to kill the pest. Please tell me some effective way to get rid of the pest. A. W. S.—Mont.

Our favorite remedy for sow bugs up to the last few years was granulated sugar and Paris green. This we found quite effective in destroying them. Recently we have used Hammond's Slug Shot with splendid success. It has the advantage of being ready for use without mixing. While it is not always possible to keep the place free from decayed wood, on account of aging bench lumber, all other rubbish, etc., should be kept cleaned up, especially under the benches. That will go a long way toward controlling this pest and you will find it impossible to control them unless you do keep the place clean.

A. F. J. B.



TO FILL THAT EMPTY SPACE.

Growers who usually find themselves with a large amount of empty space in the houses after the chrysanthemums are cleared out in the fall and wish to fill in quickly with a useful and profitable crop will find the following desirable subjects: Hardy pinks, often called grass pinks; sweet williams; Canterbury bells; delphiniums; Anchusa italica, Dropmore variety. These, with the exception of delphiniums and anchusas, should be sown about the end of February or during March. When they are large enough to be handled, transplant the seedlings into flats and keep them in a cool house till weather and conditions are satisfactory.

They may then be planted in the field and treated just as one would treat carnations, being kept clean and cultivated during the summer months. Before the ground is frozen in the fall, they should be lifted and planted in the beds or benches, or if desired, could be carefully, but not too thickly, heeled in a frame till required. Campanulas and sweet williams may be placed in pots just large enough to contain the roots. Hardy pinks are excellent for use in designs, making a dainty appearance and holding up well.

Anchusas have made roots large enough in one season, but the 2-year-old plants are better, while delphiniums should be 3-year-old clumps with good crowns.

A great advantage in hardy pinks is that they do not occupy the space for a long period and do not cause much work, as no staking or tying is needed. Also a large number of blooms are cut at one time. Certainly the same value in flowers would not be cut from carnations for the same period they occupy the space. E. E. R.

ORCHID HYBRIDIZING.

When I cross Cattleya Trianæ, shall I get them true to name? When C. Dowiana is crossed with C. labiata, would the seedlings be called C. Fabia? Which of the parents is the seeding parent and which one was the pollen taken from? Please give per cent of seedlings which would be true C. Fabia and what the balance would be.

J. D.—Pa.

Cattleya Trianæ x C. Trianæ should come true provided care is taken to cover the flowers to be used with gauze before they open, in order to prevent insect pollination. So far not much has been done in crossing species with themselves and results have been less satisfactory than where different species were used. C. Dowiana aurea x C. labiata gave us C. Fabia; the first-named is the seed parent and all crosses carefully made should give 100 per cent Fabia seedlings, but there would probably be considerable variation in the seedlings, some being much superior to others. C. Fabia has been crossed with a number of other hybrids. C. Fabiata, which I have, is the result of a cross with C. Portia, the latter being a cross between C. labiata and C. Bowringiana.

If the Federal Horticultural Board decides to continue its embargo on orchid importations, seedling raising may boom a little here, but it is a slow, uncertain and expensive business and hybrids never prove so popular commercially as species. I should advise going slowly in seedling raising; I have had twenty years' experience with it and would not put too much reliance on the extravagant claims made by one or two seedling raisers who hope to see the bars against orchids remain up.

CHICAGO STARTS

CHICAGO CAMPAIGN OPENS.

Meeting to Discuss Problems.

Nearly 200 florists answered the call for a meeting of the Allied Florists' Association at the Hotel Randolph, Chicago, on the evening of March 2, to straighten out the few difficulties encountered in the inauguration of the coöperative advertising campaign the day before and also to listen to a talk by Albert Pochelon, secretary of the F. T. D., who came from Detroit for the occasion.

Secretary Swenson announced that the signatures in his hands numbered 159 growers, 172 retailers and fourteen wholesalers, a total of 345, and that some district captains had informed him they had more ready to send in. The advertising done by the association last week awakened the interest of nonmembers, he stated, with the result that ten applications had come in by mail on the day of the meeting and many telephone requests had been made for blanks. He reported enthusiastic comments from retailers on the results of the association's advertising in the Tribune last week. Unfortunately, the newspaper, through a printer's error, made the signature to the second advertisement read Allied Products Association, but had offered a readjustment upon admitting its responsibility for the error.

Problems of Action.

There ensued a discussion whether the association's advertising should bear its signature or not. There were a number of statements of opinion, some being in favor of and others opposed to it. Eventually the matter was left to the decision of the directors.

Lack of definite instructions to the wholesalers had caused a misunderstanding as to the deduction of the assessment from the growers' returns. Since the by-laws read "net returns," the question was raised whether express and other charges should be included. To simplify matters, Paul Weiss urged that the tax be upon gross sales. Ultimately a motion to assess the percentage upon the growers' return after only the wholesaler's commission had been deducted was carried.

The by-laws were amended in accordance with the resolution at the last meeting in order that the president, vice-president and treasurer should be elected by the board of directors from its number. A meeting of the board was called for 2 p. m. March 4.

Features of the Meeting.

After the business came the evening's feature attractions. The film prepared in Cleveland to welcome the F. T. D. two years ago was shown and at the end was exhibited the first of the 60-foot reels to be issued by the S. A. F. promotion bureau for publicity purposes. Entitled "Her Birthday," it depicted a business man's inspiration to remember the occasion with flowers and the resulting satisfaction. It is planned to issue a series of such short films, to be distributed at low cost on a rental basis.

Albert Pochelon, advertised as an attraction of the meeting, praised Chicago's publicity efforts and then told in his forceful way of the problems and profits in telegraph orders. Mr. Pochelon had spent the day in Chicago under the able guidance of an F. T. D. member, W. J. Smyth, and been the guest of the Retail Florists' Association at a dinner that evening, also the result of Mr. Smyth's efforts.

Following Mr. Pochelon's remarks, C. C. Pollworth, of Milwaukee, told of the success of publicity there and encouraged Chicago's attempt. James S. Wilson, now of Des Moines, spoke of the new Secretary of Agriculture, E. T. Meredith, from Des Moines, who might, he said, be counted on to listen favorably to florists' appeals.

IMPERFECT MIGNONETTE BUDS.

Please tell me why mignonette buds come flat and imperfect.

H. J. W.—Colo.

This is due either to an inferior strain of seed or more probably to improper cultural conditions. Give the mignonette a cool house, 40 to 42 degrees in winter, a solid bed if possible, such soil as would suit mums or roses, and it should do well. It always pays to purchase a first-class strain of seed for greenhouse culture. Some special forcing strains are advertised and, while they are expensive, they are the cheapest in the end. C. W.

PINCHING TOMATO PLANTS.

Last year I started seed in the greenhouse and transplanted later on to a warm frame outdoors, then to the field when danger of frost was past. The plants grew well and vigorously, but they did not set any fruit until they had become quite large. Then it was late and I did not get the crop I expected. Would it be advisable to pinch them before setting out or should I let the main stem grow? I drilled in some seed of several varieties and had a wonderful crop, much ahead of the transplants. Of course, here in Kansas, drilling seed in the open is just a chance.

W. J. H.—Kan.

If you pinch tomatoes, it will make them fruit much later. For an early crop it will pay to grow the plants to single stems and support them in some way. Use such early varieties as Bonny Best, Earliana and Chalk's Early Jewel for a first picking and larger sorts, like Stone, for a main crop. Plants six to eight inches high, which have not been grown too closely in flats or frames, should give excellent results, but do not pinch unless you want a late crop.

WOULD END COAL CONTROL.

Objecting to further control of coal distribution by the government, Representative Tilson, of Connecticut, introduced a resolution March 1 amending the Lever food control act. Under its terms power over the distribution of coal is expressly taken from the government. Mr. Tilson's action was prompted by the executive orders issued February 28 by President Wilson continuing the authority vested in Director-General Hines over the distribution of coal.

"The system of regulating distribution now in vogue readily lends itself to graft and crooked dealing," Mr. Tilson said. "I do not mean that the fuel administrator or any of the principal men under him are in any way connected with graft or crookedness, but after investigation around New York I am convinced that in coal reaching that city shameless graft has cut a disgraceful figure."

HARD COAL MINERS ASK RAISE.

Greenhouse owners in the east may be affected by the demands for a sixty per cent increase in wages for contract miners, $2 a day raise for day men, and a 6-hour day and 5-day week for men paid by the day or month, which will be presented to the anthracite coal operators in New York March 9 by the union representatives of the hard coal diggers. These demands were formulated at a convention of the anthracite miners in Wilkes-Barre last August and ratified by the national convention of the United Mine Workers of America in Cleveland in September.

The conference of operators and mine workers will endeavor to negotiate a new agreement to take the place of the contract now in force.

The present general wage agreement covering the anthracite industry was entered into in May, 1916, for four years ending March 31, this year. Because of war conditions, wages have been since readjusted by supplemental agreements between the miners and operators.

About 170,000 mine workers will be affected by the new contract to be negotiated.

Whether the mine workers will remain at work if an agreement is not reached by March 31 will depend largely, it is said, on how strenuously the operators oppose the demands. No opinion has thus far been given by either side as to the outcome of the negotiations. The opinion was expressed, however, that the negotiations probably would not be taken up seriously until the bituminous wage scale has been agreed upon.

WILL PROBE MAIL SERVICE.

Mail delays which have caused florists increasing trouble of late are to come to the attention of Congress in a way that may produce improvements in the post office service. The Merchants' Association of New York has won its long fight for a thorough investigation of the causes of the breakdown of the mail service, provided Congress adopts the recommendations of the committee, which it is almost certain to do.

The Senate committee on post offices and post roads has voted to grant the request made by the association for an investigation of the post office system in order to determine the defects which have brought about the breakdown of the service, and the remedies that should be applied.

In accordance with this request, the committee has voted to insert in the post office appropriation bill a provision for an investigation by a joint commission of Congress, composed of members of the committees on post offices and post roads of the Senate and the House, together with a postal expert to be designated by the postmaster-general.

These appointees shall select seven associate members from representative business men or representatives of business organizations who are large users of the mails. They may engage the services of engineers and such other expert and clerical assistants as they may deem necessary.

This committee is authorized by the bill, as approved by the Senate committee, to study, investigate and report upon the question of improving existing methods of transporting the mails into, through and from the largest cities of the United States, and to investigate and report upon the value of the postal service of different proposed methods of underground and aerial mail transportation.

The commission is directed to report upon the cost and efficiency of existing methods of relative transportation in the proposed methods for their improvement, including the handling of mails at the railway terminals and on railway post office cars.

SOCIETY OF AMERICAN FLORISTS.

Committee Meetings Called.

The national flower show committee will meet at the administration offices, 1170 Broadway, New York, Tuesday, March 16, at 3 p. m. At this meeting the most important business will be the selection of a place for holding the next national flower show. The committee will be pleased to receive suggestions from anyone interested in the project.

The committee on tariff and legislation will meet at the same address Wednesday, March 17, at 2 p. m., when some important business will be taken up for action.

The publicity committee will meet at the offices Thursday, March 18, practically all of its members being in attendance at the international flower show on that day. At this meeting various details in connection with the national publicity campaign will be discussed, looking to a vigorous continuance of the campaign. Edwin J. Fancourt, Philadelphia, who has given splendid service on this committee since its inception, believing that someone who can give more time to the duties of the position than he can could better serve the committee and the campaign, has tendered his resignation, and President Miller has appointed C. C. Pollworth, Milwaukee, Wis., to fill the vacancy thus occurring.

John Young, Sec'y.

C. C. Pollworth.
Newly Appointed Member of National Publicity Committee.

CINERARIA HAS STEM-ROT.

Can you enlighten me as to the trouble with the cineraria plant I am sending you? The plants seem to be healthy, but in the course of a day they will wilt. They are in a temperature of 60 degrees during the day and 50 degrees during the night. I have sprayed them overhead to water them and have always done this without any trouble. This trouble is affecting my best plants. P. F. S.—Mich.

The roots of the cineraria plant were badly rotted and the lower part of the stem of the plant was in the same condition. This is the cause of the trouble with your plants. They are affected by wilt, or stem-rot.

Cinerarias are among the most common of greenhouse flowering plants and, if given a cool temperature and careful watering, are of easy culture, but, if treated to a high temperature and excessive moisture, they quickly go wrong. The temperatures best suited for them are 45 degrees at night and 54 to 56 degrees on cloudy days, when artificial heat has to be used and little, if any, ventilation can be given. On bright days, when it is not necessary to use the artificial heat and the ventilators can be opened, it is all right for the temperature to run up to 60 degrees, or a little above. Under such conditions, the plants will not dry out quickly and will need watering only about two or three times a week during the dark weather. If the regular fumigation is given to keep the insects in check, there will not be any need of overhead sprinklings. By treating the plants in this manner, the soil in the pots is kept fresh and sweet and does not become stagnant.

As you state in the letter, the trouble affects your best plants first. This is generally the rule when they have been subjected to high-pressure culture. When a plant has become affected like the sample sent, it is impossible to save it. The first sign of the trouble is when the plant begins to wilt with the sun, which shows that there is something wrong with the roots, and when the disease gets to the main stem the plant is beyond recovery.

It would be advisable to lower the temperature gradually on the plants and reduce the moisture by cutting out the overhead spraying and watering the plants at the roots only as they are in need of it. M. P.

CINERARIAS SEEDING.

What is necessary to get cineraria seed to develop? Must it be pollenized?
J. D.—Pa.

Cinerarias seed with great freedom even if not pollenized. C. grandiflora is helped by pollination, but C. stellata does not need it. C. W.

Carlton Station, N. Y.—M. J. Scarborough has recently purchased the two greenhouses formerly owned by A. R. Halcomb. He intends to grow tomato plants besides flowers.

PLENTY of flowers; push the retail sales.

IN advertising methods the florists' trade has made extraordinary advance in the last two to three years. And only a start has been made.

PUBLICITY of flowers has done so well for florists that, after the nurserymen took the example, seedsmen have now followed in their footsteps.

A NEWSPAPER paragrapher remarks, "Saying it with flowers at this season has a severe financial drawback—most of us suffer an impediment of speech."

IN the succession of C. C. Pollworth, of Milwaukee, to the place on the national publicity committee resigned by Edwin J. Fancourt, of Philadelphia, one able man replaces another.

CANADIAN exchange is hindering the placing of orders with supply houses in the United States, since florists across the line do not wish to pay fifteen per cent premium or more on their purchases.

To the box makers' trouble to secure the paper-board of which their containers are made is added the difficulty of obtaining female help in the factories. Regardless of price, some box makers cannot fill their orders.

RETAILER'S comments on St. Valentine's day sales almost all included mention of numerous telegraph orders. This branch of the business has become a matter of much consideration by a growing number of florists, who find the more they push it the more it pays.

AN express strike which threatened in Chicago, Toledo, Omaha, Kansas City and other flower centers when union teamsters and other employees demanded a flat increase of $35 per month, was averted by prompt consideration of the proposition by express company officials.

THE Sweet Pea Annual for 1920, the official yearbook of the National Sweet Pea Society, Great Britain, adds a color plate of Hawlmark Pink to its features of previous years. Among the interesting articles is one on "Sweet Peas in America," by Geo. W. Kerr, of Doylestown, Pa. Several of Burpee's early-flowering varieties are shown in the illustrations.

NOTHING is harder than doing a brisk business at high prices on a small capital. As large a percentage of cash sales as possible and speedy collections is the only solution.

WHAT is the chief cause of failures? This question was put to merchants throughout the country by the National Association of Credit Men and 10,000 gave as the answer, "Failure to keep books."

STATIONERY in keeping with his profession is a material aid to the florist in securing the public's patronage. Your letterhead is a rating of your business to those making first acquaintance by mail.

RAILROADS IN OWNERS' HANDS.

After twenty-six months of federal control the railroads returned to the hands of the private owners March 1. The change was welcomed as a settlement of an uncertain and therefore disturbing situation and takes place with several omens favorable to the users of transportation facilities. The roads are returned with provision by Congress, in the bill which was signed by President Wilson February 28, for conditions which enable the companies to improve service and equipment, guarantee of financial return and of assistance being given by the government. Moreover, railroad officials are desirous—nay, anxious—to show the superiority of private over government service, so that the bogey of public ownership, so strong before the war, may be definitely downed.

There is also reason for satisfaction in the labor settlement. The unions, all save one, promptly acceded to President Wilson's proposal for a bipartisan board to settle the wage question. Their action removes the likelihood of strikes in the critical period following the roads' return. Altogether there is optimism in the railroad situation and outlook.

PASSING THE "PEAK."

Discussion is prevalent as to whether we have reached the "peak" of high prices and are soon to start on the down grade. The figures of economists do not indicate that such is the case. There are, however, symptoms which the shrewd florist will take into consideration.

Though production of certain basic commodities was far short of normal last year, including coal, iron, steel, paper and cloth, some other lines have reached a point where the supply approximates the demand. Some prices will continue to advance while others begin to recede somewhat, and reports of business conditions may vary with the line of business.

There is also a growing tendency of the public to scrutinize its purchases more closely and consider values more carefully than last year. Even the wage-earning class is not so lavish of late in its spending, according to reports. The application of some credit restrictions by banks has been felt, also. The result is more moderate and more nearly normal conditions in some lines of business.

This means that business is apparently passing out of the war boom stage and into a period of greater economy, closer adaptation and more careful estimates on the parts of both buyers and sellers. It does not mean a panic or even a sudden reaction necessarily. There are no grounds for pessimism or hesitancy, but there is every reason for sound conservatism in business methods.

NEXT SHORTAGE IN 1921.

There will be a lapse of one winter before the next flower shortage occurs, if the calculations of a prominent medical scientist are correct. He sees no epidemic until December, 1921. The newspaper account of it reads:

"With the subsidence of the present influenza outbreak, the world may breathe easily for a while. The next violent epidemic will occur in December, 1921.

"This is the conclusion from the investigations made by Dr. John Brownlee, who predicted in the London Lancet last December there would be a recurrence of influenza in January and February of this year.

"Medical authorities of the public health service at Washington, D. C., say Dr. Brownlee has probably reduced what is called the periodicity of influenza to a known law. Dr. Brownlee's investigations seem to show that influenza occurs at regular intervals of thirty-three weeks, provided the thirty-third week does not fall between June and December."

PROTECT FELLOW TRADESMEN.

In its effort to protect the trade from the results of its wholesale prices falling into the hands of retail buyers, The Review accepts a subscription from no one who cannot show that he is a bona fide member of the trade. Each inquiry or check, if the sender is not known to be in the trade, is held up until such connection is established.

To insure and continue such protection, each subscriber should take care that his copy does not fall into the hands of an outsider when he is done with it. Do not allow it to lie around where it may be picked up and carried away by some curious customer. If you do not maintain a file of The Review, destroy each issue when you are done with it.

The Review is not of interest to persons outside of the trade save those who work detriment to its members by unfairly securing wholesale prices. If you will protect the other fellow by preventing this, he will protect you, and all of us will benefit and no one lose.

ORDERS FROM EVERYWHERE.

There are still a few advertisers in the district known as "down east" who do not seem thoroughly to appreciate that it is not where a paper is printed but where it is read that counts in bringing results to advertisers. This is the way it has worked for one east coast florist who relied on The Review as his sole means of selling this stock:

After one more week you may discontinue our ad for chrysanthemum plants. We still have some stock, but think one more ad will sell the remainder. What we wished especially, for these new chrysanthemums, was a wide dissemination, looking to future large business. We think we got it from The Review, as our orders came from Bellflower, Cal., and Trenton, N. J., from Paris, Tex., and Woburn, Mass., not forgetting the north as represented by Manistee, Mich., with orders from nearly all the states between.—L. M. Smith & Co., Laurel, Del., February 22, 1920.

If you hear a man complain of the cost of advertising you can be pretty certain he spends a good bit of money elsewhere than in The Review.

OBITUARY

T. M. Cluxton.

T. M. Cluxton, of Willis, Tex., introducer and grower of bluebells for the trade in the south, died February 22 after a ten days' illness of influenza and pneumonia. He was 82 years of age.

Mr. Cluxton was born in Adams, O., near Manchester, October 14, 1837. In 1860 he married Miss Mary Beatty in Rising Sun, Ind. They lived happily together until 1896, when his wife died. He is survived by two daughters, Mrs. Mollie Leaning and Miss Alice Cluxton, and two sons, B. J. Cluxton and Louis Cluxton. He had seven grandchildren and one great-grandchild.

The florists of Texas feel his death most keenly. A number of years ago, Mr. Cluxton was a farmer in Willis and for a long time he had noted bluebells growing on the hillsides and on adjoining farms. He brought some of them to R. C. Kerr, in Houston, Tex., seeking information as to their commercial value. They appealed to the retailers and, after a few trials, they sold readily. From that day until his last illness, he had been shipping large quantities of these flowers to the florists throughout the south. Farming soon became a side line and he devoted his entire energy to the shipping of bluebells.

The funeral was held February 23. Many beautiful floral pieces were sent as testimonials of the high position that he held in the trade.

Mrs. Caroline Matern.

Mrs. Caroline Matern, widow of the late Henry Matern and proprietor of the Matern Flower Shop, Sandusky, O., died at her home Wednesday, February 25, at the age of 80 years. Mrs. Matern was known as a citizen of high character and a business woman of tact and taste.

Her daugher, Miss Matern, will continue the business under the same name.

Mrs. Magdalene C. Hass.

Mrs. Magdalene C. Hass, wife of Henry J. Hass, died at her home, on Almy street, Newport, R. I., Monday, February 23. She was 59 years of age.

Mrs. Hass never recovered from an attack of the influenza and had a complication of diseases. She is survived by her husband and a large family of children.

Walter Carroll.

Walter Carroll, formerly a gardener at the Casino, died at the home of his father, Michael Carroll, on Dean avenue, Newport, R. I., Wednesday, February 25.

He died suddenly after coming to Newport to recuperate from several months in the hospital at Whitinsville, Mass. He is survived by his father, two brothers and a sister.

John C. Olmsted.

John Charles Olmsted, noted landscape architect and member of the firm of Olmsted Bros., Brookline, Mass., died February 25, at the age of 67 years. With his brother, Frederick Law Olmsted, and his stepfather, Mr. Olmsted was instrumental in laying out scores of municipal park systems, hundreds of the finest private estates in America and three great expositions, including the one held in Chicago in 1893. Central park, New York, and many other great enterprises were carried out by the Olmsted firm. During the war the Olmsteds offered their services to the government and drew plans for most of the great cantonments and other mammoth undertakings. Great numbers of university grounds, libraries and state capitols were also planned by the firm.

Mr. Olmsted was a member of numerous organizations, including the Massachusetts Horticultural Society, American Association of Park Superintendents and American Forestry Association. His widow and two daughters survive him. W. N. C.

George S. Whitford.

George S. Whitford, who conducted a small greenhouse and retail florists' business at Phenix, R. I., died at his home in that village Monday, February 23, of a shock said to be from Bright's disease. He was 42 years of age.

He had not been in good health for some time and had not been able to work regularly during this winter. Monday night he had gone out to the barn to water his horse, but did not return. At first his wife did not think anything of it, because he frequently went to the business district at that time. When he did not return at 10 p. m., she went out to the barn and found him lying on the floor, dead.

Besides his wife, he is survived by one son and a sister.

Nichols Corbi.

Nichols Corbi, who had been associated with V. J. Baraducci, of 230 Atwell's avenue, Providence, R. I., for several years, died at St. Joseph's hospital Saturday morning, February 28, of pneumonia, following an attack of influenza. He was 24 years of age.

He was born in Providence and attended the public schools. Afterwards he entered the employ of Mr. Baraducci and was considerd one of the best make-up men in the local trade. When this country entered the war, the young man volunteered and served about eighteen months in this country and abroad. While in France he contracted a heavy cold which he was unable to shake off, and, after his return to the United States, he was in the hospital at Camp Meade until last November, when he was discharged. January 31 he had an attack of influenza and he apparently rallied, but about a week ago pneumonia developed and he was taken to St. Joseph's hospital, where he died.

W. H. M.

James B. Hutchinson.

James B. Hutchinson, 91 years of age, a resident of Litchfield, Ill., for many years, died at his home February 14. Mr. Hutchinson was engaged in the nursery business for nearly half a century. He was buried Monday, February 16.

Harry Jordon.

Harry Jordon, superintendent of the Gary park system, died March 1 at Gary, Ind., of pneumonia, following influenza. Mr. Jordon was one of Gary's pioneers. Funeral services were held Thursday morning, March 4, at the residence of his parents in Chicago, Mr. and Mrs. John Jordon, 7727 South Shore drive.

CHICAGO.

The Market.

Business in the last week has been poor or good, according to the standard of comparison. If one compares last week's record with the record for the corresponding week in 1919 he discovers that business is excellent, but if one compares with the early part of February it is distinctly poor. Apparently the whole middle west now is full of flowers, because many customers who have been importunate for the last two months are heard from no more; they have home supplies ample for present needs. Consequently the shipping trade has fallen off to a considerable extent. The out-of-town demand still is much stronger than the call for flowers in the city. Local retailers now report business as spasmodic; a good day will be followed by an extremely quiet one. On the whole, however, the wholesale houses are rolling up daily sales considerably in excess of those of last year. Large quantities of stock are being handled and the prices, though much lower than last month, are considerably higher than at this time last year. Some of the more thoughtful retailers agree that prices now are as low as they should be permitted to go. They see that it is not to their own best interests, either to have flowers cheapened in the eyes of the public or to have their production made otherwise than profitable for the growers.

There now is an abundant supply of practically all flowers in season. Roses are holding their own better than most of the other items in the list, considerably better than the other big staple, the carnation. Even in the dullest of Lenten days, Russell and Premier have sold as high as 40 cents and only occasionally has there been difficulty in cleaning up. The decrease in demand rather than increase in supply is responsible for weakening in the price of short roses. These have been so scarce and high that many retailers have stopped ordering them, with the result that a comparatively small quantity of short roses frequently sees a portion of them left at night, unless sold at a concession to someone who had not thought of buying. Most of the roses are of excellent quality. There are not many Beauties.

The carnation supply is equal to all demands and prices look low in the light of recent values. Nor does quality leave anything for the buyers to complain of. Perhaps the greatest increase in supply has been of sweet peas. These are everywhere and the quality varies widely. While the peas are selling well, the demand is not great enough to take up so tremendous a supply. The abundance of peas has given violets another setback. Early tulips are in greater abundance than heretofore, although some of the first growers in the market have finished shipping. Darwin tulips are being received in considerable quantity and are selling well. There is an abundance of freesia, but it is not in demand. Callas are so plentiful that the price has fallen to half what it was a month ago and there are a few Easter lilies of fine quality, with moderate supplies of rubrums. Cattleyas have become plentiful and cheap; prices are back where they were before the war. It looks as though the orchid growers, as well as the valley forcers, would have to employ strong publicity methods to get the trade into the habit of pushing these specialties again.

All green goods also are in good supply.

Big February Business.

The extra day in February this year did the florists no good, because it fell on Sunday, when florists no longer labor. So February's record is for twenty-eight days, the same as in 1919. But otherwise there is no similarity. Numerous wholesale houses say their sales this February were double those of the month in 1919. Practically everyone had the largest increase ever recorded for a single month. Twenty-eight days in February produced a considerably larger total of sales for the market as a whole than did the thirty-one days in January. Still more remarkable, February beat December! For a great many years the month in which Easter fell always was the big month of the year in the Chicago market. Gradually Christmas came to the front, with the result that for the last few years December regularly has been the biggest of the twelve. But February, 1920, now stands as the record month for Chicago. Of course, a large part of the splendid wholesale total was contributed by orders from out-of-town, but most of the city retail stores also had a record business.

There is a general belief that Easter will be larger than ever before. While trade seems inactive now, by comparison with the recent rush, it really is much better than is usual in the first part of Lent and there is confidence of a big volume all this spring.

A Smooth Start.

With the opening of business March 1 fourteen wholesale houses began collecting for the publicity campaign, on the plan several times described in this column. The idea was that one per cent should be added to the bills only of those who have joined the Allied Florists' Association, but most of the wholesalers made the addition to the bills of all the city customers, without reference to the list of those who have signed the agreement. So far as heard from, there was absolutely no objection and it seems probable that in the course of a few days all the kinks will be straightened out and practically everybody will be participating in the work and cost, as all are participating in the benefits already apparent.

cure legal release from liabilities contracted several years ago in the flower business on Sixty-third street. Mr. Keenan has been in the army service for a considerable part of the time since he left the florists' business, not having returned from France until August, 1919. He now is a salesman for the United States Rubber Co., but plans to get back into business. About two years ago Poehlmann Bros. Co. foreclosed a chattel mortgage on the Keenan store and bid in the property when it was seen that no satisfactory offer was forthcoming, turning the store over to the sisters of the former owner, who are conducting it successfully as F. & R. Keenan. The bankruptcy schedule shows the old debts to be $5,403.09, divided among fifty-two creditors, nearly all except $737 for rent being due to the trade. The assets scheduled are $95 in wearing apparel and $5 cash. A discharge is asked, the hearing being set for April 12.

er department sales for December, January and February were 225 per cent greater than in the same three months last season, while in the supply department the increase was 262 per cent. If anyone can show greater gains than these he surely is entitled to congratulation.

Andrew Chronis is pleased to take advantage of the changed conditions to return to his old policy of abundant display of flowers in the store of the Alpha Floral Co.

Mike Freres, with A. T. Pyfer & Co., has been confined to his home by a belated attack of the flu.

C. L. Washburn and wife leave March 5 for a fortnight's trip in the southeast. They expect to travel as far as Galveston.

P. C. Schupp says the call for carnation cuttings exceeds anything in his previous experience. One order this week was for 15,000, evidently for starting up another range which has been idle.

James Psenicka recently took his son into partnership at the Gross Point carnation range.

The Wayside Inn at Morton Grove, a favorite resort of florists, was burned to the ground March 1. President Poehlmann, of the village board, directed the fire fighters, but they were unable to save the building.

As a means of getting team work, the American Greenhouse Mfg. Co. has a monthly dinner for those in the sales and administration departments. February 27, at Field's men's grill, there were thirty present. Club's meeting March 4. The first page carried the portrait of Vice-president Pyfer and his prognostications as to the course of business between now and Easter. He predicted 50 cents per bud for potted lilies, but as a matter of fact growers are busy booking orders at 30 cents. For cut lilies 25 cents to 35 cents is asked, according to quality of the stock.

Ed Enders says January and February have been the largest and most profitable months in the history of the C. A. Samuelson business. Mr. Samuelson has been at his Idaho farm since shortly after Christmas, but will be home for a fortnight or so at Easter.

It is reported that George Wienhoeber has acquired E. C. Amling's interest in the Weiss-Spandikow Co.

S. R. McKee has returned from a trip to the Pacific coast, where he opened an office for the American Greenhouse Mfg. Co. at Seattle.

Mr. and Mrs. H. N. Bruns will celebrate their silver wedding anniversary March 5, having invited a number of friends to their home on Warren avenue for the event.

George Ball, of sweet pea and calendula fame, welcomed another daughter at his home at Glen Ellyn February 27.

Paul R. Klingsporn's home, 4858 North Lawndale avenue, recently has resembled a hospital, Mrs. Klingsporn, the little daughter and Mrs. Klingsporn's mother all having been ill at the same time with the flu.

A. Miller, president of the A. B. C., celebrated a birthday anniversary March 4. He was born in 1887.

Y. Staalduynen has figured in recent sensational newspaper dispatches from Los Angeles as the "rich Chicagoan" whose wife eloped. Mr. Staalduynen has traveled for the last two years for Van Meeuwen & Tegelaar and before that for Guldemond & Sons, both concerns being bulb exporters at Lisse, Holland. He now is doing business as the Holland-American Trading Co., with an office in the United States Express building.

O. Johnson has sold his interest in the Batavia Greenhouse Co., to one of the other stockholders, Gottlieb Schott, who also is superintendent of the establishment.

Having rented her greenhouses at Arlington Heights to Nic Schmidt, Mrs. Rose Sigwalt has moved to Chicago. She will make her home for a time at 2010 Warren avenue. Mr. Schmidt, who takes over the Sigwalt rose growing establishment, recently has been grower for Frank Schramm. He came to the Chicago district about a year ago from Springfield, O.

P. L. McKee has purchased a residence near Lincoln park.

Paul Weiss, Eugene Dramm, David Lundin and C. J. Michelsen spent a day at Richmond, Ind., last week.

John C. Enders, widely known in the trade through his many years with Poehlmann Bros. Co. prior to his recent connection with the E. C. Amling Co., is vice-president of Dearborn Chorus, an organization within Dearborn Lodge of Masons. The chorus gave its tenth annual show at Aryan Grotto temple, February 28, to a packed house. When "Tulip Time" was sung Mr. Enders distributed tulips to the lady choristers, who threw them to the audience.

The difficulties holding up building operations prevented R. E. Doane from carrying out his plans of establishing a factory to pulverize sheep manure and so he is still selling his supply of rough manure to florists in carload lots.

BOSTON.

The Market.

The anticipated slump in prices has arrived. For a number of weeks, supply and demand have about balanced each other. Now, with a number of clear days and the increasing power of the sun, cut flowers are much more abundant and values are practically cut in half. The continued severe weather, with zero readings in Boston February 27 and 28, and readings 10 to 15 degrees below zero a few miles outside, snow-blockaded roads and transportation facilities far from normal, are hardly conducive to good business. Some near-by towns are so isolated by huge drifts that they are facing semi-starvation.

Roses have taken a sharp tumble. Short-stemmed stock is down to $3 to $4 per hundred and only select flowers bring over $12 per hundred. Supplies are much more abundant. Carnations have fallen in proportion to roses and, while a few fancies may sell at $8 per hundred, a greater number sell at half that price. There was a large surplus on both February 28 and March 1. Violets are also at lower prices. Large arrivals of sweet peas have forced prices down and the same applies to all classes of Dutch bulbous flowers.

Callas are much lower and lilies are decidedly druggy. Marguerites sell slowly, as do calendulas, forget-me-nots and snapdragons. Among miscellaneous flowers seen are Iris tingitana and filicifolia, polyanthus, Roman anemones, acacias, clivias, amaryllis and ranunculus.

and there are good supplies of other orchids. Valley is not in much demand. Among pot plants are fine Darwin tulips, rhododendrons, forced deciduous shrubs in variety, cinerarias, azaleas and the first arrivals of French hydrangeas.

Various Notes.

W. E. Lenk has purchased suitable land in Arlington and as soon as the weather will permit will start building three large, up-to-date greenhouses of Hitchings & Co. construction. These will be devoted to roses. Mr. Lenk is widely known as a first-class grower of roses and carnations. He was for a number of years manager of the Halifax Gardens Co., Halifax, Mass., owned by A. C. Burrage, the noted orchid enthusiast. For a year or two Mr. Lenk has not been engaged in floriculture, but never lost interest in it.

The Welch Bros. Co. shipping trade is good, considering the condition of the railroads and the refusal, on some days, of all flower packages by express companies. Mr. Welch will visit the flower show in New York and officiate as a judge.

In Galvin's Park street store large bowls of Iris tingitana, Freesia Purity and Acacia pubescens made a lovely combination. A fine display of cymbidiums, dendrobiums, cattleyas and other seasonable orchids were noted here.

Owing to the weather conditions, the show of orchid plants scheduled to be held at Horticultural hall February 28 was called off. The only orchid display was one of cut flowers from Joseph Manda, who showed some choice and handsome cymbidiums, cypripediums and other orchids. The first of the course of winter lectures was given by Prof. W. J. V. Osterhart, on "The Living Plant," and attracted a good attendance. Germination and root development were principally dealt with.

Henry Penn has been running large ads in all the Boston papers for the last week, telling people that flowers are lower in price.

Another corn borer hearing was held February 28, at the offices of the commissioner of agriculture, at the state house, Boston. Numerous growers of dahlias and gladioli were present and put their case in the hands of Commissioner Gilbert. Prominent among those present were J. K. Alexander, B. Hammond Tracy, S. E. Spencer, Jelle Roos and others well known to the trade. The opinion of all growers is that any necessary quarantining should be done by the state and not the federal authorities.

fort to restore passenger service from the storm of February 25, which, being accompanied by high winds, again caused serious blockades. Appeals by the Boston Chamber of Commerce to industries of all kinds to release men to help clean away the snow and release ice-blockaded cars, etc., led to thousands of men joining the railroad workers. Owing to the great fuel shortage, hundreds of industrial plants, schools, etc., are closed. A good many greenhouse establishments are living from hand to mouth, barely getting sufficient fuel to carry them from day to day.

The Market.

The change that has been expected for a whole month has come. There are plenty of flowers at lower prices. It was the sweet pea that did it more than anything else. Sweet peas respond first to sunshine; a day or two will accomplish wonders at this season. Sweet peas are coming in by the thousand now. Most of them are sold at pretty fair prices; a few are left over, an unheard-of thing for many weeks. Violets, too, are abundant. There is not so much demand for them as there is for sweet peas. Many violets are sold cheaply or left over. Daffodils have tumbled down in price to one-half the figures of two weeks ago. These three flowers led the decline. The rest of the market is in sympathy with them, without any special increase in the crops. As this supply increased, the demand fell off. This was due mainly to one happy circumstance—the grip or influenza, whichever you choose to call it, is disappearing as quickly as it came. This is true all over the country, causing a marked falling off in shipping, as well as local, orders for funerals.

The effect of the change is seen in the reappearance of buyers who have been absent from the market for three months. Flowers are getting within their reach once more and they are quick to take advantage of the opportunity.

February, the shortest month of the year, has proved to be a month of extraordinary prosperity for florists. The curtailment in production and the increased demand have resulted in unheard-of prices, which have made the total sales of cut flowers larger than in any previous February and probably larger than in any previous month except December.

An Un-Birthday Party.

There is only one day in the year when anybody can have a real birthday party. There are 365 days this year for anybody's un-birthday party. So you see the possibilities are largely in favor of the latter kind. This was an un-birthday party. It happened in this wise: The idea occurred in the fertile brain of W. W. Crawford. He thought it over and finally mustered up courage and put it in this way to the junior partner. "Would Buck care to see me some evening?" The answer was quick and clear. "Yes, indeed." "How about bringing one or two of the fellows?" "Sure." So it was settled. The idea took form. Mr. Crawford next tried his friend A. B. Cartledge. "Say, Bart, how about our giving Buck a party?" Mr. Cartledge remembered well the successful dinner that Mr. Crawford had originated for Pennock Bros. to give in honor of William Falck. So he answered with enthusiasm, "All right, I'm with you to the limit, Bill." That settled it. Mr. Crawford went quietly about his preparations. The evening of Lions' day was selected, chiefly because it happened to be a Monday. As Mr. Crawford naively explained, "the fellows look their best on a Monday." The choice of the guests was a serious matter. Of course everybody would want to go and everybody couldn't. It would make too many. There must be a few of the colonel's old friends in the profesh and a few of the youngsters, like Gene Bernheimer and Allie Patterson, to liven things up. The party, as it finally lined up on the eventful evening, was thoroughly representative of our best men. There was a baker's dozen, of course. Here they are: William J. Baker, Henry Bauer, Eugene Bernheimer, A. B. Cartledge, George Craig, W. W. Crawford, Carl A. Corts, Richard Heron, Robert Kift, Charles W. Kahlert, Alexander Craig Patterson, Edward Riley, Benjamin Starkey. It was a big surprise—you can't often fool the colonel—and a great success. There was a great big bee on the top of the menu. There was one dish a la grouch (oh, naughty boy!), another a la Marie (woman rules the world, you know), and napkins a la Riley. It was a real kiddie time, as Mr. Crawford aptly expressed it, and much enjoyed by all.

The Sweet Peas in the New House.

The Joseph Heacock Co., on completing the third big house, 72x600 feet, at Roelofs late last fall, put in several so-called catch crops to keep the house from idleness until the roses were planted in it late in the spring. The principal crop is sweet peas. The peas are now coming into full bloom. The cut sent in from Roelofs to the city salesroom on South Mole street, Friday, February 27, was 4,600. The company's vice-president and sales manager, Carl A. Corts, said that those peas were all sold on that day at $4 per hundred, the top market price. The flowers, mostly of the variety called Christmas Pink, were simply magnificent.

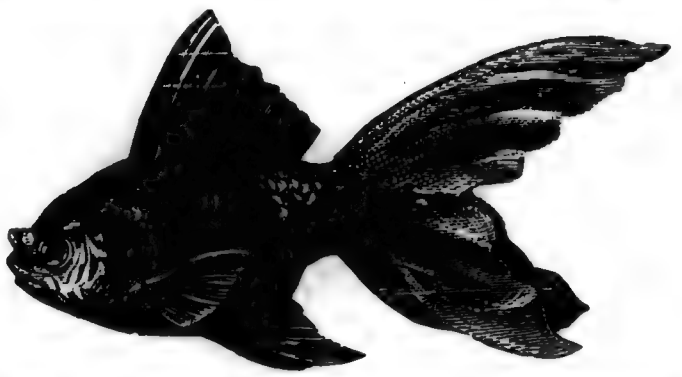
Mr. Corts also displayed some well grown Premier of excellent form and substance and beautifully colored, cut from their plants that bore a good crop at Christmas.



The March Meeting.

It was a great night on the roof garden of the Adelphia last Tuesday, when J. Otto Thilow entertained the ladies and members present with his interesting illustrated lecture on Australia. It was a finished address, well and clearly presented.

The exhibition was marvelous. The W. Atlee Burpee Co. staged fifty varieties of early-flowering sweet peas, its own seedlings, in many exquisite colors. William Kleinheinz, of Lynwood Hall, staged eleven varieties of acacias in cut sprays. The Strafford Flower Farm showed well grown giganteum lilies well timed for Easter, with good buds and clean foliage, also heavily flowered French hydrangeas. The Joseph Heacock Co. displayed fine Hadley, Premier and Columbia roses and three vases of magnificent sweet peas. Edward Reid showed Belle Washburn, Ward and Benora carnations and John Stephenson's Son had Sunburst roses on view.

The Market.

The market is once more plentifully supplied with flowers and, as a result, prices are easier, practically normal under the conditions of production now existing. varieties are augmented this year by one or two of the newer trumpet sorts. A scarcity of bulbous flowers later in the season is predicted, for the reason that many bulb growers have been unable to bring in flats which are ice-bound.

Roses are only in fair supply, but, with the wealth of spring flowers at hand, they are plentiful enough to meet the demand for them. American Beauty would be quite scarce if the demand for it were good. The arrivals of hybrid teas show general good quality, but there is still a shortage in the lower grades, which are in strong demand for funeral work.

Carnations are plentiful and there is little prospect of a shortage from now on, but rather the reverse, as growers report that the plants in the benches show a disposition to make up for lost time. The top price at the beginning of this week was $6 per hundred, with plenty of flowers to be had at $4 and $5 per hundred. The quality of arrivals is much improved.

Cattleyas are now hard to move, even at much lower prices. Fairly good flowers are to be had for $25 per hundred, with the lowest grade clearing out at $15 per hundred. The best hybrids command $50 per hundred, but they are not plentiful. Cypripediums move fairly well at $15 to $50 per hundred. Gardenias drag at $1 to $4 per dozen.

Lilies are in much better supply and appear to drag at $20 per hundred; the call for them is limited. Lily of the valley continues in oversupply and a good deal of stock goes to waste. The price range at the beginning of this week was 50 cents to $5 per hundred, with perhaps $1 more for selected flowers. An avalanche of pips which recently came into the market is said to be responsible for the oversupply. A few rubrums are to be had at 8 to 10 cents per bloom.

Sweet peas are arriving in great quantity, with some unusually fine stock among the arrivals, long stems carrying three or four flowers. The price range is 50 cents to $2 per hundred, with a few selected blooms bringing $3 per hundred.

There is an excellent supply of miscellaneous flowers and all seem to move well. Calendulas are moved at 15 to 30 cents per bunch and the flowers are of unusually strong color. Wallflowers, snapdragons, pansies, primulas, buddleias, myosotis, bouvardias, white and yellow daisies, stocks and mignonette are among the varieties noticed and the Greek-Americans' Annual Ball.

The Greek-American Florists' Association held its thirteenth annual entertainment and ball at the Hotel Commodore Thursday night, February 26. The affair was well attended and proved to be a grand success in every way. The handsome ballroom was lavishly decorated with flowers, and, with the handsome dresses of the ladies, who also made liberal use of flowers for personal adornment, the scene presented was brilliant indeed. A splendid entertainment was provided and the dance program was greatly extended as the evening passed into the early hours of next morning. One of the program numbers was the "Say It with Flowers" fox trot by Albert von Tilzer. A formal repast and a variety of light refreshments were served during the evening. The following committees ably discharged their duties:

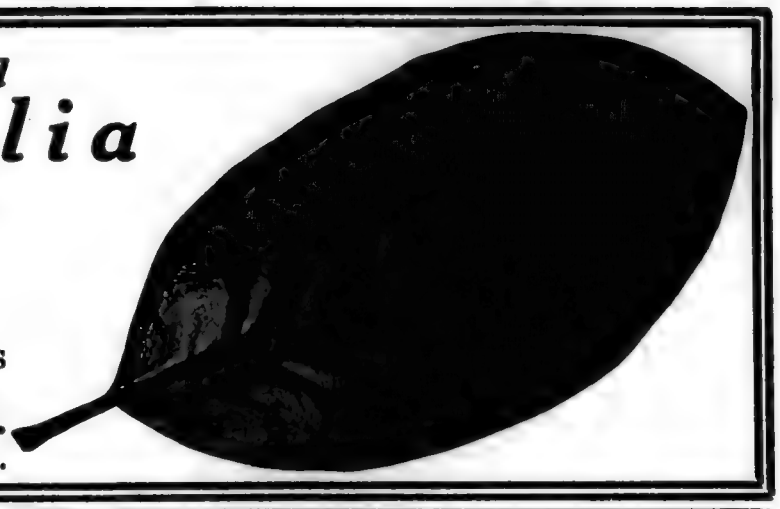
Various Notes.

Work on the alterations in the Greenhut building, Eighteenth street and Sixth avenue, preparatory to occupation by the wholesale florists, is actively proceeding and that part of the building which is to house the florists, if not the whole building, will be ready by May 1. The holding corporation has executed a lease for ten years. John Young & Co., 53 West Twenty-eighth street, have joined the organization and will move with the others about the time named.

Preparations for the international flower show are being carried on with great activity and everything is going smoothly. There is a good demand for trade tickets, all of which are supplied this year at the Grand Central Palace instead of at the secretary's office. Floor space for trade exhibits is nearly all disposed of and the show will open March 15 under exceedingly favorable circumstances. The flower show committee met Monday afternoon, when quite satisfactory reports on arrangements were submitted. Practically the only thing to worry about is the weather and, after the conditions experienced of late, it is reasonable to expect fair weather.

Russin & Hanfling say that the reported purchase by them of a building on West Nineteenth street, opposite the Greenhut building, is not exactly correct.

Many of the retailers were somewhat concerned over a lengthy article which appeared in the Evening Sun recently and which, contrary to the general trend of such articles, was rather too truthful and explicit, exposing wholesale prices and giving a line on retailers' profits.



Visitors last week were Wallace R.

ering from an attack of pneumonia following influenza, but it will be some days before he can be around.

At the next meeting of the New York Florists' Club, Monday evening, March 8, C. H. Totty, Madison, N. J., will give a talk on "The Commercial Development of the Rose." This will be rose night and some interesting exhibits of roses will, it is expected, be staged.

J. H. P.

A lecture on "Rose Gardens" will be delivered March 17 at 8:15 p. m. at the American Museum of Natural History at a meeting of the Horticultural Society of New York to be held on that date. The lecture is by Edmund M. Mills, president of the Syracuse Rose Society, an enthusiastic amateur grower of roses for over forty years.

Incorporation papers were recently taken out by the William H. Lutton Co. in New Jersey, stating a capitalization of $50,000, for the manufacture of greenhouse equipments. J. W. Smith, 512 Fifth avenue, was given as the representative.

CINCINNATI, O.

The Market.

The drop in prices came to this center a little later than to some of the other markets. The advent of Lent, the abating of the flu epidemic and the holidays of February 22 and 23 all helped to create an oversupply and cause stock to take a tumble in all lines.

Roses show the least decline, owing to a scarcity of growers in this district. The better grades are about $35 per hundred, while short roses are noted at $12 per hundred. Carnations have dropped to about $8 per hundred for good stock, some still bringing $10 per hundred. Inferior stock is much cheaper. Lily of the valley has fallen off one-half, now being quoted at $6 per hundred.

Sweet peas are about the same, but another week will see the price still lower. Purity freesia, as well as tulips and single daffodils, are down to $6 per hundred and move well at this figure. Double daffodils are making their appearance, but are not arriving in large quantities.

The great question at present seems to be the price of lilies for Easter. From the present indications, it would seem that a price of $25 per hundred blooms would be fair, but unforeseen

ALEXANDER'S DAHLIAS

For Florists and Seedsmen

If you are looking for something good for your florists' business, try my new cut-flower varieties offered below. I highly recommend them.

Maude Adams (New Show Dahlia). A pure snowy white, very daintily overlaid and suffused the sweetest shade of rose-pink imaginable. It is the best of my introductions for florists' use. "Maude Adams" is the most prolific Dahlia of its color, being more than twice as free-flowering as either "Nymphea" or "Sylvia." It has good stems and is an early Dahlia to blossom, continuing thruout the entire season. It has the necessary features that make it stand shipping well, and makes up good in all kinds of work. It has already been tested out in all parts of the country, Raymond Champe of Michigan finding it his best commercial variety. I can furnish strong divisions at $3.50 per dozen, $20.00 per 100; and clumps at $5.00 per doz., $35.00 per 100.

Hortulanus Fiet (Giant Decorative Dahlia). Beautiful salmon-pink with a slight blending of yellow. Good divisions $15.00 per 100, $2.00 per dozen.

Madonna (New Peony-flowered Dahlia). A very beautiful white, very slightly tinted with a most delicate shade of lavender-pink. The touch of color adds greatly, rather than detracts from its value, especially when made-up in floral work. The form of the flower is perfectly original, each petal curling and twisting in a very pleasing manner. An excellent cut-flower variety. Strong divisions $1.50 per dozen, $10.00 per 100; clumps $3.00 per dozen, $25.00 per 100.

Frank A. Walker (New Decorative Dahlia). A charming shade of lavender-pink, with long stiff stems. Produces its flowers in abundance; an exceptionally early bloomer. Good divisions $3.50 per dozen, $25.00 per 100; clumps $5.00 per dozen.

Mina Burgle (Decorative Dahlia). The finest scarlet Dahlia to my knowledge. Flowers of large size, produced in quantity, on long, wiry stems, well above the foliage. Good divisions $1.50 per dozen, $10.00 per 100; clumps $2.00 per dozen, $15.00 per 100.

Field View of Dahlia Maude Adams.

Mrs. Warnaar (Peony-Cactus Dahlia). Gigantic flowers of creamy white, suffused a delicate shade of pink. The early flowers are full to the center, and giants of hybrid Cactus type; but as the season advances, they show the beautiful golden yellow center which lends an individual charm to the flower, a characteristic of the Peony-flowered type. An early continuous bloomer, stems anywhere from eighteen to thirty-six inches long. Divisions $5.00 per dozen, $35.00 per 100.

If you are interested in cut-flower varieties, I will be pleased to recommend you the best varieties in the colors you want, and will give your communication the benefit of my twenty-five years as a Dahlia Specialist.

MY TRADE LIST gives complete descriptions and prices of over 300 of the most up-to-date Dahlias in the world, and is mailed free. Write for it now.

WASHINGTON, D. C.

The Market.

The supply of stock is now normal again for this time of the year. Bulbous flowers and an increase in the cut of carnations and sweet peas have greatly relieved the scarcity which has prevailed in this city for several weeks. Prices, consequently, have dropped considerably. Cattleyas are bringing $50 per hundred and peas move slowly at $4 per hundred. Carnations have dropped to $12 per hundred. The rose supply has not been quite so satisfactory during the last week. The supply of spring flowers continues to show an increase, especially tulips. The plant trade is still good, and all greens clean up rapidly. Some stock was lost by freezing during the extremely cold spell last week, but out-of-town business has been unusually good and the shipments have been going through with little trouble. G. V. S.

Oyster Roast a Success.

The oyster roast at the range of the Washington Floral Co., at Alexandria, Va., Saturday evening, February 28, was a great success. The florists, led by a delegation from Gude Bros. Co., in a large limousine, journeyed to Alexandria in a string of automobiles.

The greenhouse was decorated with palms, ferns and American flags. At one end a platform had been set up for speakers, but this was largely utilized by a colored orchestra. Oysters and clams on the half-shell, cooked in several styles with all the fixings, were served.

Among the speakers were David G. Grillbortzer, president of the Washington Floral Co.; J. Harper Hetherington, manager of the Fourteenth street store of that company; William F. and Adolph Gude, of Gude Bros. Co.; Captain James, of the British army, and Z. D. Blackistone.

Mr. Hetherington was in charge of the transportation arrangements and the commissary, while Mr. Grillbortzer looked after things in Alexandria. The latter delivered a few words of welcome and then urged that they all do their utmost to make the next convention and show of the American Carnation Society a success. The guests pledged their coöperation and gave a rising vote of thanks to Mr. Grillbortzer and to Mr. Hetherington for the excellence of the entertainment.

FORCED FREESIAS AND VALLEY.

Have forced freesias and forced lilies of the valley any value if planted out in the open ground after forcing? How should I treat them? L. S. K.—Mass.

Freesias when cut close to the ground with long stems are not worth carrying over. If they are cut with short stems and if the foliage is not removed, they can be carried over to good advantage provided the pots, pans or flats are given a light position and watered until the foliage shows signs of maturing, when they can be rested. Bulbs carried over this way are equal or superior to any you can buy. It would be of no use planting freesias or valley outdoors; neither would prove of any value. C. W.

NATIONAL PUBLICITY CAMPAIGN.

Is Influencing the Public.

Had flowers been plentiful, the business for St. Valentine's day would have been such as to make the day rank, as a flower occasion, next to Mothers' day. The unfortunate condition of the flower markets throughout the country, which existed before and during the St. Valentine's day business period, curtailed possibilities considerably and the volume accomplished was limited only by the supply of flowers available. In the emergency there was a good demand for plants.

What has placed St. Valentine's day on the map of business, if not our publicity campaign? Two or three years ago, the business for this day was ordinary in volume. A good business prospect was passing into obscurity for want of exploitation. Our publicity committee took the matter in hand and through judicious advertising in the magazines and dissemination of reading articles, which were favorably received by a large number of newspapers throughout the country, among them some of the largest, the public were led to see that a splendid old custom was falling into the discard, with the result that there has been a revival highly profitable to our industry. This campaign work continued through two more seasons has had the effect desired. To insure all possible publicity for the day, our promotion bureau has urged florists individually to connect with the campaign advertising through the use of their local newspapers' advertising columns and has supplied many hundreds of special electrotyped advertisements for this purpose, all of which in use have added to the publicity for the day as well as serving the local interests of the advertisers. An additional aid this season has been an enormous quantity of poster stamps and window posters sent out by the bureau.

Making Demand for Other Days.

A similar procedure has characterized the campaign work for Mothers' Day.

NATIONAL PUBLICITY CAMPAIGN.

Is Influencing the Public.

Had flowers been plentiful, the business for St. Valentine's day would have been such as to make the day rank, as a flower occasion, next to Mothers' day. The unfortunate condition of the flower markets throughout the country, which existed before and during the St. Valentine's day business period, curtailed possibilities considerably and the volume accomplished was limited only by the supply of flowers available. In the emergency there was a good demand for plants.

What has placed St. Valentine's day on the map of business, if not our publicity campaign? Two or three years ago, the business for this day was ordinary in volume. A good business prospect was passing into obscurity for want of exploitation. Our publicity committee took the matter in hand and through judicious advertising in the magazines and dissemination of reading articles, which were favorably received by a large number of newspapers throughout the country, among them some of the largest, the public were led to see that a splendid old custom was falling into the discard, with the result that there has been a revival highly profitable to our industry. This campaign work continued through two more seasons has had the effect desired. To insure all possible publicity for the day, our promotion bureau has urged florists individually to connect with the campaign advertising through the use of their local newspapers' advertising columns and has supplied many hundreds of special electrotyped advertisements for this purpose, all of which in use have added to the publicity for the day as well as serving the local interests of the advertisers. An additional aid this season has been an enormous quantity of poster stamps and window posters sent out by the bureau.

Making Demand for Other Days.

A similar procedure has characterized the campaign work for Mothers' Day.

RETAIL STORE MANAGEMENT

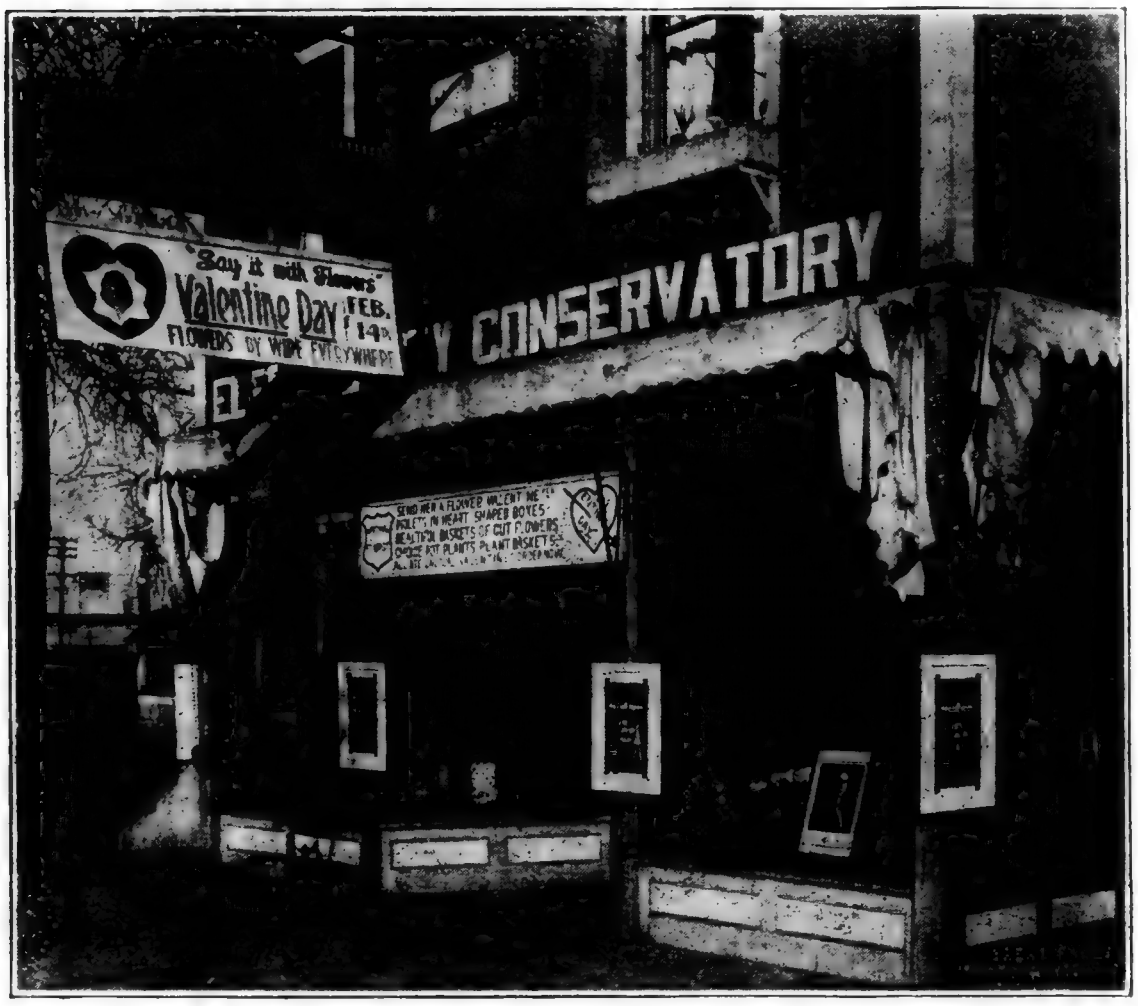
A BELIEVER IN ADVERTISING.

How decided can be the results of energetic advertising in a small-sized town as well as in a large city is demonstrated by the results the florists obtain in those places who follow such a course. One does not have to be located on a thoroughfare where thousands pass daily to derive real returns from publicity efforts. St. Valentine's day just past showed one such example of results in a small town in the case of the Electric City Conservatory, at Great Falls, Mont. Just how thorough a believer in advertising is Charles A. Burrell, the proprietor, can be seen from the illustration on this page. Just one or two S. A. F. posters was not enough. Three were framed and put up outside the store where they could easily be read. Below the big electric rose a large-lettered sign flagged the attention of every passer, telling of the approach of St. Valentine's day. And over the entrance to the store was another large sign, bearing suggestions for floral valentines. Altogether one could not fail to feel the florist's urging to "Say It with Flowers" on this holiday.

The people of Great Falls responded to an unusually encouraging degree. This is what Mr. Burrell says:

"As a result of our special advertising effort for this occasion, we had by far the biggest St. Valentine's day in our history. In fact, it was so good that it offers no comparison with other years. Bulbous stock and spring flowers were plentiful; we had plenty to go around. And the people of Great Falls and vicinity did 'Say It with Flowers.' We offered heart-shaped boxes and they, as well as baskets, dolls and corsages, found extremely ready sale.

"We were quite proud of the advertising matter that the Society of American Florists sent out and we believe it ought to follow the same idea for all special days, such as St. Patrick's day, Easter, Mothers' day, Memorial day, etc."



F. T. D. HELPS CANADIANS.

To save its Canadian members the premium which they must pay on orders wired to florists in the United States on account of the present disparity in the exchanges of the two countries, the Florists' Telegraph Delivery Association will open a bank account in Canada, paying bills and receiving payments on that side of the border with Canadian members and carrying on the other end of the transactions through its account in the United States. In notifying F. T. D. members of this new undertaking of his office, Secretary Albert Pochelon explains it as follows:

To facilitate, encourage and develop a closer relationship and a larger volume of international F. T. D. business, this office has decided to broaden out and establish an international clearing house whereby to save our members the unnecessary exchange rate that is forced upon our Canadian brothers.

The F. T. D. office has decided to establish a bank account on the Canadian side as well as an account on this side, to mail checks owed by American F. T. D. members to Canadian members from the Canadian bank, and Canadian bills due American members will receive American checks from the F. T. D. office.

Therefore, if you have any bills due Canadian members send them to this office with your check to cover; this will be deposited in the American bank and a check to cover your bill issued from the Canadian bank. Likewise with the Canadian bills, their checks will be deposited in the Canadian bank and a check issued from the F. T. D. office instead.

No One Can Pass This Store Without Hearing What the Florist Has to Say.

WINDOW LIGHTING EQUIPMENT.

Aids Effect of Display.

Much of the dramatic struggle of selling is staged in the silent, yet properly eloquent, show windows. As the various factors in store advertising are being given closer analysis, the value of the window display tends to receive a definite cash appraisal. And without light the scene set within the window is obviously unable to make the slightest appeal.

The color of the light must be carefully adapted to the stock to be shown, some form of color screen often being used to counteract the yellowness of ordinary electric light and to accentuate the dominant color of the display. The color of the background, too, must afford a contrast which will give proper prominence to the stock. These and other points were treated in the article entitled "Lighting the Show Window," in The Review of February 26; the prime problem is to fit general principles to particular needs in a way to produce the effect of distinct individuality, that effect which gives force to the motive of any advertising.

Choosing the Lighting Equipment.

Each window presents its own individual lighting problem, which, differing in some respects at least from all others, requires special treatment. Two windows may, for instance, be identical as to dimensions and details of construction, yet differ distinctly as to their lighting requirements, due to dissimilarity in the brilliancy of the lighted areas adjoining such windows, as well as to variations in the color and character of the display in each. For that reason the actual sales-producing value of windows will be most surely advanced by basing the selection of lighting fixtures and equipment exclusively upon a study of the requirements of the windows to be lighted, rather than to start out by stipulating that this or that lighting scheme be followed, simply because its use in other windows has taken your fancy, or because it has been more or less recommended in print. True, there is a style in lighting just as there is a style in wearing apparel, but the alpha and omega of all such standards are that one does that which is most individually becoming.

The first step, then, in deciding how to make the show window of greatest value in promoting sales is to appraise the measure in which the brilliancy of adjoining windows, and street lights, will compete for attention on the basis solely of the attention-compelling power of light itself, regardless of the relative merits of the goods displayed. The adjoining—and therefore competing windows—may perchance be devoted to the display of goods possessing but a fractional part of the attention value or popular appeal of the florist's window, but if the competing window be better lighted then it will attract greater attention.

Consider Display.

The next step should be to consider carefully the light-reflecting and light-absorbing power of the display, stipulating that the lighting equipment prove equal to supplying a range of illuminating intensity suitable for the maximum and minimum demands for light as made by the displays themselves.

Consideration next should be given to the color requirements in the lighting as dictated by the colors and character of the display. The effect of the color in light rays upon the appearance of merchandise was touched upon in last week's article and need not be mentioned further here.

Those three prime points—the effect of competing areas of brilliancy, the intensity and volume of light demanded by the displays themselves, and the choice of color screens—having been determined, the conditions imposed by the purely physical aspects of the window can be taken up and solved properly and in order; to attempt to do so before the three prime points have been worked out is no more to be commended than the attempt to prepare a funeral design in advance of information as to the flowers and quantity to be used.

Just here it may be well to point out that vision is most comfortable when the object viewed is at eye level and also that people look downwards more readily and habitually than upwards. In fact, tests will show that goods displayed at any considerable height above eye level frequently are not seen at all by a surprisingly large percentage of people. So it should be recognized that the most valuable display portion of the window is from the floor to a point on a line with, or not much above, the level of the average observer's eyes.

Arranging Lights.

The light sources, then, must be so situated that their maximum lighting service will be rendered on what we may call the "selling plane" of the window. But the light sources, on the other hand, should be concealed from the view of the observer, as is done in good stage lighting, and so that the unpleasant effects created by exposed bulbs will not be present.

It may, for instance, be decided that the window is to be in truth a miniature stage, with footlights to cut the shadows occasioned by the overhead lights, and with light coming from concealed sources at the sides or corners of the window to insure plenty of illumination on the vertical, as well as the horizontal plane. Well, there are facilities available for accomplishing each of those results and more besides. It matters not whether the window has a high ceiling and a shallow depth, or whether it has a low ceiling and an unusually great depth from glass to background, or whether the background is solid or completely or partially open. Any good illuminating expert can lay out and install an equipment that will be right in every respect, handling his facilities so that the light will be as mobile and responsive to the control of the window dresser striving after a certain effect as is the piano under the touch of a master. Such achievements in lighting can be seen on the stage any day, and it is generally conceded that the display window is a stage in miniature.

To explain in detail just how any particular type of window should be equipped for maximum lighting results would be entirely at variance with the

Speaking of Heads

Which Way Are You and I Headed For?

Wednesday afternoon, Bob Davis dropped in.
Of course, you know Bob.

Everybody knows him, just like everybody knows Phil. Breitmeyer of Detroit; Gude of Washington; or Dunlop of Toronto.

As usual, Bob looked prosperous.
But somehow he didn't quite have the snap and go he had when I saw him last year.

What's the matter, Bob, says I, had the flu?
"What do you mean, what's the matter?" he came back quicker than a flash.
Oh well, nothing in particular, Bob; just several things in general.
At that he started pinning me down.
Then I out with it.

Trouble with you, Bob, is that you need some one to take the bobs out of you, like we took the jims out of Jimmy. You need some one to stand you in the corner and say: "Look a here, old chap, stop feeling so all-fired chesty about the HERE AND THE NOW.
Start looking at the THEN AND THE THERE.

Stop being so content over the fine business you are doing now.
That's nothing. Everybody is doing a fine business NOW.
But doing a fine business, isn't always doing business fine.

When you do business fine, you go over it every so often—or oftener—with a fine tooth comb.
After which you say to yourself, 'Bob, stop being near-sighted.
You are not doing a dog-gone thing for this business of yours, 2, 3 or 5 years from now.

What you've got to do is get wise to those three words, "LOOKING FURTHER FORWARD"; or when business starts slowing up, yours may run down.'" spirit of this article, because no two windows are identical in their requirements, as explained previously, and to go into the details of the equipment for one particular type or class of window, without supplementing that description with discussions pertaining in turn to all windows, might serve to inspire some florist with a regular Castoria-baby-like desire for that particular scheme of lighting equipment, even though it missed the actual lighting requirements of his windows by half.

The infinitely better plan is for the florist to settle first upon the precise benefits of light which will best assist him to sell his goods, doing that before Ample Equipment.

Sufficient to say here that the assortment of reflectors, colored lamps, screens, time switches, flashes and so on, is sufficient in scope to satisfy every demand. Some form of reflector must of course be used, because light from the electric lamp goes forth in an almost equal degree in all directions, whereas its service, to be effective, must be concentrated in a given direction. There are reflectors designed to permit some of the light to escape through their semi-transparent bodies, while the much larger portion is directed to where it will do the most good; others, again, concentrate the rays searchlight fashion upon a given spot or diffuse it broadly over a wide area. Others, again, direct it in a manner to define an object with sharp headlights and clean-cut shadows, or dispense the light so softly that it blends easily into the surrounding unlighted areas. And as to lamps—well, their name is legion. They are to be had in a multitudinous variety of sizes, colors and shapes—one for every legitimate purpose that the window dresser can conceive of, in fact.

To mention and describe each and every type of lamp, reflector and so on, would be to write a catalogue, and to ignore mentioning even the least important of such conveniences would be to display a form of partisanship not within the purpose of this article.

Time Switches Cut Lighting Cost.

As a salesman electricity is by far too valuable a servant to be allowed to waste its energies upon vacant streets from whence all honest folk have gone home and to bed, and the time-switch devices now on the market relieve the storeman from all active responsibility about darkening the windows. When the streets are deserted, the automatic time-switch cuts the circuit, and the store windows become darkened. The lights are turned on at any hour set and cut off again when the appointed time arrives.

Necessarily, of course, there are regulations designed to insure that all lighting fixtures for both store and windows will be installed in accordance with recognized principles of safe practice, but the splendid lighting effects to be observed in the windows of many progressive merchandising establishments should be convincing to all that nothing exists in the regulations that will in any reasonable sense interfere with the aims of the florist to make the fullest and best uses of electricity as an aid to selling.

Life Members' Certificates.

The issuance of life membership certificates to those who took out such memberships in the closing months of last year has been delayed through circumstances not under the control of the secretary's office. The influenza invaded the office of our engrosser and the work of engrossing the certificates was impeded. The framer who had the contract for framing them likewise suffered, and in addition has been obliged to vacate the premises in which his business was established, resulting in delay also from this quarter. The work of dispatching the certificates is now, however, proceeding and it will not be long before the several hundred held up will reach their destinations.

The epidemic also is responsible for an awkward delay in the receipt of the transcript of the stenographer's notes of the meeting of our executive board at Cleveland last month; consequently an account of the proceedings has necessarily been withheld from publication. Despite the solicitations of Vice-president F. C. W. Brown, who has been in constant communication with the reporting firm, the period of waiting could not be shortened and we have had to curb impatience.

NATIONAL PUBLICITY CAMPAIGN.

We all know that this has been a "made" day for florists, made through publicity, in which the work of our publicity committee has been wonderfully conspicuous. All in the trade would suffer if interest in Mothers' day were allowed to lag. Already attempts have been made by hostile interests to sever the connection of flowers with this day of days. Only organized effort can cope with a situation of this kind. We have it in our publicity campaign.

But the publicity campaign can be only what the members of our trade make it and they are far short of making it all that they could. Only a small percentage of those engaged in our industry are contributing to its support. These contributors have the interests of the trade at heart. They are conscious of the great good our campaign is accomplishing and see their share of the benefits materializing in their own business. They know that we cannot reap the benefits that are in store for all of us with the small fund available, which they have provided. Many of them could contribute even more liberally, but why should they shoulder your burden, Mr. Nonsubscriber? Have they not a moral right to expect your assistance in so worthy a movement, one that produces as much good for you as for them? You are only expected to contribute a trifle, nothing that need hurt you. If you can only send a check for $5, it will be most welcome. A multiplicity of such contributions would carry us to our goal. Take hold of "the big idea" and let us hear from you right away.

Have You Contributed?

Our advertising campaign has been much appreciated by many and much maligned by others, who have repeatedly said, "Why have such a publicity campaign when we can't furnish the present demand?" There was a time when we could not say as much. However, we are going along on a small allowance, but with space rates continuing to rise and our appropriations about the same, it must necessarily follow that we must get more subscriptions, or we shall fail in our purpose.

Learn from Example.

It is our desire to put before the florists of our country the necessity for more national advertising. A. & P. Pears, the British soap-makers, whose product, Pears' soap, is known the world over, were always persistent advertisers, but decided that as long as they were selling all the soap their factory could produce, they would cut out their advertising, as it was a useless expense. The advertising was cut off for a period of six months. What was the result? Their sales dropped off thirty-five per cent during that period and it cost them $6,500,000 more to get back where they were before they made the unwise decision. When a concern like Pears', of England, who are internationally known, paid that amount of money to learn a little lesson, may we not learn from them also?

Letting George Do It.

We have brought the slogan, "Say It with Flowers," to wide attention in a short period of time, but in two short years we already have men in the trade saying we need no advertising to sell our flowers. What may we expect if we continue? The answer is obvious, yet we have many among us who have not seen the wisdom of contributing to our fund for their own benefit. It reminds me of a story read in a recent number of the Outlook: "Father takes little Peter to the circus. They sit in the gallery and when the lions come in Father says, 'Aren't you afraid of them, Peter?' 'No!' replies Peter, looking over the balcony, 'before they had eaten all the people in front, they wouldn't be hungry any more.'" It seems that there are many who have been looking on, permitting others to subscribe. Is the reason they have not sent in their subscription because they think the others will do it for them? In order to make our campaign healthy and profitable for all, we must have more material things to keep moving. Your subscription at this time will help greatly and will put you in class A, where all belong who have sent in their portion.

There's an old Scotch proverb which says, "Ye canna expect to be baith grand and comfortable," but the publicity committee of the S. A. F. feels that when you send your subscription to the campaign fund, you are both grand and comfortable, from results proven both ways.

The Market.

Conditions any day last week at the local wholesale markets were really splendid, with an abundance of seasonable stock at prices within the reach of all. Bright weather, with cold nights, brought good quality into the stock, especially roses.

There was an abundance of cut roses in all varieties; for the first time this season, the supply was more than the trade could use during the morning sales. Extra fancy stock in Premier, Russell and Ophelia still brought a good price, but in other grades the price was lower than at any previous time this year and the retailers could obtain stock in the afternoon, something that would have been impossible ten days before.

Carnations, too, were more plentiful than at any other time this year and the supply was more than the demand. All the stock that came to this market showed good quality; among the best sellers were the Enchantress varieties, Beacon and Nebraska.

The great abundance of sweet peas last week forced the price down on all

Bulbous stock is selling at low prices, especially freesias, which are down as low as $1 per hundred. The call for tulips, Paper Whites and jonquils is large. Fine valley sells at $10 per hundred. There are no cut Easter lilies in the market at present, but a few callas come in daily. Snapdragons, calendulas and daisies are in good supply.

All greens continue in large demand, with no surplus after the morning sales except in flat ferns and galax.

Publicity Committee Meeting.

The florists' publicity committee held a special meeting Tuesday night, February 24, at headquarters, 1316 Pine street. The attendance was not in keeping with the importance of the meeting, as only seven of the fifteen members attended. The secretary's financial statement assured the committee that enough money was on hand to allow the spending of a good sum for Easter advertising and, after a lengthy discussion, it was decided to use a whole page in the daily Globe-Democrat March 28 and a whole page in the St. Louis Star March 31, at an entire cost of $1,100, and to devote $200 to additional advertising before the big advertisements appear. This makes a total of $1,300 to be used for advertising the sale of flowers and plants up to April 1.

It was also decided not to hold a regular meeting again until March 23, unless something of importance should come up. A special meeting is subject to a call from the chairman.

Various Notes.

The committee in charge of the St. Louis Garden Club's spring flower show is meeting weekly and will this week have the preliminary list in the hands of the printer. In addition to the many special prizes that are being offered by the big department stores and society folk, the St. Louis Florists' Club has offered $50 in special prizes, being $10 each for the best collections of cut roses, carnations, gladioli, pot plants and any other cut stock. the program, the premium list is equal to that of the spring show held by the St. Louis Florists' Club in 1917. As the public will be admitted free, a big success is assured.

James R. Steinicke has sold his range, including both greenhouses and land, at Old Orchard, in St. Louis county, to Richard Hassall, who will continue to grow carnations for this market, as Mr. Steinicke has been doing for a number of years.

J. H. Farnsworth and Jules A. Deschkamp, who bought the old Valentine range in Kirkwood from the W. C. Smith Wholesale Floral Co., say that they will grow cut stock and plants for the wholesale market. The establishment consists of five and one-half acres of land and 5,000 square feet of glass. They plan to add more glass next summer.

James Gurney, Jr., who was the assistant to his father, the late James Gurney, in the management of Tower Grove park, has been appointed by the directors of the Missouri Botanical Garden superintendent of Tower Grove park. The appointment was made last week.

C. Young & Sons Co., and his family have returned from an extended western trip. They reached home in time to celebrate the twelfth anniversary of their wedding, which took place on Washington's birthday.

The preparation of the new quarters of Grimm & Gorly, 712 Washington avenue, is progressing more rapidly than they expected and Frank Gorly says that they expect to open the store by the end of this week, but that the three upper floors will not be completed until a week before Easter, when the firm will announce to the public the opening.

A. Jablonsky, carnation grower, at Olivette, has several thousands of the finest pot Easter lilies and all will be ready for Easter. A big crop of cut carnations is coming on.

Fred Strohmeyer, of the Ayres Floral Co., is back at his post after a two weeks' illness.

Ia., had a good display in the Hotel Statler and found trade quite satisfactory.

The Acme Flower Shop, which had its opening Monday, March 1, in the Arcade building, is finely fitted up with fixtures all in white. Elizabeth Kester Turk and Jeanette Stewart, the proprietors, announced the opening on a lavender card attractively embossed in purple and green.

Heil & Halzlip, who recently opened a new store at 556 Skinker road, report a splendid run of trade since their opening. Mr. Heil was for many years in the employ of F. H. Weber.

The St. Louis Florists' Club will hold its monthly meeting Thursday afternoon, March 11, at 2 o'clock. The meeting will be of great importance to all members and a large attendance is expected. The officers of the club have planned to meet Thursday, March 4, at the home of Secretary Beneke, to arrange for a program and a meeting place. Notices will be sent to all members.

At the meeting of the "Say It with Flowers" Bowling League Wednesday evening, February 25, the Carnations won all three games from the Daisies and the Roses lost one of the three to the Sweet Peas. The bowlers looked forward with great interest to the meeting March 3, when the Roses and the Carnations were to fight it out for first place; Captain Kuehner and Captain Windler were each confident of taking all three games.

The Market.

While the supply in no way equals the demand, a few bright days have brought a little better supply to the local market; this is especially true of carnations and sweet peas. This increase has had no effect on prevailing prices, as everything is taken as soon as it comes in. Roses continue to be scarce, but any that do come are of exceptionally fine quality.

Bulbous stock is not to be had; indeed, one retailer remarked that he could not understand the motive for the growers' holding it back for Easter, as he felt that it would be impossible for them to get better prices for it then than the prices prevailing at present. It would seem, however, that everyone is holding it, for there has been none to speak of since Christmas. This may bring about a condition at Easter in which there will be a glut of this sort of stock and prices may break. With the present prices and scarcity, it would be wise to bring it in now and get rid of it. With jonquils at $10 and $12 per hundred and all other bulbous stock at proportional figures, there is hardly any room for an increase.

The price of flowers is so high that people are beginning to use artificial been producing a fine crop right along. Mr. Graham had no trouble with stem-rot, as he planted from pots to the benches. As the entire product of this range is used in his two stores, he has had a good supply of bulbous stock right along, enough to supply his own needs being brought in each week. Mr. Graham is of the opinion that the high prices are going too far; his argument is that if a certain thing costs double to produce, the grower is entitled to double its price, but not to triple. As Mr. Graham disposes at retail of all the stock he grows and is obliged to go on the open market for much more, he should be in a position to understand conditions better than the retailer who does not grow any of his stock. Mr. Graham told me what he thought was a good joke on himself. Last summer, in ordering his bulbs, through an error he ordered twenty more cases of Paper Whites than he had figured on growing. At the time they were delivered Mr. Mitchell called on him and remarked what a stock of these bulbs he had. Mr. Graham told him of the error and Mr. Mitchell said he would be glad to buy any surplus, as his firm was entirely sold out. Mr. Graham questioned him about the conditions then existing and, though he might have got a substantial increase over what they had cost him, decided not to dispose of the bulbs. The other day when I was speaking to him he said the only thing he was sorry for was that the error had not been larger.

In a chat with Ed. Stevenson, of Stevenson Bros., I found him in a happy mood. The reason for this was that his wife, who has been seriously ill, having undergone a successful operation at the Women's hospital, was improving rapidly. I am sure that everyone connected with the trade will rejoice with Mr. Stevenson over this good fortune. When we started to talk roses he said they had been having a good cut right along, but in all of his experience he had never seen a winter that was more trying for a rose grower. But with some bright weather their stock was in condition to give a good account of itself.

I have not seen John J. Perry, of the S. S. Pennock Co., since he has been sick; so on Washington's birthday I called his home on the phone to inquire for him and was delighted to hear his voice at his end of the wire. At that time he was able to be about the house and the doctor had promised to release him in a few days if the weather permitted. Mrs. Perry, who had nursed her husband and their little girl through most of their illness, was herself taken down with double pneumonia and for a time her life was despaired of, but she has made a good recovery and is now on the way to normal health.

There has been more sickness among the trade this winter than in any previous winter within my recollection, but I am happy to say that in only one case has it proved fatal; that was the death of Mary Jane Glass, the wife of James Glass, which was noted at the time in these columns.

Robert Johnson, who never lets an opportunity pass, had a fine picture window on Washington's birthday. It was one that attracted much attention. Mr. Johnson has the right idea in letting the public see his handiwork in his window decorations. Tate.

BRAMPTON, ONT.

Business during February far exceeded that month last year and, in spite of the fact that the season of Lent usually is dull, funerals and festivities have been numerous enough to keep up a continual demand for stock. Bulbous stock is practically off the market at present, but there are signs that there will be a keen demand for Easter lilies in the course of the next few weeks.

The coal situation, although not quite so bad as it has been, is a continual worry for the growers. As high as $13 per ton is asked in some instances.

One of the surprising features of the flower business lately is the popularity of orchids. Prior to the opening up of the present cut flower season, the Dale Estate shipped the biggest part of their orchids to the United States, but recently the Canadian demand has grown so that it seems that the whole supply will be absorbed by the florists in the larger cities on this side of the line. A most remarkable thing about them is that a few years ago they were hard to get rid of at 25 cents each and today

TORONTO, ONT.

The Market.

There is still a big demand for flowers, although the flu epidemic has begun to abate. Stock is a little more plentiful and it is easier to fill orders. Christmas prices still exist, the heavy demand keeping up the price. It is evident that stiff prices are a probability for Easter stock. The growers promise a good supply of lilies of excellent quality but at a higher price, about 25 cents per bloom. In addition, there will be a good supply of roses of all kinds, as well as carnations and a good cut of violets.

Toronto florists are holding back orders for supplies usually purchased in the United States, hoping that the exchange situation will soon be readjusted. In some lines, Canadian money is being accepted at par and it is hoped that the florists' supply dealers will also accept Canadian money. Some Toronto florists are talking of not placing any orders for supplies whatever in the United States, preferring to do without rather than pay seventeen per cent exchange in addition to a heavy duty.

Plan for Botanical Gardens.

The various florists' and horticultural associations and the staff of Toronto University are uniting to secure government help in the establishment of botanical gardens similar to the Kew Gardens, London. Meetings have been called at which representatives of the various associations, Sir Robert Falcolner, president of the University of Toronto, and others will discuss the proposition and place before the government the advantages of having such gardens. Botanical gardens are now established at New York, Edinburgh, Scotland, and London. Should such an institution be established here, with beautiful gardens and greenhouses, Canada will be able to educate her own gardeners and commercial florists instead of having to bring them from England, Scotland and the United States. Such an institution as a branch of the university would make possible a place to study the structure of flowers, plant breeding, diseases, growth, etc.

LOWELL, MASS.

The Market.

Wintry weather prevails in this district, one storm following another in rapid succession. The snow is at least fifteen inches deep, besides considerable drifts. Almost all traffic is stopped. Business has been crippled, except for funeral orders, which have been numerous.

Flowers are still scarce and prices are high, chiefly because there is little bulbous stock in the market. Roses are retailing at $3 per dozen and up; carnations, $2 and $3; yellow marguerites, 75 cents to $1.50 per dozen, and Golden Spurs, $2 and up per dozen.

There are some potted plants to be had, such as cyclamens, Primula obconica, the baby primrose and begonias, but, owing to weather conditions and the difficulty of delivery, the demand for potted plants is small.

Various Notes.

A representative from the Quality Brands Co., Cleveland, O., was in this city calling on the trade last week and states that orders are being booked freely for greenhouse paint and glazing cement.

James L. Kenney, on Central street, is handling a large quantity of roses. Last week this firm had A. Ward in especially good quality and color.

Morse & Beals are handling excellent sweet peas with extra long stems.

J. J. McManmon's store has had a rush of funeral work for several weeks.

E. E. R.

KANSAS CITY, MO.

The Market.

With stock more plentiful than it has been for many weeks and prices lower as a consequence, business has lessened to a considerable degree, but not to the point of being slow. Some of the dealers have been exceptionally busy with funeral work, but the majority are doing a normal business.

Spring stock is appearing on the market and the stores present an array of tulips, jonquils and hyacinths.

Various Notes.

The building in which A. Newell is located has been leased and Mr. Newell has to look for a new location. He has been there less than a year and has spent nearly $7,000 in decorating and remodeling.

The Ever-Ready Flower Pot Cover

The Ever-Ready Stands Out Strongly in Meeting every Pot Cover Requirement

Of What and How Made. It includes a strong cardboard foundation the outside of which is covered with best quality Waterproof crepe paper with fiber ribbon ties at top and bottom, and all firmly put together with improved metal fastenings.

Low of Cost. It is supplied at low enough prices to allow of gratis disposal, as the improved appearance of the plant justifies advanced pricing that more than offsets its cost.

A Time and Money Saver. Compared with trimming pots specially, with papers, mattings and the like, it freely saves flower store workers' time and avoids the cost of high-priced materials.

ers. In miscellaneous orders they have disposed of nearly 500 orchids.

The Linwood Floral Co. had a good run of business last week, for which they were prepared with a full supply of stock.

Miss J. E. Murray says that she is happy to see flowers cheaper than they have been, because it will encourage regular flower buyers who have kept away while prices have been so high.

J. Austin says that his bedding stock looks better now than it ever has at this time of year. He says that he will have cut about 30,000 carnations by the end of the season. He is also cutting good roses and quantities of sweet peas and freesias. He is still selling cinerarias and begonias and has a few azaleas left. He has added a Ford truck to his delivery service.

Among the recent visitors were: Mrs. E. S. Keys, Plainview, Tex.; Blaine Wilcox, Council Bluffs, Ia.; Carl Hagemeyer, Paola, Kan., and William Hasselman, Independence, Kan.

J. G. Eggleston says the automobile means a great deal to the outside florist in the way of saving deliveries and stock. Five years ago about twenty-five per cent of his sales were to customers who took their purchases with them. Now everything is sold before it leaves the greenhouse and there is no chance for claims of damage or flowers not being what were ordered. J. E. K.

SPOKANE, WASH.

The Market.

The demand for roses is still in excess of the supply, but with the bright weather that we have had lately, there will soon be sufficient stock to meet any demand. Bulbous stock is light in cut flowers, but in potted plants there are plenty to be had. Lily of the valley is once more on this market after an absence of several years.

There was an unusual demand for funeral work during the last month. A large number of pot plants were used for orders in the city and the reliable magnolia wreath decorated with a few flowers played a prominent part in relieving the shortage. The shipping business has been exceptionally heavy lately.

The St. Valentine's day business this year was far ahead of that of last year.

Various Notes.

F. R. McCormick, of Post Falls, Ida., is shipping some fine calla lilies.

Miss B. Hill decided that there was need for another automobile on the road and bought one.

The stores which were handicapped by the sickness of some of their employees all report a full attendance now. H. H.

BEGONIAS ON THE COAST.

No one looking at the mass of delicate bloom shown in the accompanying illustration would imagine that those flowers were in any way allied with such a name as beefsteak geranium. Yet careful raising has produced varieties of begonia that are in the front rank as flowering plants for the winter season. This last Christmas they were second only to cyclamens in popularity.

Among the varieties, Glory of Cincinnati, which is shown here, has largely displaced the once unequaled Gloire de Lorraine and is now in competition with the newer Melior. Cincinnati was introduced to the trade in 1910 by J. A. Peterson, of Cincinnati, O. While it was thus born in the east, the house of it at the range of H. Hayashi & Co., Oakland, Cal., shows that it thrives well by the Pacific.

House of Begonia Glory of Cincinnati at Range of H. Hayashi & Co., Oakland, Cal.

LOS ANGELES, CAL.

The Market.

The rain that did so much good to the country generally made most of the outdoor stock unfit to ship and the market has been bare of the best field carnations, sweet peas and similar flowers. Many of the growers do not cover anything and only greenhouse stock has been salable.

Roses are coming more plentifully and are of fair quality. Indoor carnations have also been good. Daffodils have been water-soaked and unfit to handle, Dutch hyacinths being about the only bulbous stock that is good. A few ranunculuses help out, also anemones, but they do not cut much figure in the market. A scarcity of plumosus has developed rather suddenly and prices are up, leaving the way open for other greens. Maidenhair is also in short supply.

At the end of last week the weather was fine and this week stock should improve in quality and increase in quantity along all lines.

Darling's Shop, on Sixth street. Mr. Darling has just obtained his pilot's certificate to sail an airship, having become proficient in this up-to-date sport. He is enthusiastic about the joys of flying and has made great progress.

Because his manager has left him and because of a bad attack of rheumatism, C. W. Smith is thinking of going out of the cucumber growing business. He will probably sell or rent his range of glass.

T. H. Wright, of Wright's Flower Shop, has again returned from the desert, where he has been attending to his mining interests, which are proving happily successful. Everyone lets his beard grow in the desert and Mr. Wright was in such a hurry to get back to the flower game on his return that he did not have time to shave his upper lip. The effect is good.

Latest reports indicate that Walter Armacost and his family are all making good progress in recovering from their colds.

The L. A. Floral Co. has had to take on additional help to take care of the shipping business. Fred Sperry is back on the job after his turn of sickness.

Mrs. Dan Travis, of Douglas, Ariz., was in this city last week.

H. R. Richards.

The Market.

Business during the last week has been normal. The heavy funeral work has been lessened, due to the abating of the flu epidemic.

Local and California stock is now more plentiful. Carnations are arriving in greater quantities, but the local stock is of poor quality. Roses are beginning to increase in number. Some fine Columbia, Ophelia and Premier are to be seen in the stores. Spring flowers are much more plentiful.

Lily of the valley is making its appearance in most of the larger stores. Acacia is much in evidence and makes a fine display in the interior of the stores.

Potted plants are selling well, including tulips, hyacinths and daffodils, also a few hydrangeas, but the blooms are small and the plants are irregular in shape.

Various Notes.

Hollywood Gardens report fair business last week, but nothing of special note.

shipments of funeral work out of town last week and they reported a big demand for corsages just before the season of Lent. George Rosaia is gaining rapidly after an attack of the flu. He has increased his weight about ten pounds. Mr. Guiser has been sick for a few days, but is back at the store again.

Kenney's Home of Flowers reports a good business. A unique design was made at the store, consisting of a pilot's wheel, fifty inches in diameter, made in violets and sweet peas.

The Woodlawn Flower Shop states that conditions are normal again, but that business this year will be far in excess of that of last year.

S. R. McKee, representing the American Greenhouse Manufacturing Co., was in town for a few days. He was doing business with Mr. Benson, who has been with the Alaska experimental station for some years and now intends to build a few houses in Seattle.

P. T. C.

SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.

The Market.

Prices on cut flowers took a general drop in San Francisco last week. The demand, both local and from other parts of the country, is keeping well up to the mark; but with carnations and roses more plentiful than they have been for a number of weeks, there has been a slight easing up at the source of supply.

Rose growers are beginning to cut the second crop, which is abundant and of fine quality. Russell, Ophelia and Columbia are the leaders and some good white roses were seen last week. Whites have, up to this time, been extremely scarce, but are going well now, with funeral work still keeping up the demand for suitable flowers. Funeral pieces no longer convey the atmosphere of past seasons. Plaques and sheaves of various combinations of spring blossoms, with all the colors massed together in a most attractive manner, are in many cases replacing the pale pink and white roses and purple and white violets of former days. For instance, in one of the larger shops, which has been taking care of a great deal of funeral work lately, a lovely development of spring flowers was used for one order last week. On a delicate background of ferns lay sprays of colored freesias, lavender primroses and pink sweet peas, the pastel shades accented by the restricted use of deep rose fruit blossoms, tulips and ranunculi.

Daffodils are scarce and higher in price. It is expected, however, that the second crop will be on the market shortly. Growers report that the second cut is in good shape, but slow in maturing on account of the dry weather. Gardenias are more plentiful again and the supply of orchids is large enough to keep pace with the present demand.

The first potted Dorothy Perkins roses of the season were seen in a number of the retail shops last week. So far, those displayed were not trained in the fascinating shapes they were last year, but growers say that they are going to have some fine potted bushes for Easter.

Various Notes.

Thomas Wright, of Los Angeles, Cal., was in San Francisco last week, visiting various members of the trade.

Cut camellia displays were seen in a number of the local retail stores last week. Both the red and white blooms enjoy a brief season of popularity for corsage wear and they are fine this year.

A luxurious-looking display was arranged one day last week for one of the Pelicano, Rossi & Co. windows. A large, low bowl was filled with a mass of gardenias, while height was achieved by a background of lilies of the valley and cyclamen. Lilies of the valley are excellent sellers just now, in spite of their price. Retailers state that they can dispose of all they can get.

The shop of H. Corliss, on Sutter street, reports a satisfactory volume of business recently. Both Mr. and Mrs. Corliss were ill for about two weeks with influenza and were forced to leave the shop in the hands of inexperienced helpers during that time. Last week, in addition to the regular line of work, this shop was busy with a number of baskets for the tables in Rainbow Lane at the Fairmont hotel.

A. O. Stein is over the heads of all of his associates these days. In fact, the clouds themselves are none too high for him to aspire to, for he is an ardent aviation enthusiast and any fair Sunday will find him at one of the local fields in line for a "hop" which will carry him out over the bay, along the ocean shore and over his own housetop in the Sunset district. He says that he has his abode located now and, in case of too much mud underfoot, he may take a notion to surprise his family with a landing in the garden.

The E. W. McLellan Co. is cutting a splendid crop of roses from the Burlingame nurseries. H. Avansino reports a big volume of shipping business and is sending out roses in addition to the various kinds of spring flowers and violets. The McLellan nurseries will soon have the second daffodil crop ready.

Enomoto & Co. are also cutting a fine rose crop. Mr. Enomoto states that besides roses, shipping orders continue rhododendrons which are grown in the Domoto nurseries. A good selection of these plants in flower will be offered for Easter, Mr. Domoto says, in addition to lilies and other Easter stock.

The United Flower & Supply Co. has a good supply on hand of bamboo rakes, sticks and other greenhouse and garden accessories. This firm intends to enlarge its stock of general garden and greenhouse supplies and, in addition to the bamboo equipment, has taken over the agency of a greenhouse glazing putty, a product manufactured by the California Plastic Products Co.

J. A. Axell is handling some particularly fine freesias. The blooms are full and on long stems and come in three colors, white, deep yellow and deep lavender. Mr. Axell reports the shipping business holding up in good shape. His tulip stock is good just now, with a large selection of tulips on the bulb and some fine cut Darwins.

L. Picetti, of the retail store of Chas. C. Navlet Co., reports a busy week with seeds and nursery stock. This firm has about cleaned up on fruit tree stock, which has been more or less scarce during the entire planting season.

In spite of the dry weather, planting has been heavy this year. In hopes of late rains, gardeners are setting out more than the usual number of shrubs, rose bushes, etc.

William Ward, of the Valley Seed Co., of Sacramento, Cal., was in San Francisco last week. He reports low water in the Sacramento river and states that farmers in that section will suffer extensively unless the late spring brings more rain.

A. J. Nevraumont, manager of the California Seed Co., is busy superintending the planting of a large acreage to pickling onions for the California Packing Corporation. Mr. Nevraumont reports the retail business at the Market street store heavy, with the demand in advance of the supply of both seeds and nursery stock. M. M.

PORTLAND, ORE.

The Market.

The warm weather which has been prevalent for the last two weeks has been almost a blessing to the growers in helping them to combat a condition that was fast becoming serious, the scarcity of stock to fill any kind of orders. But, thanks to the sun and the weather, the supply has increased so much that there is no worry at all.

Bulbous stock is arriving on the market in large quantities and potted flowers and plants are meeting with ready sales.

Various Notes.

Chappell's Flower Shop is doing a good business this year; the biggest year in its history, is the prediction.

Seed Trade News

AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION.
President, E. C. Dungan, Philadelphia, Pa.; secretary-treasurer, C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O.

FROM the heavy mail orders now coming in, seedsmen look forward to a big spring business.

THE shortage of peas has advanced the retail price, according to catalogue quotations, about eighteen per cent.

RISES have been general in the printing trades since the last catalogues went out. The next editions will cost considerably more to manufacture.

A COLORED portrait sticker of Charles J. Bolgiano is used on the correspondence of J. Bolgiano & Son, Baltimore, Md., to indicate personal service from that gentleman. Patent on the idea is pending.

THERE has been a marked decrease in the imports of alfalfa seed during the last two weeks. This country and France have been large buyers of Italian alfalfa during the last seven months and the stocks of the better qualities in that country, now in strong hands, are being depleted rapidly.

IN response to appeals from the Department of Agriculture, the railroad administration excepted seeds from the embargo that was effective in the eastern and Allegheny regions until February 18. Seeds are to be given the same preference as grain and may now be moved not only toward the south and west, but also east into the eastern and Allegheny regions.

CALIFORNIA is experiencing a drought said to be without precedent at this season. Since early December no rains of consequence have been received, except some scattered showers, which favored the southern part of the state more than the central. Some growers are gloomy at the outlook. The rainfall so far is about one-third of normal. Water for irrigation purposes is short in all sections to the point of being alarming. The lack of snow on the mountains is noticeable, and its gradual melting in normal times assures growers water for irrigation. Some letters say the snow line is at an elevation of 5,000 to 7,000 feet. The water level in wells has sunk so that it costs more to pump than usual.

SEEDSMEN LAUNCH CAMPAIGN.

National Garden Bureau Formed.

A publicity campaign similar to the one being conducted by the S. A. F. has been taken up by the seedsmen through the American Seed Trade Association. At the meeting of the executive committee of that society, in Detroit, November 20, 1919, a committee was appointed to analyze the opinions of the members and to submit a definite plan of action. It was found that practically all of the seed concerns were in favor of a nationally conducted educational publicity campaign.

An organization was formed to conduct this country-wide educational campaign and will be known as the National Garden Bureau. Its work will be solely to endeavor to revive the public's interest in gardening. Its mission promises a double benefit, in that the home gardens it advocates will mean a lessening of the cost of living to the public and, at the same time, result in what is hoped to be a substantial increase in the demand for garden seeds.

The committee, composed of Leonard Vaughan, chairman, of Chicago; A. M. Eldridge, of Shenandoah, Ia., and a third member yet to be selected by these two men, have made all the preparations for the launching of the campaign and have prepared a prospectus, giving the purpose and the methods of the bureau. A publicity manager who knows agricultural conditions, who has a fair knowledge of the seed business and gardening methods and who is an expert in selecting advertising media, will be placed in charge.

Headquarters will be located in Chicago and there will be an office in Washington, D. C.

The Purpose of the Bureau.

The prospectus, in defining the purpose, states that the main object of the bureau is to preserve and increase the general interest in gardening which was aroused by the war garden campaigns. Various propaganda agencies which stimulated this interest have gone out of existence with the coming of peace. The patriotic incentive, which induced newspapers and magazines to publish gardening articles during the war, has disappeared.

There remains, however, the interest in gardening which millions acquired for the first time through the war garden campaigns. The incentive of war time patriotism cannot be relied upon to induce publishers to devote space to gardening articles, to persuade civic, commercial and social organizations to conduct gardening campaigns or to influence householders to make gardens. But an appeal will be made to publishers by pointing out the growing interest in gardening and the desirability of continuing to devote space to it. Civic, commercial and social organizations will be appealed to by emphasizing the vital importance of popular interest in gardening for promoting thrift and contentment among householders and contributing to the stabilization of labor supply by encouraging the establishment of permanent homes. An appeal will be made to the educators by assuring them support through a continuation of public interest in the subject which will warrant them in making school gardens a permanent feature of their work, and by preparing and distributing carefully prepared courses of study which will enable teachers to handle more effectively a subject with which most are unfamiliar.

The media which will be used in educating the public in this gardening campaign will be the newspapers, maga-

PETUNIAS

DIENER'S RUFFLED MONSTERS, SINGLE

The most perfect and most beautiful Petunias in existence and have taken the highest prizes wherever shown. Seed in separate Colors: Red, Pink, Variegated, White, Flesh Pink Frilled, Blue and Mixed.

THE DIENER TOMATO

(Blight-proof.)

The largest and most desirable tomato ever created. Unexcelled for table use, for canning, for tomato sauce, and for dehydration. Thirty to 40 tons of ripe fruit of remarkably uniform size produced to the acre. The Diener Tomato plant is also blight resisting. Thousands of acres of tomatoes have been ruined in the last few years by blight, but this tomato has been grown side by side with such varieties without being affected by blight. The fruit has reached a size of three pounds; but the average is a one-pound fruit, unusually smooth. The flesh is more solid than of any other tomato known, making this variety so valuable for dehydrating purposes. This tomato is of a deep red color and very attractive to the eye. The Diener Tomato is specially useful in many localities for the fact that, after being properly started, it is practically drought resisting. The Diener Tomato is an excellent shipping variety, ripe fruit having been successfully shipped from here to New York. Price of Diener Tomato Seed, $.50 per package; $1.50 per Acre Package.

The Greatest Berry Novelty of Today

The Cory Thornless Mammoth Blackberry

The largest Blackberry in existence. As free from thorns as a grapevine. There is not any Blackberry that brings such an amount of fruit as this. It is of the highest quality, almost seedless, never being known to fail to bear. Seed, per pkg., $.50.

zines, agricultural press, schools, municipal garden committees, lecturers, libraries, clubs, exhibitions, industrial organizations and moving pictures of the educational and current news type.

The campaign will be conducted at least ten months in the year and will be comprehensive. Gardeners will not only be urged to plant, but will be told how to take care of the garden products so that the success of one year will prompt them to plant a garden the following season and thereby acquire the gardening habit.

Due to the lateness of the season, it is undesirable to purchase any advertising in any form whatever at the present time, but there is the large amount of work to do in the preparation of publicity matter for free acceptance by newspapers and those publications whose readers are prospective gardeners.

IMPORTS OF GRASS SEEDS.

STOCKS OF GRASS SEEDS.

Compiling a report from replies received from shippers of millet, sorgo and Sudan grass seed, the Bureau of Markets of the Department of Agriculture states that the stocks of most kinds in shippers' hands January 20, 1920, were considerably larger than on the same date last year, the greatest contrast in this respect being in the case of sumac or red-top sorgo. Total shipments of the 1919 crop are expected to equal or exceed those made of the 1918 crop, except for common and broomcorn millet, which are, respectively, about fifteen and fifty per cent less than the 1918 crop shipments.

Numerous reports were received of delay in shipments because of railroad embargoes, a shortage of cars and a reluctance on the part of farmers to thrash their seed because of the inactive and low-priced market. However, a comparison of the 1919 crop with the 1918 crop shows that the percentage of the total shipments of the 1919 crop made up to January 20, 1920, was equal to the percentage of the 1918 crop shipments which had been made up to January 20, 1919, for golden, Siberian and broom-corn millet and Sudan grass, slightly less for common millet, and much larger for amber, orange and sumac sorgo.

Reports indicated that greater percentages of new-crop golden, common and broom-corn millet, and smaller percentages of Siberian millet, amber sorgo, orange sorgo and Sudan grass seed were in growers' hands January 20, 1920, than on the same day last year.

The average price paid to growers for 1919 crop seed of each of the millets and sorgos is uniformly less than that paid for the 1918 crop. The decreases in prices per hundred pounds paid for 1919 crop seed of each are estimated to be as follows: Golden millet, 75 cents; Siberian millet, 55 cents; broom-corn millet, 45 cents; amber sorgo, 25 cents; orange sorgo, 45 cents; sumac sorgo, $1, and Sudan grass, 35 cents.

CATALOGUES RECEIVED.

Jackson & Perkins Co., Newark, N. Y.—Bulletin No. 4, to the trade only, offering roses, perennials and general nursery stock, including small evergreens for nursery planting.

B. Hammond Tracy, Inc., Wenham, Mass.—Two tasteful booklets, in narrow form for pocket or pigeonhole. They are entitled, respectively, "Cedar Acres Gladioli" and "Cedar Acres Dahlias," and both give brief cultural directions. The gladiolus list contains thirty-two pages and is illustrated, partly with colored plates. The dahlia list contains eight pages.

Harry L. Squires, Good Ground, N. Y.—Illustrated catalogue of strawberry plants and other berry-bearing stock, vegetable plants and roots, roses and ornamental shrubs; sixteen pages and cover. The first ten or more pages are purely descriptive; the prices are quoted only in a condensed list at the end. Strawberry plants are a specialty.

Ross Bros. Co., Worcester, Mass.—"Everything for the Farm and Garden," an illustrated catalogue of seeds, bulbs, plants and miscellaneous requisites; 120 pages, in a colored cover of the offset type. The list of farm and garden implements and other supplies is especially comprehensive, occupying forty or more pages.

John Merritt, Farmingdale, N. Y.—Two dahlia lists. One of them is retail, with prices "per division"; the other is for the trade, with prices "per 100 divisions."

Job P. Wyatt & Sons Co., Raleigh, N. C.—Illustrated catalogue of seeds, bulbs, tools and sundries; sixty-eight pages and colored cover. The company draws attention to the great extent of its implement department, which is described as comprising not only the less cumbersome articles, but "farm machinery, tractors, engines, wagons, etc.—a large and complete stock."

J. J. Wilson Seed Co., Inc., Newark, N. J.—"Wilson's Garden Book for 1920," listing seeds, bulbs, roots, plants and sundries; illustrated; forty-eight pages, in a neatly designed cover which bears colored pictures of several of the Wilson varieties of vegetables.

D. V. Howell, Peconic, N. Y.—A catalogue of the Howell specialty, dahlias; fourteen pages, in a neat cream-colored cover. Fifteen varieties of gladioli also are listed.

B. F. Barr & Co., Lancaster, Pa.—An exceptionally tasteful and attractive catalogue of nursery stock; sixty-pages, well printed and finely illustrated; several of the illustrations are colored. The cover is artistically designed in black and green on a gray-marbled background. Besides the full lines of hard-wooded stock, both ornamental and fruit-bearing, the book contains lists of greenhouse plants and hardy perennials; also grass seeds and a condensed list of flower seeds.

William Leighton, Glasgow, Scotland.—"Leighton's Seed List," an illustrated 48-page book, excellently printed on enameled paper and bound in a neat, durable cover. The vegetable and flower seeds, listed in the first thirty-five pages, are followed by bulbs, plants, garden tools and requisites. On the back cover, effective use is made of the trade slogan, "Say It with Flowers," and attention is drawn to the fact that Mr. Leighton is a "local member of the Florists' Telegraph Delivery Association, of America and Canada."

George L. Stillman, Westerly, R. I.—"Dahlias of Distinction for 1920," an illustrated, 64-page catalogue, "describing my own creations," says Mr. Stillman, "and standard varieties of all the different types, classes and colors of this flower." In the introductory pages are "Pointers on Growing Dahlias," and information, also, on the proper classification of the varieties. At the end are offers of dahlia seed and a special variety of white seed corn.

John Lewis Childs, Inc., Floral Park, N. Y.—"Childs' Seeds that Satisfy, Bulbs that Bloom, Plants that Please"; such is the inscription on the front cover, which also bears a strikingly colored picture with the caption, "American Red Cross, the Queen of All Cannas." Color work is used freely; aside from the four cover pages, the book contains about sixteen full-page colored plates. Though for two decades the gladiolus has been the Childs specialty, yet gladioli occupy not more than ten of the 176 pages and are scarcely more conspicuous in the catalogue than are many of the other items of stock carried by the seedsman, plantsman and nurseryman.

DETROIT, MICH.

The Market.

The supply of stock is going ahead of business and many stores are having special sales these days. The flower-buying public is coming back again, slowly but surely, and it seems good to the retailer to have bargains to offer. Funeral work has dropped off a little and what stock is moved has to be pushed by window displays and special sales.

Roses are in oversupply, due more to the falling off in their sale than to the increased cut. Premier and Russell lead in quality, but Ophelia, in large supply, is outselling all others. Columbia arrives too much in bloom and, consequently, is inclined to stock up the market. Ward, Bon Silene and Sweetheart are in large supply.

Carnations are being cut in large quantities; the quality is good, but the reduced prices fail to clear the market, except in the case of Mrs. C. W. Ward and Philadelphia. Sweet peas and violets are also in large supply, but they can be readily moved by those stores that have special sales.

Calla lilies are arriving in increasing quantities; there are always several tubs standing around waiting for the buyer. Calendulas, snapdragons, wallflowers, bouvardias and buddleias are plentiful. Jonquils, tulips and narcissi are short in supply.

Pot plants are plentiful and are easily disposed of.

Various Notes.

George Doemling, of the Doemling-Schimmel Co., Mount Clemens, reports that they will be cutting more heavily of roses shortly. This spring they will have 20,000 ferns in 6-inch, 7-inch and 8-inch pots. H. T.

NEW FLOWER

Celosia Chrysanthefolia or "CELOSIAMUM"

A cross developed to its present perfection after five years of continued experiments. The color is a most beautiful cardinal red. In size it resembles Chrysanthemum. Can be cut and shipped from one end of the continent to the other and come up smiling. Wonderful for baskets, for vases and funeral sprays. One worn individually makes a handsome corsage. Can be dried, if so desired, and will readily sell at Christmas time and throughout the winter. The larger ones should retail at $12.00 per dozen, as we received $6.00 per dozen for them wholesale, and could not supply the demand of Chicago alone.

They are very easily grown—seed sown outdoors about May 1st will bloom from July until frost.

We offer a limited amount of seed at $2.00 per trade packet.

STRAWFLOWER SEED

The big money-maker for florists. We are the big shippers of the brilliant, high-colored Strawflowers which receive so much comment and praise in the large cities of the East and West. We are offering this seed for the first time.

Our "Sunny" Brand Special Florists' Mixture,
Oz., 75c; ¼-lb., $2.00; Lb., $7.00

Sow seed in the open ground from April 1st to May 15th, or plant now in the greenhouse and transplant to the open.

ACROCLINIUM ROSEUM

Another most beautiful everlasting, which dries easily and is most useful for baskets, corsages and funeral work.

Oz., 60c; ¼-lb., $2.00

THE SECRET IS OUT

For years a certain grower near New York had the entire monopoly of the New York market on a dainty blue flower which he gave the name of

"Blue Lace Flower"

In form it resembles the "QUEEN ANN'S LACE," or commonly known "Wild Carrot." Of course it is much more refined and of a most delightful pale blue color. It is found in all the better Fifth Avenue shops and is sold at fabulously high prices.

No one—and I asked every good professional man I know of—could give me the botanical name of the flower, until I happened to see it growing, when I recognized it as one of the oldest annuals I know of.

I do not believe that anyone should have a monopoly on what I call "Nature's noblest gift to mankind" and so I secured a big quantity of the seed absolutely fresh and guaranteed to be the genuine article, and offer it herewith to the trade.

Sown in February, flowers can be cut by May and a single crop lasts for two months, as only side shoots are cut. Will succeed best in 50-55 degrees temperature at night.

Per trade pkt. $1.00, ⅛ oz. $1.50, ¼ oz. $5.50, oz. $10.00.

NEWS OF THE NURSERY TRADE

THE parking commission of New Orleans, La., recently decided to establish a 60-acre nursery on Gentilly road.

THE death of James B. Hutchinson, who was engaged in the nursery business for nearly fifty years, is recorded in this week's obituary column.

M. H. HAVICE, an employee in the shrubbery department of the Templin, Crockett, Bradley Co., Cleveland, O., intends to start a nursery of his own at West Park, O.

EARLY buying promotes sane and steady business conditions. Frantic efforts of late buyers to fill orders force up prices by creating a disproportionate impression of the demand.

THE Howard-Hickory Co., was recently organized at Hickory, N. C., to do a general nursery and landscape business, with O. J. Howard, of Greenboro, N. C., as manager. This firm is capitalized at $125,000, of which Mr. Howard subscribed $50,000.

THE official roster of the Mount Arbor Nurseries, Shenandoah, Ia., is as follows: President, E. S. Welch; vice-president and treasurer, E. E. May; secretary, R. M. Gwynn; superintendent, F. W. Welch. The business was established in 1875 and incorporated in 1916.

"NURSERYMEN should become identified by attendance at meetings of their state horticultural societies," President Earl D. Needham told the members of the Western Association of Nurserymen. "Really it is a pleasant surprise to some members of these societies to find that nurserymen wear no horns and look and act like other honest merchantmen."

IMPORTS AND THE FUTURE.

Large Peace-time Demand.

Do not blame the French growers for the present high prices of French fruit and rose stocks; they are barely getting their bait back. The high prices are due, first, to scarcity and, second, to the increased cost of production, both resulting from the war, for it should be remembered that the stocks dug this winter were started while France was still at war, with every able-bodied man planning and working and fighting more for the immediate export of the invading Hun than for the later export of such peaceable items as fruit stocks. Seeds were scarce and high-priced, limitations were still in effect on the production and transportation of all non-essential items and who could foresee today's demands?

When the armistice was signed, in November, 1918, it changed the situation completely; men were rapidly returned to peaceful vocations and international markets for fruit opened, which stimulated the planting of fruit trees in all countries. Great Britain, Russia, Italy, Scandinavia, Australia, all wanted their share of the small crop and were willing to pay almost any reasonable price for their pro-rata share, but it was then too late in the year to procure more seeds or to plant them for the 1919 crop even if they were procurable.

Quarantine Uncertainty.

In competing with other countries as buyers of fruit stocks, America is at a distinct disadvantage by reason of Quarantine No. 37, which places importations of nursery stock absolutely under the control of five bureau chiefs in the United States Department of Agriculture. If these officials were in touch with business life or the commercial needs of the nation, the French growers would feel reasonably safe in producing for American markets, but since this board stopped shipments of all varieties of ornamental stocks, many of which were grown exclusively for American markets and are unsalable in France or elsewhere in Europe, and paid little or no heed to the arguments and protests from the American buyers or the French sellers, the French grower does not know when the ax may fall on the exportation to America of fruit and rose stocks; so he is not overeager for American trade.

French Growers Reasonable.

Be it said to the everlasting credit of the French growers that they did not meet our ill-considered and unwise quarantine by adding the price of the ornamental stocks that must be destroyed to the price of the fruit stocks we must have, as they could easily have done with adequate justification. On the contrary, the prices to American importers are no higher than to importers in other countries, though these buyers do not expect credit from French firms this season. This is proved by the prices of Holland-grown fruit stocks, which are now selling at prices about sixty per cent higher than the French-grown, though their value is assessed at about twenty-five per cent less in normal seasons.

The demand on France for fruit tree stocks was enormous this season, as the growing of fruit trees was almost suspended in all civilized countries during the four war years; now every country wants fruit stocks and France requires stocks to replant its own devastated provinces. creased its demands 100 per cent over any of the previous four seasons, though we shall probably not receive over fifteen per cent of our requirements.

As to the Future.

Since men are now available and since a good crop of seeds and a fair supply of labor were available this fall, with an average growing season the crop for 1920 should be almost double that of 1919. Though I hate to make predictions, I think we should be safe in figuring that prices in 1920 will be less than half what they are this season. As production increases and conditions become gradually normal, prices will continue to come down, though I question if they will ever again be as low as in pre-war years. Ten years ago I sold Myrobalan plum 5-9 mm. at $1.10 per thousand; today I cannot buy them for less than $60 net, cash in advance. I do not think we shall ever see those extremes again, for the same reason that we shall never see such a war again.

INDIANAPOLIS, IND.

The Market.

Stock is more plentiful and wholesale prices have dropped somewhat, but the retail prices are still high. The most plentiful is bulbous stock and it is much in evidence. Freesias are abundant and can be purchased in large quantities at a reasonable figure. Other bulbous stock includes daffodils, jonquils, tulips and hyacinths. These range in price from $8 to $10 per hundred.

Roses are still scarce. Carnations are a little more plentiful, but are not abundant. Prices, however, have dropped to $8 to $12.50 per hundred. Sweet peas are still scarce. Calla lilies are available in small quantities, but practically no Easter lilies have arrived yet.

Plants are still good property. Attractive pots of bulbous stock are on display at a number of the stores. Other plants are cinerarias, begonias, cyclamen and primroses.

The Lenten season has caused a lull in social activities, but flowers for the sick have kept the demand at normal.

Various Notes.

David Vesey, of Fort Wayne, Ind., was a visitor in the city last week. He intends altering his range next spring and is going to devote the entire place to cut flowers.

O. E. Steinkamp has been visiting his brother in St. Louis, Mo.

The Market.

The first accumulation of flowers in three months is the feature of this market now. It is thought by those in a position to judge the incoming crops that this oversupply is temporary and that the market will tighten again, probably not in the extreme way which has been experienced in the last few months, but enough to prevent the destruction of valuable stock. The present accumulation is due, not to overproduction, as the records of previous years show production to be nearly normal, but almost entirely to a decreased demand, coming at a time when weather conditions were such as to bring out an abundance of stock that needed only a few good growing days to mature it.

Roses which brought from 10 to 50 cents each sell now at 6 to 35 cents each, a quantity purchase bringing a lower figure. Carnations bringing ordinarily $14 per hundred now go at no higher than $6 per hundred for extra fancies. Sweet peas which sold two weeks ago for $5 per hundred can now be had for $15 per thousand. Lilies formerly priced at $4 per dozen now go at $1.75 and $2 per dozen. Daffodils, tulips and and other spring flowers are about one-half their former value in the market.

The quality of the stock is excellent; in most lines, it is far ahead of high-priced stock of a few weeks previous.

The demand for potted hyacinths, tulips, daffodils, etc., is good and the supply adequate.

Various Notes.

The prospect for lilies, roses and hydrangeas for Easter is good; there will also be some good bulbous stock.

J. E. Schaeffer and E. G. Steitz, of St. Louis, Mo., were in the city last week looking over the Easter stock.

Miss Rose Semler, of the Edlefsen-Leidiger Co., is making a business trip to New York city and the east.

BIEMUELLERI. Light red, shading darker red at edge of the foliage; medium height.
BRILLIANTISSIMA. Light red; very brilliant; dwarf, compact grower.
PANACHE DE BAILEY. A new and desirable variety of compact growth; foliage green and yellow, crimson veinings. Predominating color, yellow. A worthy companion to Brilliantissima.
FORMOSA. Yellow on light green background; vigorous growth.

AGERATUM, Floss Flower.

Rooted Cuttings, $1.50 per 100, $12.00 per 1000.

FRASERI. A splendid new variety which flowers freely under conditions that merely produce foliage in older varieties. Color, bright blue; semi-dwarf habit similar to Princess Pauline. Undoubtedly the best variety for bedding.
PERFECTION. A more moderate-growing variety, the deepest blue in color.
PRINCESS PAULINE. A combination of blue and white in the same flower.
STELLA GURNEY. Bright blue; vigorous growth.

ALTERNANTHERA.

2¼-inch pots, 75c dozen, $5.00 per 100, $40.00 per 1000.

AUREA NANA. Bright yellow foliage; the most compact and the best variety in its color.
BRILLIANTISSIMA. A valuable new Alternanthera, red and yellow in color, with broad leaf.
PARONYCHIOIDES. A most desirable kind, of dwarf habit; orange red and crimson, shaded green.

COLEUS, Fancy Varieties.

Rooted Cuttings, $1.50 per 100, $14.00 per 1000.

AMERICAN BEAUTY. Red, green and yellow.
ANNA PFISTER. Bright yellow, marked crimson. Neat and compact in growth; very desirable for dwarf edging or carpet-bedding.
BLIZZARD. Deep maroon, edged with green.
HURRICANE. Light reddish center, mottled with maroon. Edge of leaf green.
JOHN PFISTER. Bright crimson, edged with gold. Compact in growth. Companion variety to Anna Pfister.
NEPTUNE. Green with mottling of red.
PRINCE EDWARD. Reddish center, shading deep crimson. Edge of leaf green.
SABONI. Red with faint edging of yellow.

COLEUS, Two Good Fancies.

Rooted Cuttings, $2.50 per 100, $20.00 per 1000. 2¼-inch pots, $6.00 per 100, $50.00 per 1000.

BRILLIANCY. A combination of red and gold.
SALVADOR. Deep, velvety crimson with prominent vermilion center, effectively bordered with light green.

BECKWITH'S GEM. Center velvety maroon, bordered with red; the edge is green changing to creamy yellow at the point of the leaf.
DUNEIRA. A magnificent Coleus. A fine, showy bedder standing the sun as well as Verschaffeltii. In color it is a combination of various shades of crimson.
FIREBRAND. Bright maroon.
GOLDEN BEDDER. Golden yellow; the old original, true to name.
LORD ALVERSTONE. Velvety plum with yellow, green and pink markings. A handsome combination. Has a constitution that will resist sunscald and drought.
LORD PALMERSTON. A beautiful variety that immediately commands admiration. Deep maroon center with dark crimson venation.
QUEEN VICTORIA. Cardinal red with distinct golden border.
VERSCHAFFELTII. The standard crimson.

ENGLISH IVY.

Invaluable evergreen variety, used for covering graves where other plants will not thrive because of shade. Excellent for covering walls, etc.
2¼-inch pots, 90c doz., $6.00 per 100, $50.00 per 1000; 3-inch pots, $1.50 doz., $10.00 per 100, $90.00 per 1000; 4-inch pots, $2.00 doz., $15.00 per 100; 4-inch selected, $2.50 to $3.00 doz., $20.00 to $25.00 per 100.

PARLOR IVY, German Ivy.

A trailing vine; not hardy; valuable for vase work and for window boxes.
Rooted Cuttings, $1.50 per 100, $12.00 per 1000.

MARGUERITE, Paris Daisy.

For outdoor bedding, grown as pot plants or for cutting. Marguerites are among the most useful flowering plants.

SALVIA.

Rooted Cuttings, $1.50 per 100, $12.00 per 1000.

AMERICA. New. A dwarf variety that will supersede Zurich and others of that type. Dwarf, compact habit; very free and early in bloom. We consider this the best for bedding.
BONFIRE. A compact variety growing to a height of about two feet. Heavy flower-spikes of brightest scarlet.
SPLENDENS. A tall-growing variety; immense flower-spikes of dazzling scarlet.
ZURICH. An extremely free-flowering, dwarf variety. The plants commence to bloom early and continue until checked by frost. Very bright scarlet.

VINCA VARIEGATA, Trailing Varieties.

Very valuable for window boxes, etc. This is the most popular climbing plant with variegated foliage.
Rooted Cuttings, $1.50 per 100, $12.00 per 1000; 2¼-inch pots, 75c doz., $6.00 per 100, $50.00 per 1000; 3-inch pots, $1.00 doz.; $8.00 per 100; $75.00 per 1000; 4-inch pots, $2.00 doz.; $15.00 per 100; 4-inch selected, $2.50 doz., $20.00 per 100.

BUFFALO, N. Y.

The Market.

The last week in February marked the end of the familiar stock famine. While stock of the good grades is not so overplentiful as to necessitate sacrificing it at ridiculous prices, it is too plentiful to bring the prices of the past and some sorts broke badly. Calendulas of extra quality sold as low as $3 per hundred, sweet peas brought $2.50 for good stock and carnations were $10 for the best. The supply of good carnations is still short, while more than enough of the poor quality is coming in.

Poor Packing.

Many of the shipments which have been arriving lately have come from small growers, who, until last week, have been using all they could grow. Indeed, some of these newcomers have been out of the market so long that they seem to have forgotten what they once knew about packing and some are sending in their supplies in unsuitable, square, wooden boxes, for which they cut the flower stems to fit.

The effect of poor packing on the returns to the grower is illustrated by a typical shipment which arrived during the week. It was a wooden box eighteen inches square, containing 350 carnations; a man bid $5 for the box; the box was opened from the side on which the tag had been put; it was the bottom. The stock was fished out and it looked like a drowned cat; the man backed down with his bid and another took them for $4.

Various Notes.

The most important decoration of the season was the automobile show job given to A. J. Reichert. The show is being held at the Seventy-fourth armory. This is a wonderful building in which to put up a decoration. The interior, with its gallery and columns, is so proportioned that even a simple decoration can be put up to advantage. For the work Mr. Reichert had the services of Otto Schoeps. A canopy of southern smilax hid the ceiling; 200 cases were used for this purpose. For other decorations, 1,000 palms, 200 crotons and large numbers of other plants were used.

Charles Sandiford is back on the job after a severe illness, the result of a cold.

John Kramer, of Jefferson street, was the lucky man to have a nice job for a wedding decoration in the church next to his store February 28.

F. P. Adams is able to get around again after a few days' stay at home with a cold. F. P. A.

LA FAYETTE, IND.

This photograph was taken December 6, 1919, and will give a good idea of what HAMBURG LATE PINK looks like when grown to single stems and planted six inches each way.

HAMBURG LATE PINK CHRYSANTHEMUM

is an improved late pink Maud Dean, having more petals and, if grown for late, will hardly ever show an open center.

The average grower of Chrysanthemums must have varieties which are easy to handle, and from which he can cut as near 100% of perfect blooms as possible. Hamburg Late Pink has been grown for the last four years, and produces a very high proportion of good flowers. It is not an exhibition variety, but for late pink is one of the best for commercial purposes. It can be had in bloom the latter part of November by taking an early bud, but some of the flowers will show open centers. By selecting late buds, after October 1, most of the flowers are cut during December, and would advise to select late buds, as the later buds will hardly ever show an open center, and some flowers can be had even in January.

Keeping qualities are excellent and where a graceful pink flower is wanted, Hamburg Late Pink cannot be surpassed.

Plants ready early in March and all orders will be filled in rotation.

CHRYSANTHEMUM PROGRESS

NEW MUMS

It's time to think of what you will need in new Mums to recruit your collection, so as to cover the whole season in the various colors. These four new pink varieties will enable you to begin cutting pink as early as the other colors, and to cut continuously, which is important. Get a few of each variety early enough to take a cutting or two from each plant and reduce the first cost. We will begin delivery early in March.

$4.00 per doz., $25.00 per 100

HARBINGER—An early pink that should supersede Unaka on account of being a full flower and better color. Grows 5 eet from June planting.

PANDORA—Follows Harbinger in date of blooming. Bright deep pink. Grows 5 feet from June planting.

TOKIO—Follows Pandora. Grows 5 feet in height and produces blooms of exceptional quality for the season. Bright lavender pink.

PROGRESS—Follows Tokio and finishes as Chieftain comes on. Incurved form and large in size. Bright deep pink. Grows 4 feet and very stiff.

PROVIDENCE, R. I.

The Market.

There was a decided change in the market here last week, prices sagging fully a third below the preceding week. For the first time since the beginning of the new year, the dealers have stock to carry over. There was an even better call for flowers than the week before.

Because of the long period of dark weather, most of the growers in this vicinity are looking for an unusually large cut and the prospects appear favorable for an adequate supply. A number of growers are reported as having promising houses of lilies, though several report a discouraging outlook for bulbous stock.

Various Notes.

Timothy O'Connor is enjoying the warm breezes at Palm Beach, Fla., where he expects to remain for several weeks.

Archibald Aikin, of New Bedford, Mass., was a visitor in this city last week.

Miss McKenna, bookkeeper for T. O'Connor, has recovered from her recent illness and is back at her desk.

John Johnston, of Johnston Bros., was a business visitor in New York last week.

John Burke, of Burke & Burns, is in Arizona for several weeks' stay.

Edward Brooke, of T. J. Johnston & Co., was a business visitor in Boston last week, preparing for the Easter trade.

F. Macrae's Sons have several hundred fine lilies that look promising for Easter.

The death of Nichols Corbi, of the staff of V. J. Baraducci, February 28, from pneumonia is recorded in this week's obituary column.

The end of one of the houses of William B. Hazard, Academy avenue, collapsed, causing $200 damage.

A. A. Kupfer & Son, 263 Potter avenue, had a small fern house collapse with a loss of $100.

One of the incidents of the storm was the experience of V. J. Baraducci, who had to ride on an open snow plow ahead of a locomotive for nearly fifteen miles to get from Wallum Lake to Providence.

Now look at this bench of Dr. Hitch (white) Chrysanthemums, photographed Jan. 20th. Finished cutting Feb. 15th. We want you to remember these facts about January Gold and Dr. Hitch Chrysanthemums. They begin to bloom Dec. 20th, just in time for the Christmas trade. They are full to the center, incurved, have small dark green foliage clear up to the very flowers; no long naked neck. They have stiff, wiry stems, 4 feet; require little heat; 40° to 42° suits them. They grow and bloom the darkest cloudy weather; plant 6 in. each way, they will produce 4 blooms to the plant 8 to 9 in. in circumference, or plant 4 in. each way and grown 1 to the plant, they will be 17 to 18 in. in circumference. Price, $5.00 doz.

Greenhouse Heating

HEATING WITH SOFT COAL.

I intend to build a greenhouse this spring, 20x75 feet. One gable end will be glass and the other will be built against a wooden building. The house will have concrete walls three feet high and no benches, but all ground beds. It will be six feet from the floor of the greenhouse to the bottom of the boiler. What size of boiler and what size and number of returns will be necessary to give 60 degrees in zero weather? I shall burn soft coal. Can the boiler get along without a night fireman? S. S. D.—Pa.

As nearly as can be estimated from the data furnished, about 700 square feet of hot water radiation, including the mains, will be required to heat the house described. For this, a grate with a diameter of twenty-four or twenty-five inches can be used, the heater having a rating of 900 to 1,000 square feet, with soft coal as the fuel to be used.

For piping the house, it is advisable to use three 2½-inch overhead flow pipes. These may start at the heater or a 4-inch main may be used. The return connections with the heater may either be three 2½-inch or one 4-inch, without regard to which is used for the flows. Run one flow pipe upon each purlin and the other a foot or so below the ridge. Nine 2-inch returns will be required, of which three should be upon each wall and the others in the walks on the side of the beds. Run the flows downhill with a slope of one inch in fifteen feet and connect the expansion tank with the highest point in the system.

No regular night fireman will be required.

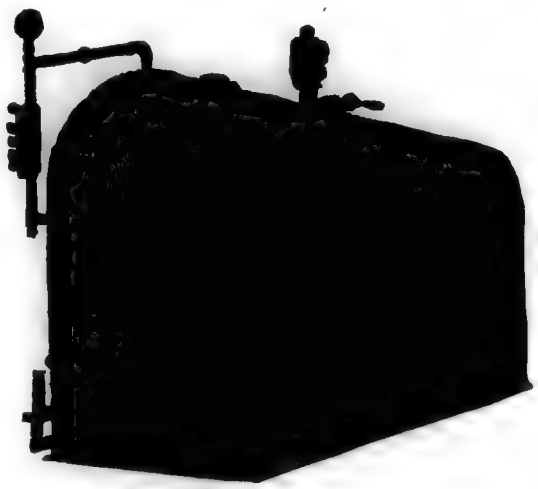
RUNNING FLOW PIPES UPHILL.

We are going to install a complete heating system this summer, including piping, boiler and boiler room. Everything is to be new; we have no material on hand. We are assuming that hot water will be the best for us.

The enclosed sketch shows the sizes and exposures of our houses. All three are in first-class condition. Each house has five 5-foot concrete benches and two narrow benches as shown in house No. 3.

Our plan is to run two 2-inch flows on the north and south sides and returns under the benches that are under the gutters. The main flows and main returns are to be underground at the east end of the benches, with one 2-inch flow under each bench at the west end of the bench and one 2-inch return or more, if necessary, under the same bench. This is in order to have as few pipes as possible exposed to view.

The location for the boiler room is low and the top of the boiler will be two or three feet below the ground line at the east end of the greenhouses, which have a fall of thirty inches from the west to the east end.



W. A.—Tex.

The sketch indicates that two of the houses are 40x120 feet and the other 40x136 feet. They are connected, with three feet of glass and three feet of concrete in the outside walls. There is a fall of thirty inches toward the boiler house, which is at the east end of the south house.

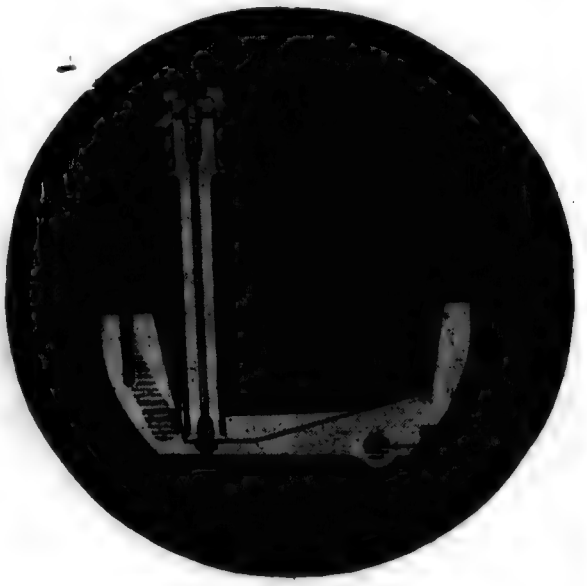
The three houses can be heated by means of forty-eight 2-inch lines of pipe. If two 2-inch flow pipes are placed upon each of the four walls and these are each connected with a 2-inch return pipe, it will furnish sixteen 2-inch pipes. With one 2-inch flow pipe under each of the wide benches connected with a 2-inch return, there will be forty-six 2-inch pipes. The adding of an additional 2-inch return to the coils on the outer walls will make up the required number of pipes.

It is better to run the flow pipes downhill, but the slope of the land, as indicated, will make this impossible. With the flow pipe of the same size as the return and running uphill on the same



Fisher Steam Traps for Even Heat

A Zero Weather Tip to Florists

This is the season of unsettled weather. One day is comparatively warm—the next bitterly cold. Mercury drops without warning.

Can you keep a steady current of husky, live steam dancing along to your outlying benches? Or is there condensate waiting to slow it down—to rob the steam of its energy—leaving your end run of pipes lukewarm?

Fisher Steam Trap TYPE 33

keeps the pipe line free of water at all times. Condensation is quickly sidetracked—steam has the right of way.

Even heat and accurate regulation are easily maintained. The last house is as warm as the first.

Experience has proved the Fisher to be the ideal trap for greenhouse use.

The valve is closed tight or wide open. There can be no wire drawing or leakage, as with a continuous discharge type.

slope as the return, the circulation will tend to be sluggish. On this account, if it is not possible to run the flow pipes downhill, then carry them across the ends of the houses as high as possible before taking off the 2-inch flows.

Another way would be to use fifteen 2½-inch flow pipes and connect each of these to two 2-inch returns. This would give a better circulation than would the use of 2-inch flow pipes.

If the flow pipes run uphill, it would be best to use automatic air headers at the upper end of each coil.

SALT LAKE CITY, UTAH.

The Market.

Funeral work has been almost as heavy as at any time during the flu epidemic in October, 1918. Stock has been scarce, but prices remained the same as during January. St. Valentine's day business was good, but it was impossible to get enough stock to meet the demand. Potted hyacinths, daffodils and tulips helped a great deal and all that could be found were readily sold. The rose supply has been limited. Hoosier Beauty and Columbia get the best prices, selling from $12 to $30 per hundred, while Ophelia, Shawyer, White Shawyer, Wasatch, Red Shawyer and Helen Taft bring $10 to $25 per hundred. Carnations are arriving in larger quantities, but the supply still falls short of the demand. Laddie is selling for $15 and other varieties from $6 to $10 per hundred. Sweet peas have been scarce. Freesias are still arriving in good shape and clean up well at all times.

Various Notes.

The Miller Floral Co., 10 East Broadway, had one of the best St. Valentine's day windows ever seen in Salt Lake City and Paul Richmond has been highly complimented on his arrangement.

The Market.

Stock is getting more plentiful daily and prices show a considerable drop. Counter trade has diminished a little, but there is plenty of other work, especially for funerals.

Roses are cleaning up well, especially Columbia, Ophelia and Premier, for which there is a heavy demand. Colored carnations are picked up readily. The cut of bulbous stock is larger than the demand and considerable quantities are left after the day's business. The demand for violets has been light. Peas are arriving in quantity, with a fair demand. Calla lilies and snapdragons are in demand. Calendulas, wallflowers, daisies and other novelties are in demand.

the Cleveland-McCallum Co. The new firm purchased the business of the W. Q. Potter Co. and took possession March 1 of the store at 421 High avenue, where it will conduct a wholesale cut flower and florists' supply store, in charge of Mr. McLaughlin.

LOUISVILLE, KY.

The Market.

Steadily increasing supply, causing a further drop in prices, allows the retailer to breathe a little easier. Last week was the first one in a long time in which we had a couple of dull days. These, however, were not unwelcome, as they made it possible to straighten out the stocks and to go over the store.

Easter lilies are showing in good quality on the local market, prices ranging from $25 to $35 per hundred. Jonquils, daffodils, sweet peas, freesias, tulips and hyacinths are favorites in the order named. Orchids are good, also plentiful, but the demand has slackened.

Various Notes.

The night of February 28 brought another snow storm, but the weather cleared the next day and the sun is helping to bring the crop of Easter lilies to the fore.

There is a movement among the Louisville retailers to get together for a publicity campaign. Steps are being considered for putting through something new and at the next meeting of the society further plans will be developed.

A decided help in making up funeral work is the supply of white buddleia, of which both William Walker and H. Kleinstarink have good lots. B.

The Market.

The beginning of Lent, together with a big drop in the death toll and epidemic of influenza and pneumonia, made a noticeable decrease in the demand last week and, according to expectations, the end is not yet. Prices are likewise falling, American Beauties bringing only $7.50 per dozen and roses in variety anywhere from $6 to $20 per hundred. Carnations, which continue scarce, are $8 and $10 per hundred, while sweet peas of superb quality range from $1 to $3 per bunch of 100. Violets are again a drag on the market and demand only 75 cents and $1 per hundred. Greens have again become plentiful. Some Spanish iris of excellent quality is arriving and demanding $12 and $15 per hundred.

Various Notes.

The McCallum Co. has just opened a branch wholesale cut flower store in Cleveland, O., occupying the former quarters of William Q. Potter, at 421 High avenue. James McLaughlin, who was formerly with the J. M. Gasser Co., of Cleveland, is in charge of the new enterprise. Associated with Mr. McLaughlin in the new venture is V. H. Floyd, who is in charge of the supply department, which the McCallum Co. inaugurated some time ago, but without permanent headquarters.

Horticultural Society.

The Newport Horticultural Society met Tuesday evening, February 24. President Potter exhibited slides and explained specimens of calosoma beetle, which, both in the larva and adult stages, is the natural enemy of the gypsy moth. There was an interesting discussion regarding the ravages that have been made by the gypsy moth in this section and the success that has attended the efforts in combating this pest. A similar discussion took place regarding the brown-tail moth. The corn borer will be up for discussion at the next meeting.

The preliminary work was commenced on the premium lists for the spring and fall shows to be held by the society.

YOU GET BIGGER CROPS
Test and Correct Every Field Before Planting From Corrected Soils

THE "BIG CROP" Soil Test Tells whether or not any piece of land is in the proper condition to produce a "BIG CROP" and serves you as a guide how to correct faulty soil conditions.

LIME AND MANURE (organic matter) are the most important "BIG CROP" makers in the soil. If the soil runs short in these elements, crop yields run short also.

The "BIG CROP" Soil Test tells you whether or not any piece of land is in the proper condition to produce a "BIG CROP." It tells in a few minutes and at the cost of 2 cents, how to insure the biggest results from lime and manure at the lowest cost. In detail will tell you: Whether or not your soil needs lime; whether or not manure (organic matter) is needed.

Progressive Greenhouse Growers and Truck Gardeners don't guess any more as to what the soil contains. They know what it should contain and make sure of it with the "BIG CROP" Soil Tester. Make sure of the lime and manure in the soil and you will always have a big crop as far as the soil is concerned.

The "BIG CROP" Soil Tester is sold on the money back guarantee if not satisfactory. Play safe; it means money to you. A trial will convince you.

BEEMAN ONE HORSE TRACTOR —replaces hand labor

ENABLES one man to do the work of five in cultivating flowers. Goes astride narrow rows—cultivating one or three rows at a time. Goes between gladioli, dahlias and other wide rows. Turns sharp corners, goes close to fence. It's the original garden tractor—fully developed, tested and proven on thousands of farms and gardens.

Useful the year 'round—plows, harrows, hauls, mows and does four horsepower belt work.

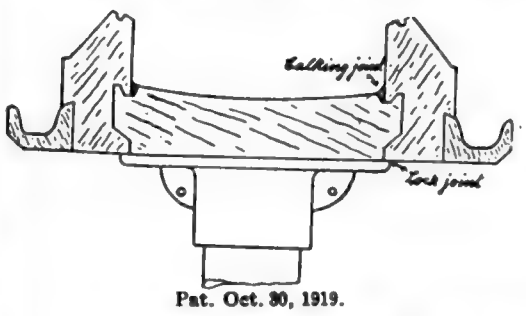
Permanite

(Trade-mark registered U. S. Patent Office.)

Are You Falling Behind?

Are you keeping your house in perfect condition—are you doing all you can do to increase your business and your profits—or are you satisfied in falling behind by using any old product for your greenhouse glazing?

The florist who uses PERMANITE is the one who is getting ahead these days; he won't have to go over his houses every other year—there will be no continuous puttering around every time something happens—but he can put his house out of his mind for years to come simply because PERMANITE is guaranteed to outlast putty three to four times and never hardens.



If you want the Best—and know when you get it—insist on PERMANITE; you might as well get all that's coming to you and that's exactly what PERMANITE will do—100% service and satisfaction at all times.

Mr. H. D. Ellis, of the Ellis Greenhouse Co., Okmulgee, Okahoma, writes:
"I have looked over many greenhouses in this part of the country, and would not exchange for mine. In regard to your patent LEAK-PROOF locked gutter, I recommend it of the highest—once up, there to stay. To show you how well I like my houses, I am going to place my order for three more sections with you this spring."

We are the patentees and sole manufacturers of this LEAK-PROOF gutter which is giving so much satisfaction.

Gentlemen:-

In reply to your inquiry as to how we like "Vitaplastic:"

During the past year we have used 55 barrels of your material on our roofs. Our first experience with it was so satisfactory that we have continued to use it and the fact that we purchased 55 barrels of it during the course of a year is ample proof that we are well-satisfied customers of yours. We have applied these 55 barrels of Vitaplastic to our roofs and find that it is all it is claimed to be. We consider it an excellent investment for any florist.

Very truly yours,
A.N. PIERSON, INC.

CLEVELAND
Home Office and Factory

Write our nearest office for your glazing and paint requirements. Have our local man call and see you.

A big warehouse, chock full of our products. Immediate delivery. Economical service.

After eight years of actual service,

VITAPLASTIC GLAZING COMPOUND

and our

have stood the test of time. This alone has enabled us to expand, and offer to the Greenhouse Trade its first opportunity to buy at home.

We wrote you a letter last month telling you of a large purchase of raw materials. This new price is $1.70 per gallon—our former price was $2. This means an actual saving of $18 to you on every barrel of VITAPLASTIC GLAZING COMPOUND.

Price is subject to withdrawal when present stock is contracted for, but if immediate delivery is not desired, shipment will be held for you in our warehouse without extra charge.

Use the attached coupon. It will be a pleasure for us to send one of our salesmen to explain this offer.

HERE'S A GOOD ONE

Everyone who grows single Pompons knows Mrs. E. D. Godfrey. It has been the best late pink variety. Now comes a sport of Godfrey, its name is:

ANNABEL

It is a sturdier grower with exceptionally good foliage. Has long stiff stems, well branched. Have cut stems with seventeen flowers and buds running up to 8½ in. across. Unusually good keeper in bench or when cut. Color, a beautiful cerise, tending toward lavender. Flowers of anemone type with several rows of petals, and yellow center. Season of blooming, Thanksgiving to Christmas. It is better than parent or any other Pompon and will bring more money. It is later than any variety we know of. 2¼-in. plants for delivery April and later. Orders filled in rotation. Order early. Sold under agreement that you dispose of no stock to any person until 1922. Prices, $3.00 per doz., $20.00 per 100, $180.00 per 1000. Strong plants and careful packing guaranteed.
